PROBE U. S. FOOD CRISIS; ASK EXPORT REDUCTION

Senate Told Peril of Bare Tables for America.

BY WILLIAM MOORE.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., March 14.—A senate revolt against the New Deal agencies blamed for the nation's food shortage brought an announcement from Chairman Mead [D., N. Y.] today that his senate war investigating committee has been quietly conducting its own inquiry into the diminishing food supply.

Mead said the investigation has now reached the stage where public hearings can be begun soon.

The committee's plans were divulged after Sen. Wherry [R., Neb.] had called for creation of a congressional committee to put the brakes on exportation of food to foreign countries before the government planners leave American tables bare.

Farming Seen Crippled.

During a fiery debate, senators charged that burocratic regulations are crippling the efforts of farmers to raise sufficient food. Meanwhile, the senate was told, the burocrats are taking food needed in American homes to feed foreign populations without regard for the requirements of American war workers.

Wherry said the United States has 83 million cattle—the most in its history—and a vast quantity of corn that is in danger of spoiling because of a damp season.

Yet the planners' price controls and failure to keep meat and feed prices in harmony, he said, is making it impossible for cattle feeders to fatten cattle for the market. He also blamed government regulations for the decline in pork production.

War Production Affected.

Citing Chicago reports of a nationwide meat shortage, and telling of shortages in his own state, Wherry told the senate bluntly that the shortages are affecting war production as well as the entire national economy.

Sen. Hickenlooper [R., Ia.] asked if it were not true that part of the reason for the shortage is that the federal agencies have failed to recognize food production as equal to war production in the war program.

Sen. O'Mahoney [D., Wyo.] came to the defense of the department of agriculture and war food administration, asserting that they have fully recognized the importance of food production. He said he had reason to believe "there will be announcements in the near future" that will improve the meat situation.

Blames OPA Policies.

In testimony prepared for the senate banking committee, G. L. Childress, speaking for the American meat institute said today that government price control policies are damming up the supply of hogs. The committee is considering legislation to extend the life of OPA.

Lack of enforcement by the OPA in the case of black market operators is a contributing factor to the meat crisis, he declared.

BRITISH SAY BIG SUPPLY STOCKS HAVE BEEN CUT

BY JAMES SLOAN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, March 14.—Britain and the allies have laid aside a "considerable stock of essential foodstuffs which will be sent into western Holland with all possible speed as soon as the Germans are driven out or retire," Prime Minister Churchill told the house of commons today.

He disclosed that an "interim civil import program to meet the immediate needs of these areas has been prepared by the Netherlands government and approved by the British and United States governments and supreme headquarters of the allied expeditionary force [SHAEF] and deliveries already are being made against this program in addition to the regular inflow of essential civilian supplies under the military program."

Denied Having Such Stores.

The Churchill disclosure was made after a lengthy private inquiry here into the relief supplies situation in which British officials denied that this country has great stores of food, clothing, or raw materials which could be made available for the liberated countries.

Reluctance of British officialdom to provide facts and figures on what might be termed their "strategic reserves" is ascribed in some circles to their desire to withhold enough stocks to meet the nation's own emergency needs.

It is foreseen also that a strong demand will be voiced by the British people for more liberal food and clothes rations when V-day signals the passing of the need to retain anything against the threat of German bombs, blitzes, or invasion.

Meat Ration Cut Hinted.

On the other hand, Britishers were warned today they might have to accept possibly a severe cut in the meat ration within a few months because of the enormous demands of the liberated countries on the allies' stocks which have been depleted by bad drouths in Australia and New Zealand and because reserves have reached such a level that they cannot be allowed to dwindle further.

The British have been protesting recently that they should not have to suffer any further cuts in essential ration categories. One national newspaper the other day gave wide circulation to a cartoon showing a puzzled Britisher being outfitted with a very skimpy suit of clothes by a beaming tailor who had hidden under the counter huge bundles of swank merchandise labeled "For United Nations Relief and Rehabilitation Administration Forces and Export."

DOUGHBOYS WIN 2 MORE ISLANDS IN PHILIPPINES

Destroy Japanese Garrisons.

An Orderly Invasion

BY WALTER SIMMONS.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LITTLE SANTA CRUZ ISLAND, Off Zamboanga, Mindanao, March 13 [Delayed].—Marines were not supposed to be active in this section of the Pacific at all but they captured an island today. Eleven from a small boat strolled ashore and occupied this dot which has an area of less than four city blocks. The invaders included Pvt. Sam Himba of Chicago.

MANILA, March 15 [Thursday] (AP).—Maj. Gen. Frederick A. Irving's 24th infantry division made surprise night landings on Romblon and Simara Islands in the central Philippines Tuesday to strengthen the American hold on the main shipping lane from the United States to Manila.

The Yank force "seized control" of the small islands, east of American held Mindoro, Gen. MacArthur said in his war bulletin today. American losses were described as "minor."

Jap Garrisons Destroyed.

The 24th, veterans of Leyte, Bataan, and Corregidor, destroyed the small Japanese garrison on Romblon in a skirmish at the town of Romblon and killed the few enemy defenders of Simara.

Romblon Island, 10 miles long and five wide, is between Tablas and Sibuyan Islands, both of which are in Japanese hands. Simara Island is about 20 miles to the northwest. It measures five miles long and three miles wide.

On Luzon, the 6th division fighting east of captured Antipolo, in the bitterly contested Marikina watershed area east of Manila, repulsed a series of counter-attacks.

Press Toward Pass.

To the north, 25th and 32d division Yanks pressed toward the Balete pass against stubborn resistance. This pass leads into the extensive Cagayan valley of northern Luzon. The bulk of the Japanese Luzon garrison is believed to be in the north.

On Mindanao, invaded last Saturday, 41st division troops expanded their holdings north of two captured airdromes in the Zamboanga area, capturing two more towns, Masilay and Harlow.

U. S. Formally Raises Flag Over Island

U. S. PACIFIC FLEET HDQ., Guam, March 15 [Thursday] —(AP).— The American flag was raised over Iwo Island —within 750 miles of Tokyo— Wednesday, signifying tactical conquest of its bloody eight square miles, altho Japanese still are resisting to the death. More than 20,000 Nipponese already have died there.

Stars and Stripes over Iwo.

The estimate of enemy dead was regarded as conservative. It was reached by an approximate count of burials. Many more Japanese bodies are known to be sealed up in bomb blasted caves.

Battle Still Rages.

The navy war bulletin today, reporting 200 to 400 yard gains further compressing the Nipponese toward the sea at the northernmost end, announced the flag raising on the 24th day of the invasion, but made no claim that the island had been entirely secured. The United States government officially took possession of the island in a formal ceremony.

The proclamation was issued by Adm. Nimitz as military governor. Marine Col. D. A. Stafford, Spokane, Wash., read the proclamation suspending all powers of the government of the Japanese empire on the island.

The ceremony was held in the shadow of Suribachi volcano. As the official flag was raised the one that had flown over Suribachi since the fifth day of the battle was lowered.

Maj. Gen. Keller E. Rockey's 5th marine division on the northwest pushed toward Kitano point in a fight which still was raging at nightfall Wednesday.

Progress was slow because of the need to clear the rough land with bulldozers so tanks and other equipment could be brought up to clean out the almost endless maze of caves.

U. S. Casualties Not Disclosed.

The bulletin noted that the Japanese had placed booby traps on the bodies of American dead.

The navy announcement made no mention of American casualties—a figure not brought up officially on Guam since that supplied for the first three days. It was 5,732 including 644 killed. Later Navy Secretary Forrestal in Washington, D. C., placed the marine dead at 2,050.

Today's announcement disclosed that navy, army and marine planes are operating from captured air bases on the island.

NAZIS REPORT THRUSTS OVER RIVER IN RUHR

Patch Opens Attack in Saar Basin.

PARIS, March 15 [Thursday]—(AP).—Infantry and armor of Lt. Gen. Hodges' United States 1st army expanded the Remagen-Erpel bridgehead today to within a mile and a quarter of the Frankfurt-Cologne super-highway, and other American forces extended the fighting along the farflung western front.

In the bridgehead, now 10¼ miles long and 5½ miles deep, Hodges' doughboys punched north, south, and east for gains of up to a mile thru the rugged hills that border the Rhine.

Reinforcements and supplies continued to pour into the American-held area east of the river over the great Ludendorff bridge and the pontoon structure erected by American engineers.

Claim Bridge Destroyed.

The German radio claimed Nazi bombers destroyed the big double tracked rail bridge during the day, but the latest information available at allied headquarters was that the huge steel structure not only was standing, but had been repaired to better condition than when it was captured.

A German broadcast also said allied reconnaissance thrusts had been launched across the Rhine "north of Duisburg and north of Leverkusen." The enemy report said "all thrusts were unsuccessful."

There was no confirmation here of any allied activity north of the 1st army front, other than recent reports of Gen. Simpson's United States 9th army shelling the Ruhr across the river, but such reconnaissance would be a normal procedure.

7th Army Opens Attack.

To the south, however, Lt. Gen. Patch's American 7th army opened a new attack against the last enemy-held salient west of the Rhine in German territory and gained four miles on a seven mile front near Saarbruecken.

Doughboys strove to knock the Nazis' artillery back out of range of the two bridges across the river in the Remagen area.

A week after the Remagen trestle was captured the enemy had yet mounted no full-scale counter-blow at the bridgehead, but air reconnaissance late today disclosed a large concentration of German forces east of Cologne and north of the American holding.

Altho new and tighter censorship restrictions were clamped on the bridgehead operation, it was permitted to be disclosed that Hodges' troops had driven beyond captured Honnef at the north end of the bridgehead and had reached the outskirts of Notscheid, four miles northeast of Remagen.

Another Town Cleared.

St. Catherinen, directly east of Remagen, was cleared in a 1,000 yard advance, and other units pushed forward approximately a mile into the hills beyond Ginsterhahn, east of Linz. The wide military highway built by Hitler was under bombardment by American artillery and planes.

"The bridgehead operation now is in its expansion phase, and in this hilly region it necessarily is slow work," said a front dispatch. "There is no reason at this stage to expect anything sensational in the way of gains."

Continent based United States 9th air force fighter bombers, operating in strength in protection of the bridgehead, destroyed 58 German planes on an air field near Lippe in the bridgehead area and damaged 55 others. Two were shot down over the bridge. Three of the American planes were lost, two in a collision.

"Blow Up Like Firecrackers."

The German planes parked on the tiny front line air field were spotted by a squadron which had been on a strafing mission and because of empty bomb racks was forced to send for other American units.

Pilots said the parked planes

Kansas City, Mo., March 14 [Special].—While American taxpayers rushed to get in under the income tax deadline, A. C. Utterback, one of three supervising examiners for the farm credit administration, sat as usual at his empty desk in the basement of the municipal auditorium today, doing nothing and drawing $702 a month federal pay for it.

For the last six months Utterback has been drawing his salary for what he terms "enforced idleness," and no end to it is in sight. He has been threatened with dismissal and suspension by the FCA, but so far nothing has come of it.

How It All Began.

Last July Utterback and his assistant, Roland W. Bush, filed a report on their examination of the Houston, Tex., bank for coöperatives. They charged irregularities and violations of the law covering such banks.

Three months later Bush resigned, charging that the FCA was suppressing the report for political reasons and had asked Utterback to change it. Previously Utterback had been assigned to his cubbyhole office, which reporters found to be unmarked and without a telephone.

Since last September, Utterback has reported to work daily, putting in a full work week, plus the regulation 8 hours overtime. His base pay is $5,600 a year, to which is added $638 a year for overtime. In addition, he gets a $6 a day allowance, or $2,190 a year, because he is away from his home office at St. Paul, Minn. That comes to a total of $8,428 a year.

Ivy W. Duggan of Kansas City, governor of the FCA, denied today that Utterback had been asked to change his report. He said Utterback only had been asked to include evidence substantiating the charges.

Called Insubordinate.

Duggan said the FCA personnel department has requested that Utterback be dismissed on "charges growing out of the situation after the bank report was made." It is reported that the charges include insubordination and revealing of confidential information.

Utterback, who has been asked to show cause why he should not be suspended pending dismissal proceedings, said he has replied by letter to the notification. A certified public accountant and a veteran of World War I, he said he would exhaust every appeal route open to him.

TODAY IS DEADLINE FOR FILING RETURNS ON INCOME TAXES

Today is the last day to file final income tax returns for 1944. It also is the last day to pay the balance of the unforgiven tax on 1943 income, half of which was due a year ago. Furthermore, it is the deadline for submitting declarations if estimated 1945 income is expected to exceed $5,000.

Returns, declarations, and payments which are mailed must be postmarked before midnight tonight to avoid penalties. Those who wish to call in person were warned that the collector of internal revenue's office in the federal building will close promptly at 5:15 p. m.

The triple deadline brought 300,000 pieces of mail to Collector Nigel D. Campbell's office yesterday. An estimated 250,000 letters contained tax returns. Approximately half of the returns were made out on the W-2 form, the simplified return used for the first time this year.

ALL INDUCTEES 18 TO 20 SLATED FOR ARMY DUTY

Washington, D. C., March 14 (AP).—For the next three months all inductees between 18 and 20, inclusive, with a few exceptions, will be earmarked for the army.

A joint statement by the army and navy said the arrangement was made "to satisfy the current needs of the army for young infantry replacements."

The only exceptions in the 18-20 bracket will be inductees who qualify and are assigned to special navy programs such as radio technicians and combat air crewmen.

Assail Junkets to 'Sell' Dumbarton Oaks Program

Washington, D. C., March 14 (AP).—Rep. Stefan [R., Neb.] expressed "severe criticism" today of what he said was use of appropriated funds to send "high-salaried" state department officials over the country "to sell the principles of the Dumbarton Oaks conference to the people."

It Takes Cop to Catch 'Cop' with a Hunch

Leslie Segeler, 37, of 10734 Avenue M, who still liked to pretend he was a policeman, tho he had been ousted in 1938 from the park district police on the south side, was identified last night by four of his victims as the man who committed armed robberies in their establishments in the last three weeks.

Leslie Segeler.

Segeler had made it a habit recently to walk a beat on the south side with Patrolman Raymond Howard. He had explained to Howard that he served five years with the park district, but had been discharged when he was accused falsely of accepting a bribe.

Tuesday night, about two hours after he had allegedly held up Jerry Triller in the latter's tavern at 9802 Ewing av. and escaped with $77, Segeler met the patrolman, discussed police work, and offered to buy Howard a drink.

Patrolman Gets a Hunch.

Later that night, after Segeler had left the patrolman, a description of the tavern robber was recognized by Howard as closely resembling that of his ex-policeman friend. Last night, Howard was prepared.

Shortly after dark, Segeler fell in step with the patrolman at 106th st. and Ewing av., and offered advice on police work.

When the squad car passed, Howard excused himself, and asked the police in the car to get Triller. He returned to his conversation with Segeler until the squad car arrived with Triller, who made the identification.

At East Side station, Segeler was identified also by Mrs. Mary Dietz, operator of a delicatessen at 10008 Avenue M; Mrs. Sylvia Makovec, operator of a tavern at 9441 Ewing av., and Mrs. Sophie Bugos, operator of a grocery at 9530 Avenue M, where Segeler had obtained $5, $70, and $3 in recent armed robberies.

E-Cop Still Playing.

Taken to Central station, where he was questioned by Sgt. John Hanrahan of the robbery detail, Segeler appeared dazed by the sudden turn of events, but he still played at being a policeman.

"There's another guy out on the south side who looks like me; I want to go home now, but in the morning we'll go out there and get him," he told Hanrahan.

Drama at Remagen Bridges

WITH U. S. 1ST ARMY EAST OF THE RHINE, March 14 (AP).—The German lieutenant assigned to blow up the Remagen bridge was drunk when American forces captured it. Sgt. Joseph De Listo, Bronx, N. Y., who captured the German, today said he was plenty soused. This was what investigation disclosed:

The German had orders to destroy the 1,200 foot steel bridge. He had a flair for the dramatic, and when the United States 9th armored division drew near he spread the word in Erpel, on the east bank, that "the bridge goes at 4 p. m."

Dynamite had been planted at vital spots on the structure and the last folks in Remagen who wanted to leave were given a chance to cross.

German soldiers and civilians were sitting in "grandstand seats" at vantage points on the east bank, waiting for the sight of American troops getting the bridge blown up right in their faces.

A few minutes before 4 p. m. the German officer signaled the plunger down. Two small puffs of dust and smoke accompanied by explosions echoed thru the hills, but the bridge remained on its piers.

Few of the German soldiers on the east bank had their arms, so certain were they that the Americans would not be able to cross.

WITH U. S. 1ST ARMY ON THE RHINE, March 14 (AP).—American army engineers, working with the speed of circus roustabouts, took just 31 hours to throw across the Rhine near Remagen a pontoon bridge which they believe is the longest built in this war. The 960 foot bridge required special engineering measures because of the swift river current.

"Now we've got everything up to light vehicles rolling across it," said Lt. James A. Murphy Jr., New Britain, Conn.

It was found that the current on the east side of the Rhine ran faster than had been estimated, and available anchors would not hold the bridge in place.

"Near-by were some assault boats. By pushing against the current, these boats kept our pontoons from floating downstream and held the bridge in line until we could improvise another method to anchor the pontoons securely," said the lieutenant.

German planes attacked the bridge site almost continually from the time work began, but the engineers kept the construction going.

In addition to the loss of the Nazi planes, which apparently were preparing for a mass assault on the bridgehead, big bombers of the 8th air force from England attacked an airdrome 10 miles northwest of Giessen, touching off a great explosion in what air force officers believe was a fully stocked dump of bombs and shells intended for use against the bridgehead.

The 7th army's drive west of Saarbruecken, following up a new attack begun yesterday by the 3d army to the north, was intended at the outset as a line straightening operation. But the Yanks found only light resistance and punched on to the Saar river, where the Germans had withdrawn into Siegfried defenses on the north bank.

Penetrate More than a Mile.

The 70th division, spearheading the new thrust, penetrated more than a mile beyond the French-German frontier and reached the Saar in the vicinity of Volkingen, six miles west of Saarbruecken.

The towns of Schaffhausen, Clarenthal, Wehrden, Gieslautern, and Schoeneck, all on or near the south bank of the Saar, were seized as the enemy's rearguard resistance was brushed aside. By nightfall artillery and mortar fire was being exchanged across the river.

Lt. Gen. Patton's 3d army wiped out the last remnants of resistance north of the Moselle river, overrunning a flying bomb launching site, and kept up pressure south of the Moselle, where a new attack opened on Tuesday.

Enemy opposition stiffened in this area, but the 94th division slugged eastward another half mile from the vicinity of Holzerath and other 3d army troops reached points seven to nine miles southeast of Saarburg.

Threat to Saar Industries.

Aware that the 3d army's new attack was a dangerous threat to the Saar industrial area, the Nazis were reacting sharply to every American move.

The Berlin radio reported that the 3d army was trying to force a crossing of the Moselle at several points west of Coblenz, with up to four infantry and four tank divisions available for the assault. Three attempts to cross the stream already had been repulsed, the Nazi broadcasts said.

There was no word from allied sources that Patton had yet opened an attack on Coblenz, which sits at the confluence of the Moselle and the Rhine and is protected from direct assault by the Moselle.

Final tabulation of Tuesday's record 3d army prisoner catch raised the total to 6,619. Since Feb. 1 Patton's army has caged 55,492 prisoners, many of whom were cut off and stranded in the Eifel mountains west of Coblenz.

GERMAN WAR REPORT.

Wednesday's official German report of fighting on the western front said:

"Before our lower Rhine fronts lively enemy activity, partly supported by thick smoke screens, continued. The enemy was shelled by our artillery. In the Remagen bridgehead the enemy succeeded in pushing back our position slightly in continuous strong attacks after bitter village and forest fighting. Later they were checked and high losses were inflicted on them. Our bombers and fighter bombers supported the ground fighting with good success.

"Our troops on the lower Moselle are engaged in fighting against the attacking American 3d army. On the Ruwer river the enemy renewed his attacks with stronger forces. He succeeded in establishing a local bridgehead on both sides of the Osburg forest but was repulsed southeast of Saarburg. Enemy attacks near Saarlautern and in the lower Vosges failed. After strong artillery preparations the enemy succeeded in breaking into the northern part of Hagenau temporarily, but was dislodged in the afternoon."

Yanks Advance Beyond Rhine

BRITISH PLANES HIT NAZIS WITH NEW 11 TON BOMB

LONDON, March 15 [Thursday]—(AP).—The debut of the world's biggest bombs, weighing 11 tons each, capped a merciless assault on Germany yesterday by more than 5,000 allied planes which ripped and blasted the reich with everything from .50 caliber machine gun slugs to the new superbomb tall as a two-story house.

A rail viaduct at Bielefeld, 38 miles east of Muenster, was the target for the R. A. F.'s newest "town buster," the world's biggest package of explosive, which was used for the first time by four-engined Lancasters specially adapted for the purpose. The air ministry said six to eight spans of the viaduct were knocked out.

Great Penetrative Power.

The new 22,000 pound bomb, the air ministry said, combines great power of penetration with a high explosive force. Prior to the use of the 11 ton bomb the largest previously hurled on the Germans was the six ton "earthquake" which sank the German battleship Tirpitz and penetrated 15 foot thick concrete roofs of U-boat pens.

Crewmen said the new bombs caused "a tremendous pall of black smoke and a fountain of debris—the blast dwarfed the terrific explosions of the six ton bombs which were also dropped in the attack."

"When the bomb was released my Lancaster bounced up well over 500 feet from the relief of the big load," one pilot said.

The new bomb is 25 feet 5 inches long with a diameter of 3 feet 10 inches. The primary role of the super-bomb is for attacks on underground structures such as factories the Germans have built deep within the earth. It was designed by B. N. Wallis of the Vickers Armstrong company.

Also Made in America.

"Altho the bomb and the aircraft which carry it are 100 per cent British, the United States has given valuable assistance with production," the air ministry said. "We already are obtaining supplies of complete bomb bodies from America."

Other vital German communications and industrial objectives were assaulted by British and American warplanes as the great allied air offensive rolled thru its 30th consecutive day. Nearly 2,000 heavy bombers and fighters of the United States 8th air force participated in the operations.

British bombers were in action again during the night. Heavies attacked Zweibruecken and Homburg about 15 miles east of Saarbruecken in an effort to wipe out troops and military stores. Mosquitos pounded Berlin for the 23d consecutive night.

From Italy, Liberators and Fortresses of the United States 15th air force striking for the third time in 10 days in support of the Russian army attacked oil refineries and vital communications northwest of Budapest and within 35 miles of the advancing Russian forces.

NAZI COMMAND IS ANNOYED BY SOLDIER SLANG

Object to Abbreviated Military Terms.

BY SEYMOUR KORMAN.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

WITH THE UNITED STATES 7TH ARMY, March 14.—The latest thing to worry the enemy high command, according to captured documents in the possession of Lt. Gen. Patch's army, is the employment of abbreviations and jargon for military terms by German soldiers.

One document—a general staff order—dealt with the momentous matter of abolishing use of the abbreviation "stokraft," which stands for the title, "stabsoffizier fur das kraftwehrwesen" or staff officer for motor transport.

Demands Full Title.

"The Fuehrer has objected to the expression stokraft, which occurred in a document presented to him," the paper read. "It is the Fuehrer's wish that expressions of this nature shall disappear forthwith and finally from both written documents and from the spoken military language. In future this officer will be referred to in every instance by his full title."

Another document quoted Gen. Alfred Jodl, high in the Nazi army, and his objections to the abbreviation practice.

"Even language is an indication of a people's culture," he said. "The more primitive people are the more primitive their language. The German people have a particularly rich and expressive language.

"It's Stupid Barbarism."

"I therefore can only describe it as a barbarism where office jargon of the stupidest kind gradually finds its way into military language, into the press, and thus into the speech of the whole German people. It should be obvious that this method of forming 'portmanteau' words is a business of Jewish origin.

Abbreviations that are intelligible to all conduce to the simplification of correspondence. Here is their place and nowhere else. But the invention of portmanteau words which, being pronounceable, find their way into the language, is pestilential mischief."

U. S. ARMY BURIES NONE OF ITS FALLEN IN GERMANY'S SOIL

HENRI-CHAPELLE, Belgium, March 14 (AP).—No American soldier is being buried by the army in German soil.

The largest military cemetery on the western front, probably the largest ever built for an American overseas army, lies in green, rolling hills here some six miles from Aachen, first large German city taken by the allies.

Since last Sept. 7 this pasture land has been marked by row after row of crosses at the graves of several thousand American dead. There are also 138 dead of other allied nationalities and 8,883 Germans.

French Crowds Protest Red Paper's Suspension

MARSEILLE, France, March 14.—Demonstrators here and at Nimes protested yesterday suspension of the Communist evening paper Midi-Rouge for lack of paper. At Nimes, a crowd assailed the "paper trust" on charges of withholding paper from the Midi-Rouge.

BLAMES NO ONE IN LOSS OF 47 U.S. FORTS IN RUSSIA

Washington, D. C., March 14 (AP).—Maj. Gen. Orvil Anderson said today he had no criticism for any one for the result of the destruction of 47 Flying Fortresses in a German air raid on an airfield in Russia last June 21.

Anderson, deputy commander of the 8th air force, was asked about a story by Alexander Kendrick, returned Moscow correspondent of the Philadelphia Inquirer. Kendrick wrote that Americans and Russians blamed each other for the success of the attack on the field at Poltava.

Anderson said the defense of any air field was "inherently weak" and that the 8th air force command had accepted the risk of an attack in sending the shuttle bombers across Germany to the American built field in Russia. "The Germans," he said, "simply put on an aggressive attack."

HUEBNER GIVEN COMMAND OF U. S. 5TH CORPS

Headed 1st Division; Rose from Ranks.

BY JOHN THOMPSON.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

WITH THE U. S. 1ST ARMY IN GERMANY, March 14.—Maj. Gen. Clarence R. Huebner, former commanding of the famous 1st division, was disclosed tonight as the new commanding general of the 5th corps. He relieved Lt. Gen. Leonard T. Gerow, who has taken command of the 15th army.

Gen. Huebner.

Huebner was replaced in command of the 1st division, it had been previously announced, by its veteran artillery officer, Brig. Gen. Clift Andrus. Andrus had been with the 1st division during all its campaigns in Algeria, Tunisia, Sicily, Normandy, France, Belgium, and east of the Siegfried line.

Held "Hot Corner."

Huebner was to have taken over the 5th corps when Field Marshal von Rundstedt opened his winter offensive thru the Ardennes. Because Gerow was more familiar with the area and corps personnel, Lt. Gen. Hodges, 1st army commander, left Gerow in command. It was the 5th corps, bolstered by the 1st division and supported by elements of the 9th, which held the famous hot corner on the Monschau-Bullingen shoulder.

It was the 5th corps, too, which went ashore on Omaha beach in Normandy with the 1st division and one regiment of the 29th spearheading this assault. The 5th corps contained the Germans while the Cherbourg peninsula was being mopped, took part in the St. Lo break-thru and swept on with the 1st army across France, capturing Paris.

Right Flank of Rhine Drive.

Most recently the 5th corps, composed of the 2d, 28th, 69th, and 106th infantry divisions, and the 102d cavalry groups as well as corps troops, formed the right flank of Hodges' offensive from the Roer river to the Rhine.

In giving Huebner the corps command, Hodges recommended the former 1st division commander as one of the army's ablest tacticians. And in an army of good division commanders he was regarded by many as the best troop leader.

Gen. Huebner, a Kansan, enlisted in the army as a private 35 years ago. He was a regimental commander of the 1st division in the first World war.

SUMMER HOME LOOTED.

Fred Essig, manager of Lester Limited, 14 W. Lake st., reported to the Lake county sheriff's office yesterday that his summer home near Barrington had been looted of clothing, furniture, and other articles worth $1,000.

WISCONSIN BOY WINS TRIBUNE ESSAY CONTEST

Illinois, Michigan Pupils Also Get War Bonds.

Melvin R. Jauck, 17, a junior in the Clintonville [Wis.] Public High school, yesterday was announced as winner of the first prize $500 war bond in THE TRIBUNE'S "Citizens of Tomorrow" American history essay contest for high school students. Another Wisconsinite won second place.

Melvin appeared at De La Salle High school here, where the 163d "Citizens of Tomorrow" program was being recorded, and read into the microphone a paper entitled "Lincoln, Symbol of America," which had been chosen unanimously by the judges as the best of the 862 essays which had poured in from 187 localities in Illinois, Indiana, Michigan, Wisconsin, and Iowa. Text of the paper appears in adjoining columns.

To Be Broadcast Saturday.

The program recorded yesterday, a salute to De La Salle High school, will be heard on W-G-N Saturday at 10 a. m. "Citizens of Tomorrow," sponsor of the history competition, is The Tribune radio youth program that, each Saturday honors some high school of the Chicago area.

Melvin was brought to Chicago as the guest of THE TRIBUNE and was accompanied by E. G. Kellogg, Clintonville superintendent of schools, and by Miss Leola Knudson, teacher of history in the Clintonville High school.

The announcement that Marilyn Trapp, 16, of Columbus, Wis., had won the second prize $100 bond was incorporated into the same recording by Philip Maxwell, director of the "Citizens of Tomorrow" series. Her subject also was Lincoln.

Five Winners of $50 Bonds.

The five winners of third place $50 bonds were Louise Krebs, 17, of Greenville, Ill.; Helen Marie Woods, 17, of 1133 E. 81st pl., Chicago, a senior at Mercy High school; Bil Gilbert, 17, of Kalamazoo, Mich.; Miriam Eckerling, 17, of 1534 Estes av., Chicago, a senior at Sullivan High school; and Henry Wise, 16, of 69 E. 14th st., Chicago Heights, a senior at Bloom Township High school.

Honorable mention went to Janice Downey, 19, of Sheffield, Ill.; Wilhelmina Ray, 16, of 458 Bowen av., Chicago, a student at Wendell Phillipps High school; Dorothy Croegaert, 16, of Mineral, Ill.; Mary Lou Moran, 16, of Ottawa, Ill.; and Patricia Robinson, 16, of 5904 Race av., Chicago, a student at Mount St. Mary's academy, St. Charles. The Mineral [Ill.] Community Consolidated High school won two honorable mentions, for both Miss Downey and Miss Croegaert are students there altho the former lives in Sheffield.

Winner Born in Argentina.

Melvin Jauck was born in Buenos Aires, Argentina, and was taken to Clintonville when he was 5 years old. He attended St. Martin's Lutheran Parochial school before entering Clintonville High school.

Besides keeping up an excellent scholastic standing he swims, bowls, gives some time to the piano, and works about 23 hours a week. He is planning to go out for track this spring. Melvin's longer range interests are scientific in character. He is especially attracted by chemistry and electronics.

Marilyn Trapp is an honor roll student who lives on a farm eight miles from Columbus and commutes by bus. She is interested in medicine and thinks she will become a nurse.

Louise Krebs, whose subject in the contest was the Constitution of the United States, is feature editor of the Greenville High school annual and last year was editor-in-chief of the school paper. She is active in the school art club and chorus. Her working experience includes taking care of children, clerking in local stores, and helping out at the St. Louis [Mo.] Children's hospital.

Helen Marie Woods, who wrote on the Emancipation Proclamation, has been on the honor roll during her four years at Mercy High school and is a member of the science, mathematics, Latin, and glee clubs and of the school sodality. Her sport is volley ball.

Bil Gilbert, who chose the Pilgrims for his subject, is an all-around student at the State High school of Western Michigan college in Kalamazoo. He debates, takes part in school plays, does some journalism, and at the same time captains the golf team and plays full back on the football team.

Bond Sales Chairman.

Miriam Eckerling wrote on the development of the west. She is editor of the Sullivan High school annual and has been chairman of the war bond sales committee. She stands in the upper 10th of her class.

Henry Wise, whose subject was Lincoln, is editor of the Bloom Township High school newspaper and literary magazine and does some writing for the Chicago Heights Star. He wants to go into the newspaper business. The present is not his first successful entry into an assey contest. He won a money prize in a Chicago Heights competition with a paper on the subject, "This Is My Country."

THE TRIBUNE'S contest opened Jan. 21 and closed March 1. It was warmly indorsed by patriotic societies and educators. The judges were Dr. William W. Sweet of the University of Chicago [chairman], Harold Korey, teacher of history at Senn High school, and Robert W. Twyman, teacher of history at St. Ignatius High school.

Winners in Tribune Essay Contest on History

Supt. E. G. Kellogg of Clintonville, Wis., public schools congratulates Melvin Jauck (right) on winning $500 war bond in history essay contest. With them is Miss Leola Knudson, the winner's history teacher.

Text of Prize Winning Essay

Following is the essay by Melvin R. Jauck, 17, of Clintonville, Wis., which won the first prize $500 war bond in The Tribune's recent "Citizens of Tomorrow" American history essay contest for high school students. Young Jauck entitled his essay "Lincoln, Symbol of America."

Nineteen forty-five, the year of decision, has come, and with it the hope of a desperately desired peace for a diseased and aching world.

Everywhere, humanity is looking toward the future; tired men looking homeward; hungry children looking to plenty; wounded boys looking to help and peace; dying heroes looking to rest.

But even yet, the future is veiled to our eyes. It is dark and forbidding, covered with a mist of fear and doubt which we cannot penetrate.

So our eyes unconsciously turn to the past for strength and guidance and assurance. Before us stands a compassionate figure, tall, gangling, unassuming. Our eyes rest on a homely, sorrowful countenance; a face which is the image of a soul desperately loving freedom. We see the eyes in which burned an intense pity for the slave masses. We gaze at the furrowed cheeks, which were angered that any one should have been hungry or illiterate or miserable. We bask in the rays of benevolence and kindness, whose splendor has not in the least been dimmed by the passing years. This was Abraham Lincoln.

He began at the lowest notch and climbed to the highest. He swung his ax in the heat of the day and studied by the firelight. He had the qualities of the great; the perseverance that could not be halted. He saw the wretchedness of the slaves and his heart formed the resolution that they should not be forever treated as animals instead of human beings. He accomplished his task, and then at the height of his glory, his life was cut short. But in America's hour of indecision, the shadow of Lincoln hovers over the land, as a guardian angel. The memory of his honesty, his kindness, his sincerity and understanding, his victory over darkness, will never vanish. In our hearts his homely face is immortal.

But the influence of Lincoln is not alone for America. His words are for all people, for all time. For the host of men goes down to dust and rubble and the war torn peoples of Europe and the orient cry, and ask "why?" They search the flaming skies for an answer and there is none. And then they gaze on the whimsical face, that could portray a thousand emotions with a twitch of a muscle, and find hope and faith; hope in the future; faith in mankind.

They see Lincoln as a symbol of America. The qualities they see in Lincoln, they also see in America. Kindness, tolerance, sincerity, understanding, and will for right; these were Lincoln's qualities. These he gave to America and now they are part of America.

It is our duty as Americans to preserve them, to keep them bright, to practice them. They are our birthright and our heritage, and will be our gift to the future.

YANKS SURROUND NAZI KEY POINT IN NORTH ITALY

ROME, March 14 (AP).—Strong 5th army patrols have worked their way north of Vergato, important German stronghold 14 miles southwest of Bologna, already threatened by allied forces in the south, east, and west, allied headquarters said today.

Southwest of Vergato, which is astride the main Pistoia-Bologna highway, other 5th army troops have beaten off German counter-attacks against newly won positions on the 5,900 foot Monte Spigolino.

German forces were displaying increased aggressiveness on the main approaches to Bologna, key Nazi communication and supply center in northern Italy. Fifth army troops improving their positions in the Serchio valley were slowed by extensive mine fields.

LAST OF 3 SONS IN WAR WOUNDED, MOTHER LEARNS

Her Plea to Spare Him Is Heeded Too Late.

Pvt. James J. Lavin, 18, is overseas and wounded altho his mother, Mrs. Nora Lavin, a widow, of 856 W. 51st st., was assured on Feb. 8 by the adjutant general's office that action had been taken to retain him for permanent assignment in the United States because he is the only one of her three sons left.

"Altho I need to have James near me," Mrs. Lavin, who is too ill to work, said, "my motive in wanting him kept in the country is not entirely personal. I believe that the boy was sent overseas without sufficient training. He received only about four and a half months of training, hardly enough, in my opinion, to equip him to go against seasoned enemy fighters."

Leaves 4 Weeks After Plea.

Mrs. Lavin received both a telegram from the war department yesterday and a V-mail letter from James informing her that he was "slightly wounded" in Germany on March 1. He went overseas in January, approximately four weeks after her appeal to have him retained in the United States for duty.

The mother's appeal was based on the loss of her two other sons, Martin T. Lavin, 23, an aerial radioman 3d class, who was killed in action in January, 1944, and Thomas F., 19, a seaman 1st class, reported missing since last October.

Suffers Heart Attack.

"When I received the message about Tom," Mrs. Lavin said, "the army granted James an emergency furlough, because I suffered a heart attack. He was back on furlough in November and again in January, just before he went overseas."

The boys' father died 12 years ago, when James was 6.

"The boy knows I'm frantic about him," Mrs. Lavin said. He wrote: "'Please don't think I'm hurt badly. Really, mom, I'm okay.'"

Back to Romania

ROMANIA, RUSSIA MARK RETURN OF TRANSYLVANIA

MOSCOW, March 14 (AP). — Flag waving, parades, and an exchange of speeches marked the formal return of Transylvania to Romania yesterday in ceremonies at Cluj, Transylvanian capital. The return of Transylvania rule to Romania was the biggest foreign news today in the soviet press.

The soviet agency Tass told of joyous crowds of Romanians in the streets of the old university city of Cluj, waving Romanian flags, soviet banners, and flags of other allied nations as Russian and Romanian troops paraded thru the town to "the unanimous ovation for the soviet union and cheers for Stalin."

INDIANS TRAP JAP GARRISON IN MANDALAY

MANDALAY, Burma, March 14 (AP).—Indian artillery and infantry men closed the last remaining gate of Fort Dufferin in this rubble heaped city today, trapping the Japanese garrison.

A barrage of shells set fire to the south gate moat bridge and installations, halting truck or tank movement in or out of the battered fort. Artillery men had the north, east, and west gates under point blank fire. A rail line out of the southern corner of the fort already had been cut by infantry men.

Thru the business and residential streets of Burma's second largest city, the tank men and artillery men moved forward, blasting nests of Japanese snipers to bits.

A heavy smoke pall hangs over Dufferin. There were no signs of activity within the compound. A small American liaison plane landed on the Mandalay race course, only a half mile from the fort and within easy machine gun and rifle range, but did not draw any fire.

BRITAIN QUERIES DOMINIONS ON HOME FOR POLES

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, March 14.—Britain already is consulting dominion governments regarding the proposal to allow Poles fighting in behalf of the allies to become British citizens if they do not want to return to their own reshaped country, Prime Minister Churchill informed the house of commons today.

The prime minister said he knew from personal investigation that "there are a certain number of Poles who will be unhappy and won't adapt themselves to the new conditions which may be established."

The offer of British citizenship, he said, must be regarded as their final security. "If everything else fails," he added, "here open the portals of the British empire."

PHILIPPINE POLL SHOWS G.I.S LOOK AHEAD TO JOBS

WITH THE U. S. 41ST DIVISION, Philippines, March 14 (AP).—An army poll among 598 veterans of the 41st infantry division, which has been in the Pacific three years, with 20 months of combat from New Guinea to the Philippines, shows the following post-war aspirations:

One hundred eighty want to go back to their civilian jobs; 87 former students plan to return to their studies; 61 want to win college degrees under the "G. I. Bill of Rights"; 34 intend to make the army a career; 45 are going back to the farm; 12 former nonfarmers want to till the soil; 36 ex-farm boys look forward to city work; 50 will take technical training for new jobs, and 93 were undecided.

Find V-Bombs Fell on Houses in Germany

WITH THE 4TH ARMORED DIVISION, Germany, March 14 (AP).—Troop of the 4th armored division today captured a V-1 launching site near Buchel and learned from irate residents that the range of some of the early "vengeance" bombs was no farther than their own roof tops. Buildings and trees showed damage from V-1 bombs that fell after going only a mile and a half.

AUSSIES MOP UP ISLE OFF BOUGAINVILLE

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Australian forces have cleared all Japanese troops from the island of Saposa off northwestern Bougainville, the Melbourne radio reported yesterday. The Aussies invaded the island last Thursday.

The operation isolates the Japanese garrison on the Bougainville side of Buka passage and gives the Aussies control over the entire western coast of Soraken peninsula, the broadcast said.

Melbourne reported that Australian patrols are taking a heavy toll of Japanese outposts in the main northern sector of Bougainville, where the Nipponese are using artillery constantly.

NEW RED DRIVE ON KOENIGSBERG ROLLS BACK FOE

Russians Push Ahead on 17 Mile Front.

LONDON, March 15 [Thursday]—(AP).—Russian troops, speeding the cleanup of the Baltic coast to free powerful Red army formations for the swelling assault on Berlin, rolled the Germans back as much as four miles yesterday on a 17 mile front in the narrow pocket southwest of Koenigsberg, Moscow announced last night.

Simultaneously, Marshal Malinovsky's 2d Ukraine army in a drive thru the wooded mountains of the Carpathian front to the south captured the rail junction town of Zvolen, a powerful German strongpoint on the Hron river in Slovakia 125 miles northeast of Vienna. Eight near-by towns also were taken.

German attacks toward the Danube river from positions northeast and east of Lake Balaton in Hungary were repelled by the Russians.

Kill 4,000 in East Prussia.

On the Baltic, in bitter village by village fighting, the 3d White Russian army came within 4½ miles of reaching the coast of the Frisches haff [lagoon] and splitting the East Prussian bastions of Braunsberg and Heilgenbeil from Brandenburg, 12 miles southwest of Koenigsberg.

The soviet bulletin last night said the Russians advancing in the East Prussian pocket killed more than 4,000 Germans and took more than 2,000 prisoners. One soviet column driving along the railroad to Braunsberg took the railway station of Vogelsang, four miles southeast of that stronghold. Another column farther north sliced its way to Lank, 4½ miles from the Frisches haff.

Germans Dig In.

Constricted now to an area a little more than 30 miles wide and 10 to 12 miles deep at its widest parts, the Germans were digging additional trenches and fortifying all the villages and hamlets in the region, Moscow said.

Moscow dispatches said Marshal Rokossovsky's 2d White Russian army, attempting to clean out the German foothold on the Bay of Danzig, was fighting in the suburbs of Danzig and Gdynia with the heaviest blows being directed against the latter town.

In the Stettin area near the northwestern corner of the Russian front the Germans claimed the Russians were regrouping their assault units and bringing up Polish reënforcements. One enemy commentator said there were indications soviet troops intend to try taking Stettin in an encirclement maneuver by forcing the Oder river north and south of the city.

Silent on Berlin Front.

The broadcast Moscow bulletin remained silent on the fighting on the central Oder river front before Berlin, which the Germans have said has carried to within 33 miles east of the reich capital.

Marshal Zhukov's 1st White Russian army was reported by Reuters from Moscow to have cracked "one of the main German lines" in Berlin's outer defenses west of the Oder on the 16 mile front between the captured fortress city of Kuestrin and threatened Frankfurt.

RETAIN REDS AS U. S. OFFICERS, TELEGRAMS ASK

Pro-Soviet Group's Campaign Bared.

New York, March 14 [Special].—The National Federation for Constitutional Liberties, an organization which has consistently followed the Communist party line, is staging a drive to high pressure the war department into continuing its policy of permitting Communists to become officers in the United States army, it was revealed today.

Telegrams of 400 words are being sent by the federation asking signatures for a statement that is to be forwarded to the war department, the house military affairs committee, other government officials and the press. A subcommittee of the military affairs committee is investigating the commissioning of Communists following the revelation by THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE of the war department's reversal of former policy against such commissions.

No Identification.

Recipients of the federation's telegram are asked to send their answers "collect" to room 1613 of 205 E. 42d st., New York. The telegram, which says "basic issues of constitutional rights, national unity, and facilitating the war effort" are involved, does not give the name of the organization sponsoring the campaign.

A visit to room 1613 of the 42d st. address, however, showed it to be the headquarters of the federation. The Dies committee on un-American activities described the federation as "probably the foremost Communist front in the United States" since its inception in June, 1940. It termed significant the fact that 25 per cent of the leaders of the federation also were members of Sidney Hillman's national citizens political action committee, which maintains its headquarters in the same building.

The federation is on record as petitioning President Roosevelt to rescind the deportation order of Harry Bridges, west coast radical labor leader. It also called on the President to rescind Atty. Gen. Biddle's finding that the Communist party was an organization advocating the overthrow of the United States government by violence.

Executive secretary of the federation is Miss Frances Williams, former administrative secretary of the now defunct American Youth congress. While the nonaggression pact between Russia and Germany was still in force, the A. Y. C. opposed lend-lease, described the European war as imperialistic, fought the entry of the United States into the conflict, and defended the inclusion of communist youth in its ranks.

The telegrams being sent out by the federation attack THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE and call the war department order "consistent with our close coöperation with the soviet union and with other united nations members."

"The virulent opposition of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE, Congressman Rankin, and other divisive forces must not be permitted to block the war department's sound democratic action," the messages assert.

LUBLIN POLES' GOOD FAITH HIT BY VANSITTART

Has No Confidence in Conduct of Election.

BY E. R. NODERER.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, March 14.—The Lublin Poles, by their persecution of fellow countrymen who don't agree with them, have forfeited the right to any confidence the British and Americans ever had that they would conduct a fair election in Poland, Robert Gilbert Vansittart [Lord Vansittart] said in a letter to the London Times today.

Cites Eden's Words.

Vansittart, chief diplomatic adviser to the British cabinet from 1938 to 1941 and early advocate of a hard peace for Germany, wrote: "They [the Lublinites] have announced in [Foreign Secretary] Eden's words 'their intention of taking severe measures' against those who do not accept their authority. They are always doing so, and in very violent terms, as I have more than once very regretfully indicated in parliament.

"They cannot, apparently, change their tone, and therefore cannot persuade us that any election prepared by them would really correspond with the Yalta pledge of 'free and unfettered elections, based on universal suffrage and the secret ballot.'

Charter Breach Charged.

"The Yalta agreement reaffirms the Atlantic charter, and the methods of the Lublin committee are a grave breach in word and deed of the spirit of Article III. These methods have shown no signs of abatement. They have persisted after the joint signature of this solemn, tripartite convention. The Lublin committee is entitled to participation, but not, on their own showing, to domination. Their reduction to their proper proportions will be a relief to any who, having spoken in or listened to these debates with every sincere desire to facilitate an accommodation, expect an earnest effort to carry out and formulate 'freedom before frontiers.'"

LEAVES $170,000 ESTATE.

OSAKA ARSENAL BELIEVED BLOWN UP BY B-29 RAID

Blast Bounces Plane 5,000 Feet.

21ST BOMBER HEADQUARTERS, Guam, March 15 [Thursday] (AP).—The Osaka arsenal, one of Japan's most important, probably was destroyed in yesterday's 300 Super Fortress attack on that city. Two thousand tons of incendiaries were spread over a five square mile area.

That belief was expressed today by Maj. Gen. Curtis E. LeMay, commander of the 21st bomber command, after B-29 crews reported they were rocked violently by ground explosions. Osaka arsenal covers 150 acres.

Blown 5,000 Feet Higher.

One Super Fort crew was blown from an altitude of 7,000 up to 12,000 feet and turned completely over, LeMay said. It went into a slow roll but the pilot recovered control at only 2,000 feet from the ground and flew back to Tinian, where the plane will be salvaged.

A plane from Saipan, also flying at 7,000 feet, was blown to 10,000 by a blast. It went into a dive, but the pilot recovered at 2,000 and likewise reached his base.

Lt. Stanley C. Black, Helena, Mont., said large explosions "shot my plane upward 2,000 feet and turned it over on its side. Another shot it upward again and turned it on its back."

4 Blasts Rock Ship.

The arsenal produced anti-aircraft guns, artillery, machine guns, rifles, shell cases, bombs and fuses. It included a steel mill, chemical works and research laboratory.

Japs Move Children.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

American Super Fortress attacks on Tokyo, Nagoya, and Osaka moved the Japanese government to announce a new evacuation system for primary school children, while the diet [parliament] discussed urgent raid relief measures, Tokyo radio reported yesterday.

REPORT 5 DEAD, 15 SURVIVORS IN COAST CRACKUP

San Carlos, Cal., March 14 (AP).—A large transport plane, carrying 20 or more persons and lost in a heavy storm, pancaked into a hillside five miles south of here tonight, and eyewitnesses said 15 persons survived. They were injured severely, however, and "four or five" others were reported dead.

The plane was flying from San Pedro to Oakland.

18 MONTHS WITH 'FIGHTING FIRST'—STILL TOO YOUNG

BY JOHN THOMPSON.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

WITH U. S. 1ST INFANTRY DIVISION, Germany, March 14.—In October, 1943, the boy was 16, and the war seemed an exciting adventure. It tugged at his blood and he enlisted in the army.

Pvt. Charles Maley.

He signed up under the name of his brother, Charles, who was older, and went to England, to the 1st division's 18th regiment. During the long maneuvers and training, the boy listened avidly to tales of fighting in Algeria, Tunisia, and Sicily, and he longed for combat alongside the battlewise veterans of this division.

He got his first combat on Omaha beach [Normandy] on D-day, June 6. Swinging his Browning automatic rifle [B. A. R.] the boy fought inland with his regiment, and in no time at all they were calling him "Hotshot Charlie."

Learns About Shelling.

The boy learned about war the hard way, learned about the slap bullets make when they hit a man, learned about mortars and artillery shells.

Charlie and his BAR sprayed their way thru the Normandy hedgerows, thru the St. Lo break-thru, across France and Belgium, thru the Siegfried line into Aachen, and then into the bloody Hurtgen forest. During the first night's forest fighting the regimental ranger platoon suffered heavy casualties. When volunteers were asked for this dangerous work, Hotshot Charlie was one.

Caught in an intense artillery barrage, the boy was wounded in the hand and sent to a hospital. His parents were notified, but by then his brother Charles was overseas, too, with the 87th division, and their father was somewhat confused about who was wounded.

Rejoins Old Regiment.

Hotshot Charlie came back to his old regiment in time to join them on the hot corner near Bullingen when Von Rundstedt broke thru into the Ardennes.

He was still fighting this month, on across the Cologne plain, when the boy's father received another telegram stating that Charles had been seriously wounded somewhere in Germany. This was the real Charles. It was time, thought their father, to notify the army of the true situation regarding the two Charleses.

It was just after the regiment had captured the small town of Rath. Hotshot Charlie was cleaning his rifle in platoon headquarters of Company G when orders came for him to pack up and report to regimental headquarters.

Hotshot Charlie isn't unhappy about going home. He wants to see his folks again. But after he's reveled in home life for a while, Hotshot Charlie thinks he'd like to sign up with the merchant marine.

It may be a surprise to his family at 4028 Ottawa av. in Chicago when Hotshot Charlie comes home to resume his right name of Pvt. Robert Michael Maley. Lines of character are in his face, strengthened now by his experiences. But they won't see the youthful freshness of a boy of 17.

For Hotshot Charlie has been to war. And the boy has become a man.

"FEELING FOR ADVENTURE."

Mr. and Mrs. Harold Maley said yesterday that they are proud of their son, Robert, and his military achievements as "Hotshot Charlie." "He always was a mischievous boy in a wholesome way, with a feeling for adventure," Mrs. Maley said.

When Lane Technical High school teachers came to the home after he enlisted, to inquire why the youth wasn't in classes, the parents didn't know and didn't find out until they received a letter from Robert, mailed from France shortly after D-day.

"We'd like to see the 'real Charles, too," Mrs. Maley said. He is in a hospital in England.

A Veteran at 17

(Story in adjoining column.)

Pvt. Robert Michael (Hotshot Charlie) Maley, who enlisted in the army under the name of his brother, Charles, served thru the campaign in France, and now is returning, at 17, to his home at 4028 Ottawa st.

ALCAN HIGHWAY CALLED MISTAKE, LIKE CANOL JOB

Army Ripped in Senate for Bullheadedness.

BY PHILIP DODD.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., March 14.—The 139 million dollar Alcan highway to Alaska was denounced in the senate today by Sen. Magnuson [D., Wash.] as the first of the army's "mistakes" in developing costly projects in northwestern Canada. A second mistake was the 134 million dollar Canol oil project, he said.

Magnuson leveled his charge at the army after Sen. Moore [D., Okla.] had blasted the army for "incompetence" and a "bullheaded and arbitrary attitude" in insisting on the construction of the Canol oil line and pipe line in northern Yukon. Last week the army announced the project soon will be abandoned.

"Apparently," Magnuson said, "the United States army again had admitted a mistake in building in that area [western Canada]." He charged the army had built the highway at a cost to date of 139 million dollars without prior consultation with the Alaska international highway commission.

May Be Abandoned.

"That highway," Magnuson told the senate, "as has recently been indicated by the army, probably will be abandoned also. The Canadian government itself has told the people of this country it does not think it can maintain the southern end of the highway and make it a reasonable commercial highway."

Sen. Shipstead [R., Minn.], interrupting Magnuson, said the highway had been built over the "vigorous protests" of people acquainted with the terrain over which the army laid the route and who said the work could not be done.

"But there are some individuals in Washington," said Shipstead, "who get an idea and then put it thru no matter what it costs, altho they later come to the conclusion that it should not have been done, no matter how much money has been spent on it."

Doubts Army Wisdom.

Moore, in his denunciation of the Canol project, demanded that the job of disposing of the property be taken away from the army and given to the surplus property board.

"The army said the properties are to be offered to Canada under an option to buy at the present appraised value," Moore said. "In view of the incompetence displayed by the army in connection with this project, I seriously doubt the wisdom of permitting the army to negotiate for the disposal."

Moore described as "silly and child-like" the army's explanation to the senate war investigating committee that the Canol project had proved the feasibility of conveying oil by pipe line in cold climates.

SPANISH STUDY ABROAD URGED FOR TEACHERS

Instructor Exchange Recommended.

Scholarships and sabbatical leaves which would require high school Spanish teachers to spend time in Latin American countries would raise the level of instruction in schools in the United States and in time would lead to a teacher exchange profitable to both North and South America, a University of Chicago faculty member said yesterday.

Dr. Carlos Castillo, associate professor of Spanish literature at the university, who is compiling a Spanish-American dictionary of the 10,000 most used words, said that a system of teacher exchange would result in better classroom instruction, but would require great administrative talent to prove successful.

Chicago Rule Cited.

Dr. Castillo affirmed a statement by Dr. William H. Johnson, superintendent of Chicago's public schools, that while the results from Spanish instruction in Chicago's high school compare faborably with those of any other city, Spanish teaching presents an unfavorable picture thruout the country.

Several years ago the Chicago schools adopted a rule that any language teacher, to obtain a job here, must have a master's degree and must present a statement from his college that he is fluent in the language he seeks to teach.

Since the rule was adopted, Dr. Johnson said, no new teachers have been hired here. It will work in the future to raise the instruction level in high schools but not until there is a need for teachers, he said.

Says Few Can Converse.

Few language teachers in the country's high schools are able to converse in a foreign language, altho they may be well versed in grammatical structure and can read and write the language they teach, Johnson said.

Johnson said he is an advocate of the "direct" method of teaching Spanish—of conversing in Spanish in classrooms so pupils learn to think and speak in Spanish—but teachers are free to follow any method they find most useful.

Dr. Castillo said that the University of Chicago requires students seeking a master's degree in Spanish to pass an oral test, demonstrating they can understand and respond in Spanish.

Residence in a Latin American country is not required, but many students voluntarily go to Mexico and elsewhere to prepare themselves better as teachers, he said. Numerous classes for seniors and graduate students are conducted in Spanish, and the teachers trained in the last few years have been capable of teaching pupils to speak in Spanish, he said.

FIND COLOGNE INDUSTRY DEAD, BEYOND REPAIR

BY JOHN THOMPSON.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

COLOGNE, Germany, March 14.—Except for the huge American owned Ford Motor company works and Courtauld's, British owned textiles plant, industrial Cologne has been 90 to 95 per cent destroyed. There is almost no chance of rehabilitating this city's large industrial structure.

These estimates were given today by Maj. Robert T. Davis, former vice president of the Rogers Fibre company of Kennebunk, Me., who is in charge of commerce and industry for the military government here. Davis said he had made a preliminary survey of 126 industrial plants, but that final figures probably would be the same.

Plants of a few small firms may have escaped destruction, he said, such as the Bemag corporation factory on the southern outskirts. Altho surrounded by bomb damage, the plant of the Bemag company, manufacturers of heavy mihing machinery, was not hit. No large plant in the thickly settled area of Cologne's manufacturing district, however, escaped.

Non-Nazi Property Escapes.

This destruction of German industry made all the more startling the immunity of the Ford and Courtauld plants. The Ford plant, which had been manufacturing three ton trucks for the German army, is five miles north of Cologne, in the suburb of Niehl on the Rhine just below a large bend in the river. The Courtauld plant is half a mile away on a wide plain. They stand alone, as conspicuous as the raisins in bread pudding.

Courtauld's received two bomb hits, one in the rayon mill and one in the woolen mill. But considering the size of the plant and the diversity of its departments, Davis said, the damage was negligible. Courtauld mills had been manufacturing rayon and synthetic wool from wood fibers. The products were woven for use by the German army as cloth and in the manufacture of parachutes.

Covering between four and five blocks, the Ford plant was operated until just before Cologne was entered by United States 1st army troops on March 6. The Germans, however, had moved its cam shaft line to a site east of the Rhine. Sixteen freight cars were loaded with other machinery but the swift approach of the Americans prevented moving them.

Air War Cuts Output.

At the start of the war the Ford plant discontinued making pleasure cars and at the direction of the Nazi state concentrated on producing the three ton trucks for the army. Each month it manufactured and assembled 1,800 trucks, 6,000 extra motors, and 1,200 tons of spare parts.

Because of a lack of transport, American planes having damaged railroads and rolling stock, plant production last month slumped to 200 trucks, the general manager, Robert Hans Schmidt, said.

Davis found Schmidt at Schmidt's country home several miles from Cologne. Numerous minor executives and other key personnel were living in comfortable underground bunkers at the plant. Some 400 working men, many of them Poles, Czechs, etc., also lived there in other air raid shelters.

The plant was the usual model of Ford efficiency, neatness, and organization, said Davis. The workers were fed at a cafeteria and a company doctor cared for those who became ill in the shelters.

Courtauld's general manager, also a German, who did not flee, complained that foreigners, meaning such displaced personnel as the French, Belgians, Poles, and Russians, had flocked into his clean air raid shelters, knowing there was food and comfort there for the German workers and staff.

Industrialists to whom Davis has spoken all referred to the allied bombings in October as deadly. However, they said, a few plants managed to repair some of the damage and return to limited operations. Then the bombing on March 2 finished off about everything in the industrial area.

RETAILERS BOO, CROSS-EXAMINE OPA OFFICIALS

Food Dealers Complain at Mass Meeting.

Resentment of retail food dealers against harassment by the office of price administration spilled over last night when 500 grocers and butchers booed James F. Riley Jr., acting metropolitan area OPA director, and S. S. Lane, an OPA attorney.

The booing took place at a mass meeting in the Grand ballroom of the Midland hotel, 172 W. Adams st., sponsored by the Food Retailers of Greater Chicago, Inc., and the Retail Meat Dealers' Association of Chicago.

Speakers included R. C. Pollock, general manager of the National Live Stock Meat board, James H. Black, president of the Wholesale Grocers' Association of Chicago, and Riley.

Subjected to Questioning.

Riley urged the coöperation of the retailers in a new OPA enforcement program which he said will be announced soon, and then made the tactical error of inviting questions.

"The trouble is," one elderly retailer asserted, "that the people who set these OPA prices don't know the grocery business. A law you can't enforce is a law that's no good."

Lane attempted to explain that the markups are fixed on a percentage basis, and that on one item, grocers make as much as 75 per cent profit.

"What is it?" some one shouted. Lane's answer was lost in a chorus of boos.

Says Big Fellows Escape.

"Why aren't wholesalers required to post ceiling prices?" another grocer wanted to know. Riley said he didn't know, and Lane said that wholesale ceiling price lists were available for grocers' inspection.

"That isn't the point," the questioner insisted. "You make the little retailer post ceiling prices, but the big fellows don't have to."

Another grocer wanted to know why he had to pay seed potato prices for potatoes for use as food. Lane told him if he did, he was violating the law. This was greeted by more boos.

"Well," said Riley, "they are mostly patriotic people, largely housewives, who devote an afternoon or two a week to it, and with that kind of help, you are bound to make mistakes."

Pollack told the dealers that with meat production more than 2 billion pounds under last year, the government is taking more than last year, which means much less for civilians. Black predicted continued shortages of virtually all foods, including butter. Sugar supplies, he said, will be adequate.

Welcome Home

Maj. Robert W. Ball, 28, who fought for two and a half years with Filipino guerrillas on Mindanao, Samar and Luzon Islands in the Philippines, arrived from the west coast yesterday to report to Fort Sheridan and spend a leave with his sister, Mrs. George Ryan, 7242 Constance av. His mother, Mrs. Ward A. Martin of Central City, Colo., accompanied him. His father is Lester H. Ball of 318 Ridgeland av., Waukegan.

Maj. Ball, who was a bomber radio operator when the Japs attacked the Philippines, was taken prisoner on Mindanao. He escaped five weeks later and joined the guerrillas. He established radio contact with American forces, established other stations on Samar, and set up the first military intelligence radio station on Luzon. The stations transmitted military intelligence and weather reports and aided in the preparations for Gen. MacArthur's return.

He participated in attacks by 50 guerrillas on Jap patrols on Luzon before a navy bomber evacuated him with a sergeant, who had been shot thru the throat, and two rescued navy flyers.

SCHOOLS REOPEN AT GARY TODAY AS STRIKE ENDS

Schools of Gary, Ind., closed since last Thursday by a strike of 130 janitors, members of local 123-A of the Building Service Employes union [AFL], will reopen this morning.

The janitors agreed yesterday to return to work. The union and the school board issued a joint statement agreeing to negotiate a statement of labor policy, providing for submission of differences to arbitration, binding upon both the union and the board, and providing that there shall be no work stoppage during arbitration.

Board members said the strike had cost the schools $37,500 in lost teachers' salaries, and 500,000 pupil hours of instruction. A total of 21 schools had been closed since the strike started.

Edward T. Doyne, president of the Gary school board, said the janitors will receive pay for the five days they were on strike, but that no change is contemplated in this year's school budget relative to salaries or hours.

BRITISH SAY BIG SUPPLY STOCKS HAVE BEEN CUT

here recently to discuss measures to increase the flow of vital supplies, other than finished munitions, to the liberated allied countries and to ascertain what they need to restore their economies.

Reports circulated in the United States that Britain had huge reserve stocks were termed a misapprehension by officials of several British ministries. They said that stocks which Britain began building up in 1940 against a threatened German invasion already had been poured back into civilian channels or released for a pool of allied supplies which the United States, Canada, and the United Kingdom have sent to the continent since D-day.

300,000 Tons to France.

This combined civilian relief program, War Minister James Grigg said in commons yesterday, has sent more than 300,000 tons of food to France, Belgium, and Holland, 150,000 to 200,000 tons to Greece, and more than a million tons to Italy. Deliveries to France and Belgium are averaging 7,000 tons daily, he added.

Tho Grigg emphasized that "these supplies have been a joint United States, United Kingdom, and Canadian responsibility," both the British war office and the food ministry refused to give a breakdown of the percentages contributed by each of the three sources.

Altho a member of the Rosenman mission had said British reserve stock piles of food are "very substantial" tho the exact quantity is a secret, a food ministry spokesman insisted that all invasion reserves except some "bulk stores" have been released into normal trade channels.

Loaned to France.

The stores still held include cooking oils, sugar, fats, and other such items that can be preserved in bulk. Some of these supplies, which were cached in 1940 in 8,000 warehouses, are being loaned to France to relieve shortages until the French again can obtain supplies from the colonies. Paris reports have indicated that Britain will send 7,500 tons of fats and has been asked for 400,000 tons of coal a month.

Altho a food ministry authority declined to disclose the quantities of bulk stores being maintained, a board of trade index indicated that the food reserves on hand last January were 13.4 per cent lower than on the corresponding date in 1944.

The same secrecy is maintained regarding clothing supplies on hand in this country as well as the "considerable" quantities sent to the liberated lands. A board of trade spokesman admitted there were large stocks of raw cotton and wool in warehouses, but said the supply of finished materials for clothing was limited. The retailers' association recently protested to the government that unless more labor was released to manufacture raw material into clothing, there might not be enough clothes to meet ration demands.

Clothing dealers were informed nine months ago they might dip into stocks of essential clothes set aside in 1940 against possible heavy losses due to bombing. However, the board of trade index stocks of wearing apparel on hand in January, including materials, clothing, boots, and shoes, were 4 to 20 per cent below 1942 when the average quality on hand equaled two to two and a quarter months' requirements. Compared with last year the decline in such items ranged from 7.7 to 34.9 per cent.

In the raw materials field, a spokesman for the ministry of supply said not much is stocked here aside from what various plants are able to hold for their own reserve use. Dispersal of these stockpiles of steel scrap, iron, and iron ore at plants thruout the country makes it possible to obtain the exact figures on reserve supplies tho board of trade figures show stocks of nonfood merchandise at almost 13 per cent below the 1940 level.

The only raw material which seems to be in a strong position here is timber, large stocks of which are set aside for the repairing of air raid damage.

A spokesman for the ministry of reconstruction said, however, that reports of huge reserves were based on a complete misapprehension of the situation. He explained reports that the country has more than it did in 1940 by pointing out that reserves then were below the minimum safety line, but now have been restored to a safe level.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., March 14.—The federal public housing authority has awarded contracts to 28 companies for the construction of 23,000 prefabricated houses which will be sent to England under lend-lease to relieve the housing shortage there where 4,500,000 dwellings have been destroyed or damaged by enemy action, the FPHA announced today.

Cost of the materials is estimated at 50 million dollars. Delivery of the houses will begin by the end of April.

Joseph E. Merrion, Chicago, president of the National Association of Home Builders, said in Chicago last week that shipping 30,000 complete houses to England will mean that only 350,000 home units can be built in the United States in the first post-war year.

NORWEGIANS NOW 'ALL OUT' TO SABOTAGE NAZIS

Food Crisis Is Serious; Imports Shut Off.

BY JOSEPH HEARST.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., March 14.—Norway, its people approaching the starvation level of subsistence after nearly five years of German occupation, did not begin its all-out job of sabotaging Nazi activities in Norway until the allied invasion of France started, embassy spokesmen said today.

Working under direct orders of the supreme allied command, the home front forces—as the Norwegian underground is called—did not engage in widespread sabotage until it was of the greatest military value.

But when the invasion of France started it was the signal for the all-out effort in Norway, and since then the underground has been blowing up railroad bridges, destroying freight cars, and blasting fuel dumps and factories despite the presence of 12 German army divisions, approximately 140,000 men.

Directed from London.

"The home front forces take their orders from the Norwegian supreme command in London and it works under orders of the supreme allied command," explained Tor Myklebost of the embassy staff. "Today Norwegians are in the odd position of doing everything possible to prevent the Nazi occupation army from leaving their country.

"This is by order of the allied command. When seven German divisions, driven out of Finland by the Finns and the Russians, were moved south, the underground harassed them by blowing up bridges along the rail route they followed. At Fredrickstad 12 tugboats the Germans had assembled to take German troops to Germany were stolen by the underground."

Myklebost said Norwegians have been forced to pilot boats for the Germans and that no one showed concern when the Norwegian crews manned the boats, then sailed them down the bay under the guns of German manned coastal batteries.

Sailed Ships to Sweden.

"The crews merely sailed the boats to a Swedish port, where they left them to be interned, and then made their way back to Norway," he said.

Early in the war the underground was instructed not to engage in sabotage that was not of military value to the allies and which would only expose members of the organization to capture.

"That is why our methods have been orderly and effective," Lt. Arne Haugland, another embassy spokesman said. "In one night the underground blew up nine factories in one small area. Moreover, by close coördination with the allied command, Norway has been saved from heavy bombing. When it is necessary to destroy a certain factory, for example, the underground tackles the job first. If it can't do the job then the bombers are used. But the first method usually works, and civilians are not subjected to bombing."

Hit Vital Departments.

Haugland said the Norwegians, trying to save their factories for post-war civilian use, sabotage only divisions of plants rather than the entire structure.

"They have found it effective, say, to blow up electric transformers and the facilities for repairing transformers, thus cutting off electric power for weeks without destroying the buildings," Myklebost said.

"At Rjukan the Germans were using a big plant to make acids and chemicals, and a raid by American bombers was not very effective," he continued. "The home front forces solved the job by sinking the ferries the Germans had to use to get the finished products out to the railroad. Finally the Nazis abandoned the project."

Many Patriots Slain.

Many Norwegian patriots have forfeited their lives to the Nazi gestapo for their underground activities. As of Feb. 17 the Germans announced they had executed 312 Norwegians, but Myklebost says the exact number of patriots who have been tortured to death, shot "while escaping arrest," and who have died in concentration camps is not known. Nothing has ever been heard of 800 Jews the Germans sent from Norway to Poland in 1943.

In eastern Finnmark, at the northern tip of Norway, the Germans, fleeing from the Russians and Finns, put their scorched earth policy into effect. In Hammerfest, the world's northernmost city, only one building was left standing and the 4,000 residents were scattered. Scores of villages were razed and inhabitants left to live in makeshift sod and dirt houses despite the arctic temperatures. An estimated 30,000 Norwegians were driven from the area south to where the German occupation army still has control.

Many Died of Cold.

"We don't know why they took these people south with them," Myklebost said. "The mass evacuation occurred around Christmas, when there is no daylight in that region. Many died on the roads in the bitter cold."

As German troops were driven out of Finnmark, Norwegian troops, trained in England, moved into the area. They were accompanied by civilian authorities who reëstablished civilian administration in the liberated area under an agreement made months earlier among Russia, the United States, and Great Britain, the spokesmen said.

Unless Germany is defeated soon starvation is a real threat to Norwegians, Haugland said. Today the people have no meat, butter, or eggs. There is a small ration of milk for children. A meal generally consists of dried fish, potatoes, turnips, and a tea made from native leaves.

"Norway has always been dependent on imports for food and now the Germans cannot send it in," he said. "Food stocks are just about depleted. The country will be near a starvation basis after Easter."

MORE TRIBUNES ORDERED FOR U.S. PACIFIC TROOPS

BY JAN JABULKA.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

HONOLULU, T. H., March 14.—Higher press runs for the Hawaii edition of the Chicago Overseas Tribune, printed for American troops in the Pacific, were ordered again this week.

The Overseas Tribune is well in its second year of service to Chicagolanders and other middle westerners on duty in the west. It continues to reach more military readers weekly by fast transport planes on what are undoubtedly the longest "circulation" routes in the world.

Routes the Overseas Tribune flies stretch from Hawaii deep into the South Pacific, to New Caledonia, to Espiritu Santo in the New Hebrides, and up to Guadalcanal in the Solomons.

High Army Priority.

Immediately after coming off the presses in the plant of the Honolulu Advertiser, editions of the paper are sent to the air transport command warehouse. There, under a high priority established for them by the army command here, the papers are taken aboard transport planes. Within a matter of hours later, the papers are delivered to post exchange officers on the various islands in the South Pacific and southwest Pacific theaters of war and made available to the fighting men.

Most of the Overseas Tribunes, however, are sent to the main post exchange warehouse for distribution thruout the central Pacific, Lt. Gen. Robert C. Richardson Jr.'s command, which extends from Hawaii westward to the Marianas.

In charge of Central Pacific distribution is a Chicagoan, Lt. Col. S. E. Edelstone, former commanding officer of the Central Pacific base command exchange service. Col. Edelstone, whose home is in Hotel Ambassador West, Chicago, is on leave from civilian duties as president of the Dupli-Color Products, Inc., and Majestic Stores, Inc., Chicago.

"The Men Like It."

Explaining his latest order of 2,000 additional Overseas Tribunes to be flown weekly to Saipan, 3,200 miles west of Hawaii, Col. Edelstone, who has now taken a new command post, said:

"THE CHICAGO OVERSEAS TRIBUNE is a good newspaper and deservedly popular with our troops. The men like it for its splendid assortment of comics and its excellent full page pin-up. It is printed in the same size type as the regular TRIBUNE and is therefore easy to read."

The base command exchange service staffs serve and supply one of the largest and most widely spread troop commands in the American army.

Acknowledging that the Overseas Tribunes are of inestimable value as factors in the morale and welfare of our troops, the army spares no effort to establish deliveries to all garrison points in this vast command.

As an illustration, last year when American forces invaded Saipan, and before the island had been won, the troops sounded a call for newspapers. The exchange service, despite the crush of materiel and technical personnel that was being constantly flown out to implement the battle forces, managed to get a few Tribunes aboard the Saipan bound planes. Later, as the critical cargoes lessened, more Tribunes were sent.

The Hawaii chapter of the American Red Cross has coöperated in the distribution of thousands of copies of the Overseas Tribune since its establishment here 14 months ago.

News While It's News.

The Red Cross puts together weekly scores of "bomber bundles" consisting of Overseas Tribunes and other necessities called for by men stationed on remote atolls and islands too small for the establishment of regular post exchanges. Cargo and bomber pilots take the bundles aboard their planes on regular and bomber ferrying runs for distribution along their isle studded routes.

Calls for the Overseas Tribune are increasing as more troops of the central Pacific command move into the forward battle areas. The exchange service tries to fill these demands as they occur, but deliveries sometimes present a problem.

Due to the distances involved, newspapers can't be dispatched to battlefronts by surface craft. The news would be stale by the time the editions reached our troops. Transport planes therefore are employed.

OWI Sells Papers in Manila.

Washington, D. C., March 14 (AP).—The office of war information has begun publishing commercial newspapers in Manila, but says it will withdraw from the field "just as soon as a privately owned newspaper, capable of doing the same job, is produced." The Free Philippines [English] and Malayang [Tagalog], which used to be circulated free by the OWI, have been enlarged to four pages and are being sold. Advertisments also are being accepted.

BLASTS BIDDLE FOR LAXITY AND RED FAVORITISM

Failure to Prosecute War Frauds Criticized.

BY WILLARD EDWARDS.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., March 14.—In the stiffest arraignment of Atty. Gen. Biddle heard in congress since the war began, Rep. Jones [R., O.], today assailed the justice department head on three counts:

Rep. Jones.

Atty. Gen. Biddle.

1. Laxity in the prosecution of war frauds.

2. Legal favoritism towards communists, notably exemplified in the negotiated reentry of Mrs. Earl Browder, wife of the Communist leader, and commutation of Browder's four year sentence for passport fraud.

3. Release from the penitentiary of Willie Bioff and George Browne, convicted labor extortioners, who operated in the Hollywood film colony.

Cites Need for Reformers.

Jones, a ranking minority member of the appropriations subcommittee which allots funds for the justice department, said the subcommittee hearings clearly demonstrated the need for sweeping reforms in the agency.

Appalling waste, mismanagement, and fraud in the war program have been clearly shown in the estimate of the controler general that the government stands to lose 50 billions of dollars, he declared, but Biddle has done little in an attempt to prosecute the culprits or recover some of the vast sums lost.

"The hearings disclose that the claims division has actually collected only $500,000 in war fraud civil actions," he remarked. "Laxity is a mild word to use when you compare that paltry sum with the tremendous figure of 50 billions mentioned by the controler general."

Mrs. Browder's Case.

Jones said the evidence taken by his subcommittee revealed how "Mr. Biddle opened the arms of Uncle Sam to Mrs. Browder, wife of the No. 1 Communist." The Russian born Mrs. Browder was advised to go to Canada and reënter the United States, where the politically-appointed board of immigration appeals in the justice department accepted her testimony under oath that she was not a Communist nor had ever been connected with a Communist organization.

"This was done despite the record that Mrs. Browder was librarian in the Lenin school at Moscow which teaches soviet propaganda, was a delegate to a Communist party convention, and repeatedly referred in public speeches to the Communist party as "our party," Jones said.

"I have always suspected Biddle of kissing around with the Communists and this record proves it," Jones concluded.

New Standard of Procedure.

Commenting on the probation of Bioff and Browne, who were sentenced to 10 and 8 years in the penitentiary, but later given probation for turning state's evidence, Jones said the justice department had attempted to deny responsibility for release of the racketeers.

"The testimony of Judge Knox, senior judge of the District court of New York, before our subcommittee, placed responsibility squarely upon the justice department," he told the house.

"The handling of this case sets a new standard of criminal procedure. It is significant to me that the justice department did not inform the judge about the $2,000,000 which Browne and Bioff unlawfully took from the union they headed when they were brought up for probation.

"Biddle once said the New Deal was tied up with the labor movement. Apparently the tie-up is with crooked labor leaders rather than the honest laboring man."

"I'm very busy," Maj. Gen. Jens Doe, 53, commanding the 41st infantry [Sunset] division on Mindanao Island in the Philippines, said in a letter received yesterday by his brother, Dr. A. C. Doe, 541 Aldine av., a dentist. The general's mother, Mrs. Ragnhild Doe, the widow of Dr. Anders Doe, a physician who practiced in Chicago for many years, lives at 810 Lakeside pl.

Gen. Doe has been on duty in the Pacific for three years. He wears the distinguished service cross, the Purple Heart, and the silver star. A graduate of the United States Military academy in 1914, he served in the last war as leader of the 14th machine gun battalion, which participated in the Meuse and Argonne battles. For six years after World War I. he served under Gen. Stilwell in China and later was on the military academy faculty.

A native of Chicago, Gen. Doe was graduated from Crane Technical High school. His wife, Betty, and daughter, Camilla, 11, live in Carmel, Cal.

SEN. McKELLAR STRICKEN ILL AFTER SPEECH

Washington, D. C. March 14 (AP).—Sen. McKellar [D., Tenn.] became ill late today in an anteroom of the senate chamber, and was placed under the care of a physician. The nature of his illness was not immediately determined but after treatment he told reporters he was better. McKellar, 76, had completed a speech just before he became ill. The senate, of which he is president pro tem, adjourned for the day because of his absence.

HOUSE REJECTS SENATE BILL TO CONTROL LABOR

BY LAURENCE BURD.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., March 14.—The controversy over proposed compulsory labor legislation was tossed into a senate-house conference committee today after a house coalition attempt to speed passage of the senate-approved job control bill failed by 34 votes.

The 10 conferees—five from each house—will thus face the problem of trying to compromise between two widely divergent labor control measures. The house bill, strongly pressed by the administration, calls for an outright labor draft of men 18-45, with fine and prison penalties for those failing to take designated jobs.

The senate measure places no direct controls over individual workers, but would give Man Power Commissioner McNutt power to set employment ceilings in all businesses and to prohibit or permit hiring of new workers.

Coalition Fights Plan.

A coalition of most house Republicans and 42 Democrats opposed sending the legislation to conference today, and sought to obtain house approval of a bill similar to the senate measure, on the theory it was a fairer and less drastic labor control program. The vote for a conference was approved, however, 211-177, and the senate concurred a few minutes later.

While decision to throw the snarl into the conference committee was claimed by administration supporters as a New Deal victory, many members predicted the move will delay for weeks the enactment of any man power legislation, and may postpone passage indefinitely.

Administration leaders in the house claimed a victory on the theory that the house conferees may force the senate members to swallow all or part of the drastic house bill.

Warns of Enslavement.

Other members predicted, however, that a majority of senate conferees will hold out for the upper chamber's measure, and suggested a stalemate may result, thus virtually killing any chance for man power legislation. Approval by a majority of conferees from each house is required before any proposed measure can be returned to the floor for a vote by the membership.

Rep. Halleck [R., Ind.], leading the house fight for approval of the senate version, charged the house bill was an unnecessary attempt to "enslave" American workers, and that more emphasis on voluntary labor mobilization was needed.

The house conferees are Representatives May [D., Ky.], Thomason [D., Tex.], Brooks [D., La.], Andrews [R., N. Y.], and Short [R., Mo.]. All except Short voted for the house bill.

Senate conferees are Thomas [D., Utah], Johnson [D., Col.], O'Mahoney [D., Wyo.], Austin [R., Vt.], and Burton [R., O.].

NEW YORK LIFE INSURANCE COMPANY

100th Annual Statement to its Policyholders

THE COMPANY will be one hundred years old on April 12, 1945. Since beginning business in 1845, it has paid to policyholders and beneficiaries over $6,000,000,000. As it completes its first century, the Company has in force its greatest amount of life insurance.

Our centennial, while significant in the history of the Company, comes at an especially significant time in the history of the nation. The war, with the additional duties and responsibilities it imposes upon all of us, has been a primary influence affecting the Company as an institution and also the officers, agents and employees individually. More than 1,970 members of the New York Life organization are now serving in the armed forces. Twenty-two have already lost their lives in the service of their country.

Although there have been five wars during the 100 years since 1845, the past century has been a period of great development for the country. Through all those years, the New York Life has played its part in the nation's social and economic growth. As the Company emerges from its first century, it reaffirms its faith in the stability of our fundamental American institutions.

Foremost of these institutions is the family. With it goes the family's freedom to participate in the nation's progress towards a better civilization, and the right to protect the fruits of hard work and perseverance. In America and Canada, where we live, this freedom to participate, and the right to protect, is assured by our representative form of government. It has enabled us to attain our present high standards of living and family security. But while our form of government can assure this freedom of opportunity, it is the responsibility of the individual family to avail itself of that opportunity by constant effort and savings. Freedom of opportunity and individual effort must be inseparable if we wish to maintain security and insure progress. Under the circumstances, it is natural that life insurance as an institution should have had such a remarkable development and should have become so increasingly important during the past one hundred years.

Through life insurance, New York Life policyholders erect the fortifications of security for their families and for themselves. But not only do the funds of this Company improve and protect the financial position of the individual family; they are at the same time acting in the service of the country as a whole. Before life insurance funds go back from the Company to policyholders or beneficiaries in accordance with the terms of the policy contracts, those funds become available for employment in the economic life of the people in the form of investments or loans. In normal years they help finance the pursuits of peace. In war years they help in winning the war. Indeed, over 54 per cent of all the Company's assets are now invested in United States Government securities helping to finance the war.

The growth and development of the Company during the past half-century are illustrated by these interesting comparisons:

|---|---|---|---|
| Payments to Policyholders and Beneficiaries | $15,665,003 | $116,174,621 | $182,029,816 |
| Number of Policies Outstanding | 277,600 | 1,456,194 | 3,292,584 |

Throughout the years, the Company has recognized that the confidence of its policyholders must be based on a strong foundation of security. Prior to 1899 the Company assumed that it would earn in excess of 4 per cent on highest grade investments and it had been using a 4 per cent interest factor for life insurance premium calculations. However, in 1899, in view of decreased investment yields, the Company adopted a 3 per cent rate for new policies. This change added to an important element of safety behind the Company's future contracts. During the past year, because of the still lower yields which now prevail, the Company has again strengthened its reserve basis by changing its interest rate assumption for new policies from 3 per cent to 2½ per cent.

As we come to the end of our first century, we look back on a long life of service to the greatest of American institutions, the family. And as we enter our second century, we look forward to the opportunity in the years to come of even greater service to the family and the nation.

President

RED CROSS GIFT IS NOT WASTED IN PACIFIC ZONE

Real Service Performed for Fighting Men.

BY HAROLD SMITH.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PACIFIC FLEET HDQ., Guam, March 14 [Via Navy radio].—Millions of contributed American dollars, spent and administered by conscientious men and women of the American Red Cross in and behind the lines, are bringing aid, comfort, and companionship to our fighting men scattered over the Pacific.

This is an inescapable conclusion to any one who has lived and moved among our lads who are doing the splendid but distasteful job of winning the war out here. To be sure you hear some criticisms of the Red Cross, but mostly from those who have never gotten anything from it. You see some things to criticise, but they are not the rule and can be matched in any large organization.

You see, now and then, an unworthy wearer of the Red Cross uniform but the proportion is no greater than it is in the services or even the correspondents corps. Infrequent shortcomings of Red Cross service will usually turn out to be shortcomings of individuals, just as they are in the army, navy, or marine corps.

Work Fills Big Need.

Weighing the good and bad seen and spoken of this big, altruistic establishment you conclude without hesitation that cessation of its work would leave a large void in the welfare of our fighting men, to compensate for which would take time, money, and energy from the prosecution of the war. As a civilian contributor, who can see how his Rer Cross dollars are being spent, you continue to give ungrudgingly.

Several thousand men and women staff the Red Cross program in the Pacific ocean area. They are headed by the area commissioner, Stanton Griffis of New York City, executive of Paramount Pictures and Madison Square Garden, more recently known as the man who cut the flow of aviation ball bearings from Sweden to Germany.

His deputy commissioner is Bowen McCoy of Los Angeles, Cal. Pacific ocean area activities are divided between the forward area with headquarters in Guam, of which E. C. Bryant of Ottumwa, Ia., is director of operations, and the Southwest Pacific area headquartered in Noumea, New Caledonia, and headed by Stanford Oksness of Bemidji, Minn.

Liaison Man in Chicago.

Bryant formerly was Red Cross military liaison man in Chicago. Zone directors for Southwest Pacific are Hugo Fischer of Minneapolis, Minn., who heads New Caledonia activities, and Bob Clarke, an Iowan, responsible for the work in Guadalcanal and adjacent areas. In the forward area the directors are Wilbur Adams for Saipan and Tinian, William Hoffman for the 5th amphibious corps, and John Undercoffer, former Cincinnati, O., attorney, for Guam.

Red Cross facilities are maintained on nearly every Pacific island where there are fighting men. There are dozens of such establishments out this way, each staffed by field directors and their assistants as well as women service workers. Bryant and his assistant, Karl Reiser of Toledo, O., estimate there will be 300 or more on Guam alone soon after mid-year.

Shine in Hospital Service.

Red Cross club service includes not only spots for men to lounge about, read, and play games but also facilities for handicraft, plays and props, and expert advisers for home talent shows, music rooms with well stocked record albums, and other adjuncts of life's softer side for which military authorities cannot spare the time or effort. Each club has its snack bar and information booth.

But it's in hospital service where the Red Cross shines particularly. The writer yesterday visited a Guam field hospital which is receiving many of the Iwo casualties and saw first hand how civilian dollars are reaching directly into these citadels of pain and heartsickness to aid in the very start of the tremendous job of rehabilitation.

Red Cross Arranges Party.

The hospital's Red Cross headquarters was busy to capacity. Two girls with the aid of the convalescent boys were assembling the props for a birthday party for a serious abdominal case who as yet knew nothing of the honor he was to be paid. The girls proudly showed 40 iced bottles of soft drinks they had "found" for the bedridden guests.

One girl was writing a letter home for a wounded boy she had talked out of not writing. Another went from bed to bed smiling her pleasure at the sallies of old friends she had made in the last few days.

"Those Red Cross gals are off the top," said a strapping, young marine whose right leg, smashed by a Jap hand grenade, was encased in a bulky case. "They're better than nurses, in a way. They have more time to talk and they're not always giving us shots or pills."

Special Casualty Kits.

We were shown small kits passed out among the bedridden. One kit called for the sanding to shape of building scale models to be used for dioramas in battle briefing. It was conceived by a Red Cross worker for the battle fatigue cases.

Casualties are met by Red Cross workers at the airport where they are handed special kits containing sweets and knicknacks. If they are able to pass thru the organization's evacuation center they get cigarets, candy, coffee, and a smile and a word of comfort from a cheerful worker. Most of the boys already have their evacuation kits handed them by the 16 Red Cross men on Iwo, most of whom are attached to aid stations. The kits contain soap, towel, razor blades, and a toothbrush.

Liaison work between the fighting men and his home affairs is an important function of the Red Cross. "We have thru our agencies in every American community probably the greatest intelligence organization in the world," a Red Cross official said. "We can and do find out what the worried fighting man wants to know about dad's job, mother's appendectomy, the wife's childbirth, junior's brush with the probation officer. There's nothing we don't cover."

Union Dispute Threatens to Close Many Theaters

Hollywood, Cal., March 14 [Special].—Hollywood movie producers today found themselves thrust into a third party role in a real life triangle that was threatening to close not only their studios but also thousands of theaters in the United States and Canada.

The other parties are the Conference of Studio Unions and the AFL International Alliance of Theatrical Stage Employes.

Back of the three day old strike that has crippled the major studios is a clash between the AFL painters' union, supported by the Conference of Studio Unions and the IATSE over recognition as the bargaining agent for some 70 studio set decorators. Seventeen thousand persons, mostly office and technical workers, are on strike.

Ask NLRB to Decide.

In a temporary award, the war labor board decided in favor of the painters, whereupon the IATSE petitioned for a review by the WLB. The producers entered the picture by asking the national labor relations board to decide the case, saying the IATSE had threatened to pull its men out of the studios if the producers recognized the painters' union as the bargaining agent.

Hearings are going on before the NLRB, but a decision under ordinary procedure will take many more days.

Accusing the producers of ignoring the WLB ruling, the painters, backed by the conference and other groups, went on strike. The IATSE, thru Richard A. Walsh, its president, retaliated by threatening to close movie theaters in this country and Canada if the producers yield to the painters.

"Couldn't Shut" Movies.

"If the producers recognize the other organization over our protest," Walsh said on his arrival here today, "then we will have to move against the showing of their pictures."

Herbert Sorrell, president of the Conference of Studio Unions, replied to Walsh's theater closing threat by saying:

"In the first place, Walsh couldn't do it, and in the second, it would wreck his union if he tried."

Walsh went into a series of conferences with E. J. Mannix, president of the Association of Motion Picture Producers, and Actor George Murphy, president of the Actors' guild. He branded the WLB order as "compulsory arbitration" and charged the painters' local with "coercive methods."

Ignore Union Chief.

In the meantime, L. P. Lindeloff, international president of the painters' union, whose headquarters are in Lafayette, Ind., called on the studio painters to end their strike. Sorrell said he had no comment to make on Lindeloff's appeal.

Altho crippled by the absence of the employes, the major studios managed to keep operating today, but the situation admittedly was growing more serious.

Eight unions, in addition to the painters, make up the conference. They include screen set designers, illustrators and decorators, studio machinists, cartoonists, office employes, publicists, story analysts, and special office and grounds employes.

Among other groups who have voted to support the strike are 2,600 AFL carpenters not allied with the conference, the Screen Office Employes' guild of 3,000 members, and the culinary workers.

A crucial stage in the strike, as far as the studios are concerned, will come Friday night when the Screen Actors' guild meets to take a strike vote. Representatives of the rival unions were invited to appear.

THREE WORKMEN BURIED ALIVE.

Picher, Okla., March 14 [AP].—A thousand tons of rock, cascading from the top of a pile in the tri-state lead and zinc mine fields, buried three workmen alive today. A rescue squad dug out the victims but all were dead.

GREEN, KELLY OKAY TRANSIT BILL CHANGES

Act Is Expected to Pass Despite Hostility.

BY GEORGE TAGGE.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Springfield, Ill., March 14.—Amid a flurry of proposed amendments, senators, representatives, and witnesses today whacked away at the bills to create a Chicago metropolitan transit authority with power to buy street car, elevated, and bus lines thruout most of Cook county.

Mayor Kelly repeated in the house his appeal to the senate for speedy passage of the bills. He was a spectator during the whole day's hearings.

Altho the atmosphere was tinged with hostility, few doubted that the bills will go thru after more consideration.

Additional debate on the measures will be held next Tuesday and Wednesday.

A burglar alarm went off during the senate chamber session of the public utilities committee. It continued a loud clatter for 20 minutes, making testimony difficult to hear. The nature of the signal was later ascertained at the state treasurer's office, where an employe tripped a switch.

Approve Several Proposals.

Gov. Green and Mayor Kelly approved several of the proposed amendments. One provides for competitive bidding for the 87 million dollars initial securities of the transit authority in the hope of finding the lowest possible interest rate.

Another change forbids the authority to take over transit lines operating entirely within a suburb without approval of voters in a referendum or by local ordinance. A third amendment will require that the governor's three appointments to the seven man transit board be made with the advice and consent of the state senate.

Urges Safeguards.

Douglas Sutherland, executive secretary of the Civic Federation of Chicago, testified that the authority should be required to set fares high enough to meet not only bond and interest charges but all operating costs, including snow removal. Chicago Surface Lines now must remove snow from rights of way, and the Chicago Motor Coach company pays the Chicago park district for snow removal, he said.

"If these safeguards are now placed by amendment in the bills," he said, "the transit authority board can never incur a deficit without violating the law."

Sutherland also urged curbs upon political activity of employes as well as members of the board. Taking over the L and surface lines alone will add about 20,000 to the present 56,000 local public employes in Chicago, he noted.

An amendment was submitted providing that no employe or board member shall hold any other office or job under federal, state, county, or municipal government.

Gets More Control.

Werner W. Schroeder, Chicago attorney, and State Revenue Director Collins represented Gov. Green before the senate public utilities committee headed by Sen. Knox [R., Chicago] and the house public utilities committee of which Rep. Sandquist [R., Chicago] is chairman. Kelly's views were transmitted thru Philip Harrington, Chicago subway commissioner, and Joseph F. Grossman, first assistant corporation counsel of Chicago.

There is nothing really new in the proposed setup, Schroeder said. The old cities and villages act empowers Chicago to acquire utilities, he said, and the water system created a method of financing thru revenue bonds. Under the Kelly-Green bills the state is given a larger share of control than it has now, he said.

6 Per Cent of Business.

Pointing out that the Chicago Motor Coach company is profitable, Sen. Giffin [R., Springfield] wants to know why rail transit should not be abandoned in favor of all-bus transportation. Springfield no longer has street cars.

"Chicago Motor Coach has only 6 per cent of the total business, has the best route and a 10 cent fare," Harrington replied. "We do plan, however, to substitute buses for street cars on a number of lines, with new type steel cars on routes with heavy traffic. Outlying streets would get buses as soon as we could get them."

Seek New Street Cars.

Harrington also said that other large cities are not turning entirely to buses, that they are even now placing orders for new street cars.

Louis Ancel, Maywood corporation counsel, urged that the right of appeal from rulings of the board as to fares and service be written into the bill. He also advocated a requirement that all board hearings be public as a safeguard against the "tremendous powers" of the board.

Must Record Meetings.

"The bills require that minutes of meetings be kept," Schroeder said. "As to appeals, it was found that salability of city water revenue bonds depended largely on the power to charge adequate rates. Historically, courts favor rates high enough to pay bonds."

Normal political expediency will operate to keep fares as low as practicable, he maintained.

A peroration by William R. Morgan, former special assistant attorney general on traction matters, was summed up by Sen. Dick [R., Quincy].

"Here we have the most important question of all," Dick said. "Why doesn't the plan include the Chicago Motor Coach company, which makes the best profits and uses the best streets?"

Public "Skeptic."

Grossman answered that no specific properties are mentioned in the bill, but that undoubtedly the transit authority will purchase the bus line "if it can make a good deal."

Frank J. Bilek, president of the Cook County Civic council, reported widespread skepticism among senators and the public generally.

"Why all the hush-hush and then all this hurry to jam thru bills with which the people are not acquainted?" he demanded to know from the senate rostrum.

"More safeguards ought to be put in. The referendum on the plan should be postponed from June 4 until the April, 1946, primary election. The Chicago city council is on record unanimously for the bills but at this writing the council is not representative of the people."

"More Fish Oil."

Bilek was asked whether he agreed with the contention that the property tax exemption of the proposed transit system, equivalent to a 4 million dollar a year subsidy, would be offset by increased property values.

"That's more fish oil," he said.

In the house hearing most of the questioning was carried on by Rep. Cutler [R., Lewistown] and Rep. Searle [R., Rock Island], chairman of the judiciary committee. They were frankly dubious if not plainly hostile about the many features of the bills.

Searle pointed to the provision that the governor and mayor must agree upon each appointment to the board. Not always, he said, will the governor and the mayor of Chicago "be in the same bed" and what then?

Collins replied that the pressure of public opinion would compel an agreement upon some candidate for the board.

SLUM CLEARING PLAN PRESENTED TO LEGISLATURE

State Senate Committee to Initiate Hearings.

BY ROBERT HOWARD.
(Chicago Tribune Press Service.)

Springfield, Ill., March 14.—The Green-Kelly program for rebuilding slum areas was introduced today in both houses of the Illinois legislature and was scheduled for a senate committee hearing next Wednesday.

Ald. Tindell, chairman of the Chicago council committee on housing, and Ald. Kells, who has taken a prominent part in slum clearance proposals, will head the delegation of Chicagoans which will ask emergency passage of the bills.

Mayor Kelly, here in behalf of the traction program, said he did not plan to return for the slum clearance hearing. Kelly and Gov. Green are sponsoring both bills.

Duplicate Bills Offered.

Sen. Collins [R., De Kalb] is chairman of the senate committee on municipalities, which was given custody of the housing bills, introduced jointly by the rival floor leaders, Sen. Laughlin [R., Freeport] and Sen. Daley [D., Chicago. Duplicate bills went into the house, bearing the names of Rep. Homer B. Harris [R., Lincoln] and Rep. Sullivan [D., Springfield], but the municipalities chairman, Rep. Van Der Vries [R., Winnetka], said she would give right of way to the senate committee hearing.

The program calls for Chicago to authorize a 5 million dollar bond issue at the June 4 election and for the state to put up an equal amount to be used in buying, thru condemnation proceedings, blighted dwellings and adjacent vacant lots. The appropriation bill was held up, however, pending advancement of the rest of the program, which contemplates a 90 million dollar federal grant.

Property acquired for slum clearance could be sold or leased to private corporations or other investors. One of the bills in the series would encourage life insurance companies to invest in neighborhood redevelopment projects.

Counties Could Unite.

From two to five counties could unite in forming a housing authority under another of the bills, and the governor made a bid for downstate support by saying that slum areas need replacement in "practically all of the cities of Illinois, large and small."

He said in a statement that "the need for low rental housing is one of the most pressing problems we face" and that any city could take the slum clearance initiative under the bills, thereby getting in line for future federal loans.

Sen. Walker Butler [R., Chicago] introduced the first of the bills agreed upon by a special committee seeking taxation and assessment uniformity thruout the state. It provided for creation of a new office, that of assessment supervisor in downstate counties.

Gov. Green told reporters that he assumed the Chicago port authority bills, on which he has collaborated with Kelly, would be the next introduced, but that he has had "no detailed discussion" regarding their status.

House passage of the airport authority act under which a number of downstate cities plan to issue bonds, levy taxes, and get federal grants for new or bigger flying fields, again was stalled when several representatives said they could not understand supposedly clarifying amendments submitted by Hugh J. Dobbs, Springfield corporation counsel. Sponsors of the airport program said they would have the amendments, agreed upon in principle by conflicting interests, straightened out by next week.

Both houses will hold perfunctory sessions tomorrow, transacting minor business, but most of the members had gone home this evening.

2 AFL LEADERS FOUND GUILTY IN EXTORTION CASE

New York, March 15 [Thursday] —(AP).—Joseph S. Fay and James Bove, American Federation of Labor leaders, early today were convicted on one count of extortion and one count of conspiracy in their trial before a state Supreme court jury.

The decision was announced at 2:35 a. m. The defendants had been described by Justice William H. Munson as two of the country's most powerful labor leaders.

The special jury began deliberations shortly before noon after an hour long charge by Munson in which he said the issue was whether money received by the defendants from contractors on New York City's $300,000,000 Delaware water project was paid as a bribe or after a threat.

Fay, 51, vice president of the International Union of Operating Engineers [AFL], and Bove, 44, former vice president of the International Hod Carriers, Building and Common Laborers union [AFL] were accused of conspiracy to extort $703,000 from the contractors and having extorted $420,000.

'PINBALL' PLANE SHARPENS EYES OF AIR GUNNERS

Dayton, O., March 14 (AP).—One of the army's newest and fastest fighter planes, the Bell P-63 Kingcobra, has been turned into a "flying pinball machine" to sharpen the eyes of America's aerial gunners.

Gunnery students using bullets made of lead and plastic and designed to shatter into powder on contact with armor plate blaze away at the Kingcobra target and see their hits recorded on lights flashing in its cockpit and its propeller hub.

The system, developed by the air technical service command at Wright field, permits gunnery students to simulate combat conditions to every extent except anti-aircraft fire and return fire from the attacked plane.

SENATORS COLD TO MOVIE TICKET PRICE CEILINGS

Washington, D. C., March 14 (AP).—The OPA's proposal for ceilings on movie prices gained admission to the senate banking committee today and, like a summer time movie goer, found it "20 degrees cooler inside."

There were indications that this time the "freeze" would be on the OPA, altho Price Administrator Bowles was invited to appear Tuesday and argue for his recommendation.

The committee discussed Bowles' proposal, made yesterday in a letter to Chairman Wagner [D., N. Y.], in a closed session.

Wagner afterward told reporters the members "generally were of the opinion that they know of no reason to justify" extension of price control to movie tickets.

HURLEY PLANT DEFIES ORDER TO SIGN CONTRACT

Accuses RWLB of Bad Faith in Dispute.

The Hurley Machine division of the Electric Household Utilities corporation yesterday announced it would not comply with a war labor board order to sign a closed shop contract with a CIO union as long as the union did not have a majority of the workers in the plant as signed memebers.

Thomas R. Mulroy, company attorney, issued the refusal shortly after Edgar L. Warren, regional WPB chairman, had threatened to send the case to Washington for Presidential action unless the firm signed a union contract by next Wednesday. Warren said if the dispute is referred to the national board, the company, engaged entirely in war work, might be seized by the army, as were the Montgomery Ward & Co. plants.

Regional Board Accused.

Mulroy charged the regional board with lack of good faith. He said that when the board called the company in for a show cause hearing Feb. 26 to demand why it did not sign the contract, as ordered by the board in January, it was given leave to file a petition that was "entirely ignored" in yesterday's order. The petition was filed, he said, March 5.

The dispute, Mulroy said, involves wage raises as well as the union contract, asked by local 1150 of the United Electrical, Radio, and Machine Workers [CIO]. The board previously ordered an 8½ cent general average wage increase for all employes, and ordered the company and the union to arbitrate its distribution.

Company Offers Higher Rates.

The union, Mulroy said, wanted to give each employe the 8½ cents, which would not have increased the take-home pay of piece and incentive workers who are paid more than base rates. The company insisted on distributing it to iron out intraplant inequities, as ordered by the WLB, he said, and voluntarily offered to add to the raise to give all workers more money in their pay envelopes. This plan would have cost the company considerably more, he said, but the union refused to agree to it.

Altho the union is certified by the national labor relations board as workers' bargaining agent, its membership totals only 45 per cent of the plant employes, Mulroy said.

Wage Boosts in Three Plants.

Warren said increases of 7 to 14½ cents an hour for workers in three plants were approved by the board yesterday. The 350 employes of the G. M. Laboratories, excluding toolroom workers, are to get 14½ cents an hour increase, retroactive to Jan. 11, 1944. The board also ordered a 7 cent an hour general increase for 317 employes of the Ludlow Typograph company.

Another order gave 140 workers employed by Kroll Brothers company a flat 10 cent an hour increase.

While history shows that the Indians were definitely the first "scalp specialists" in America, it also shows that science has come a long ways since those pioneer days. The modern "scalp specialists" have no flair for the Wild West—in fact they are expert in the art of bringing soothing, restful, relief to scalps that itch and burn because of local irritation (such as dandruff).

Thomas experts have treated more than a quarter-million persons during the past 20 years (and never lost a scalp)! Such popularity IS deserved . . . deserved because Thomas quickly removes those aggravating dandruff scales and leaves your scalp feeling fresh, clean, and healthy. ## SCHLAEGER HAS A PEEVE; KELLY IS ITS NAME

Treasurer Ready for Joust with Mayor.

BY JAMES DOHERTY.

On March 5, County Treasurer Schlaeger's candidate for alderman of the 10th ward was defeated by Mayor Kelly's candidate.

And on top of that, Schlaeger disclosed yesterday, on the morning of March 6 some of Mayor Kelly's policemen arrested six of Schlaeger's deputies for doing what never before had been regarded as unlawful: Parking for a few minutes in front of the county building.

Schlaeger, who like Kelly is a Democrat, said the action wasn't a hint; it was a notice. He could take a hint, he said, and he had to take the notice, but he is going to be county treasurer for nearly two years more, and he has 400 good jobs to hand out.

Democrats Draw Conclusions.

Court action on the arrests is scheduled for today. But, whatever happens, Democrats were asking: Was Mayor Kelly reading Schlaeger out of the party? Was Kelly purging Schlaeger because he fears Schlaeger may oppose him for mayor? Anyway, it appeared that Kelly and Schlaeger had come to the parting of the ways, veteran politicians asserted.

Schlaeger is young in years, but no novice in politics. He is regarded as a power in the Polish Alliance and he was elected clerk of the Superior court before being chosen for his present job. He lives in the 10th ward, of which Rep. Rowan is Democratic committeeman.

The ward has a large Polish Democratic vote and Schlaeger has been regarded as its spokesman. Schlaeger backed Max Pieczynski, nephew and secretary of the late Ald. William J. Pieczynski, to fill the vacancy created by his uncle's death. Rowan sponsored Emil Pacini, and Mayor Kelly lined up with Pacini.

Mayor's Candidate Wins.

Schlaeger said the mayor told him he was going to support Pacini but Schlaeger continued his efforts in behalf of Pieczynski. Pacini won, 10,322 to 9,518 in the run-off election on March 5.

"The next day the traffic police put arrest notifications on six cars marked County Treasurer's office," Schlaeger said. "The cars are used by our levy squads, who report at 8:30 a. m. and are in the office from 10 to 45 minutes. They always parked their cars on Clark st. or on Randolph st. and never before was there any objection. It has been done for 20 years."

Tag, You're It Again.

Chief Clerk William Lake said he thought the first arrests were the result of a mistake, so he sent the arrest notifications to Police Commissioner Allman. They came back in the next day's mail, and again the six cars were tagged with parking violation notices.

"Allman and Capt. David Flynn of the traffic detail told us the arrests were not the result of any mistake on their part," Lake said. "We're to be in court tomorrow before Judge Joseph B. Hermes."

"I'll be there, too," said Schlaeger.

Salute!

One of our Schenley boys is back home. The Gripsholm brought him back. He was pilot of a bomber, and on his thirty-third mission, his ship was crippled over enemy territory. His 'chute was crippled too, but he landed where the snow was eight feet deep and that saved his life—that and something else. We'll tell you more about that "something else" later on.

When this fine lad (just like yours and mine) regained consciousness, he found himself in the hospital barracks in a German prison camp. For nearly a year he was "behind the wire"; then he was exchanged and is home once more. He's going to be perfectly well again—for civil life, and as soon as the Army flashes the green light on him, he'll be back at Schenley. You can wager that he'll do a better job than he ever did before, because he's got something he never had before.

And now, more about that "something else." We wish you could hear this fine lad tell you in person, as he told us, what the RED CROSS did for him, and thousands like him, when he landed in the snow and while he was a prisoner. We know what would happen to you. You'd reach for your check book or down in your "jeans" and the RED CROSS would get a contribution from you—bigger than any you have made before. The gratitude of these boys is the biggest "dividend" we'll ever receive. The money we give, is the soundest "investment" we have ever made.

RED CROSS! SALUTE!

WLB PUTS OWN RULINGS ABOVE FLORIDA'S LAW

Virtually Tells Firms to Ignore Constitution.

Atlanta, Ga., March 14 [Special].—Florida's "right to work" amendment, which forbids restrictions on any person holding a job because he or she is not a member of a union, and was incorporated in the state constitution by a 25,000 majority in a referendum last November, came into head-on conflict with the war labor board today—and came out second best, as far as the WLB is concerned.

The regional WLB, by a 6 to 3 decision, ruled in four separate cases that it has the power to order Florida concerns to ignore the Florida constitution in making labor contracts.

The decision was issued in the face of a threat by Florida's attorney general, J. Tom Watson, that firms complying with it will face penalties up to and including revocation of charter if they are Florida corporations and loss of license to do business if foreign corporations.

Radio Station Involved.

Cases acted on involved a radio station in Miami and three cigar box manufacturing firms in Tampa. The WLB ordered the radio station to continue a closed shop contract with Radio Broadcasting Technicians, local 1360, an affiliate of the AFL International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers, and ordered the cigar box companies to enter into maintenance of membership contracts with the AFL carpenters' union.

When the decision was announced, Robert E. Brumby, chairman of the industry representatives on the board, said all three industrial members voted against it and denounced the ruling as putting Florida employers in "a precarious position."

"The board has taken the untenable position that the constitution of the state of Florida shall be disregarded at the behest of the RWLB," he said. "As patriotic citizens, the employers may be inclined to abide by and follow the directives of the board. If they do so, then, in the opinion of the attorney general of Florida they will be doing an illegal act under Florida law which will subject them to penalties."

AFL Leader Jubilant.

George Googe, southern representative of the AFL, applauded the board's ruling and said that if the board recognized the police power of states in labor cases it would also have to recognize city ordinances and in that event "industrial chaos would surely develop."

The "right to work" amendment was described by its sponsors last year as an effort to prohibit the closed shop in employment while specifically preserving the right of collective bargaining. It provides that "the right to work shall not be denied or abridged on account of membership or nonmembership in any labor union or labor organization."

The radio station is WFTL, Miami, recently acquired by the Fort Industry company. The question before the RWLB was whether a closed shop contract between the technicians' union and the former owner, Ralph A. Horton, should be continued in effect. The company said it had no objection on principle to the closed job but had been compelled to withdraw its acquiesence to continuation of the contract by adoption of the right-to-work amendment.

Appeal Is Considered.

"We must remember that we are doing business in Florida and must do our best to abide by the laws of this state," Robert G. Venn, general manager of the station, said at Miami tonight. He added he would seek advice of counsel before deciding whether to appeal.

Companies involved in the cigar box cases were the Tampa Box company, the Enterprise Box company, and J. W. Young & Co. In these cases the union had sought a closed shop contract and a RWLB panel had recommended a contract with a maintenance of membership provision. This provision was regarded by Atty. Gen. Watson as prohibited by the amendment.

CIO SLOWDOWN KEEPS 830 IDLE AT GARY PLANT

Tin Mill Closes as 56 Spurn WLB Order.

Because 56 workers on the tinplate hot pickling line at the sheet and tin mill of the Carnegie-Illinois Steel corporation in Gary, Ind., heeded orders of a CIO union official to decrease production rather than increase it as they had been directed to do in a war labor board order, 830 employes were without work and were sent home, and war production at the plant was paralyzed yesterday.

Production loss caused by the slowdown, which started at midnight Sunday, was estimated yesterday by company officials to be 3,000 tons of tin plane and 2,200 tons of ship plate.

Sunday the WLB directive, which called for the increase in production of pickled tinplate from the normal rate of 180 feet per minute to over 200 feet per minute, was put into force by the company.

Told to Ignore Order.

The 56 pickle line employes increased the production as ordered by the company superintendent on two occasions, but then lowered it to from 135 to 150 feet a minute after George Romanyak, 35, of 1447 Madison st., Gary, grievance committeeman for local 1066 of the United Steelworkers of America [CIO], told them to ignore the WLB order, company officials said.

Twice since midnight Sunday the 56 workers, who are employed on three separate shifts, were sent from the plant by management and charged with insuberdination.

Yesterday morning they returned to their jobs and produced the required rate of 200 per minute, but the company said they used "dilatory" tactics, which resulted in an over-all lower rate of production.

Again Sent from Plant.

Again they were sent from the plant, and because their low production rate had left other workers in the 42 inch and 80 inch rolling mills and in the cold reduction department without work, nearly 800 were sent home and these departments were shut down in the afternoon.

The WLB directive, which also would have increased the piece work earnings of the workers if they had maintained the increased production, was received by the company last week.

POLICE TO GUARD GERALD SMITH'S RALLY TONIGHT

Gerald L. K. Smith, organizer and leader of the America First party, said yesterday that a spokesman for the party has asked for a special detail of police to guard Temple hall of the plasterers' union, 330 S. Marshfield av., where Smith will address a rally tonight. The police told him there will be no shortage of patrolmen there, Smith said.

[The America First party has no connection with the disbanded America First committee.]

Smith said that counterfeit tickets to his meeting are being distributed in Chicago and explained he has appointed a committee of 12 to examine all tickets at the door and reject those which are spurious.

Calls Protection Proper.

"When officials of the plasterers' union receive 100 telegrams warning that there will be possible bloodshed if I attempt to use the hall I have rented from them, that seems to me to be the proper place and the proper time for police protection," Smith said.

Hundreds of telegrams, telephone calls, and letters, protesting against the union's action in renting the hall to Smith poured in on officials of the plasterers' union. However, Thomas Dowling, union secretary, said that recent communications protesting against any move to deny Smith his civil rights of free speech and assembly have far outweighed the anti-Smith sentiment.

Promises No Deletions.

Smith said that admission to the hall will be by ticket and that the tickets already have been distributed among his followers in accordance with the hall's capacity. It seats about 1,200.

"I am going to say tonight exactly the same things that I have been saying all over the country," Smith said, "and there won't be any deletions because I don't have anything to delete."

PEARL HARBOR MUST NOT BE REPEATED.

It is now officially admitted that Mr. Roosevelt proposes to admit nations which had no part in the wresting of the Japanese Pacific bases from the enemy into joint partnership in the control of these strategic islands after the war. The system, loftily referred to as "trusteeships," is to be submitted to the San Francisco conference on the Dumbarton Oaks security proposals, convening April 25. It is a further step to commit this nation irrevocably to an international order in which we are relegated to a secondary and subservient status.

Thousands of Americans have died on the bloody beachheads of Roi, Namur, Parry, Eniwetok, Peleliu, Saipan, Tinian, and Iwo Jima. The sacrifice of these heroes is to be in vain if Mr. Roosevelt has his way. The British, the French, and even, conceivably, the Chinese and the Russians, none of whom has delivered a stroke which has caused any injury to Japan in the warfare in the islands, are to move in and raise their flags beside our own over the cemeteries of American dead.

Directly after the Yalta conference THE TRIBUNE prophesied that Mr. Roosevelt would indulge in this further sell-out of American interests if he were not restrained by the indignation of the people. The confirmation is before us. By now it must be apparent to any but the most infatuated that we are afflicted with a leadership utterly indifferent to the rights and interests of this country and with not the slightest intention of preserving faith with the valiant dead.

We are called upon to waive the unchallenged title established by the sacrifice and heroism of our youth in bases vital to the security of America. We are to welcome in as equals, if not superiors, those who have made no significant contribution to the defeat of Japan. These fighting ineffectives are to receive equal benefits with us from what was solely an American expenditure of blood and treasure.

Even more senseless in any consideration of Mr. Roosevelt's proposed betrayal is the fact that the allies who are contemplated as joint "trustees" have shown an unbroken record of failure in attempting to meet the Japs as equals in every passage of arms. Only the United States has proved capable of inflicting defeat after defeat upon the Japanese enemy. In sharing the custody of the bases we have seized from Japan we should be hampered by military incompetence which would prove a drag upon our own efforts in any future conflict.

What is to be gained from an association with the British, who were driven to surrender at Hong Kong in 18 days, at Singapore after a 38 day Japanese campaign in Malaya, who lost Burma in two months, who could not even offer the semblance of a struggle in Sarawak and Borneo, whose Gilbert Islands mandate was taken from them without even a show of resistance and won back at such terrific cost by our marines at Tarawa? What aid should we expect from a British fleet which lost the battleship Prince of Wales and the battle cruiser Repulse the first time they ventured out against the Japs?

What assistance would be forthcoming from a Dutch empire which was impotent to defend its possessions in the Indies? What would China contribute—a nation disorganized and unable or unwilling to fight the invader effectively? What would Russia bring to our cause? It is a nation which has been unwilling to take on the Japs, and which will come into the war, if at all, merely to add to its spoils by territorial aggrandizements in Asia similar to those conceded it by Mr. Roosevelt in eastern Europe and the Balkans. It has no fleet worthy of the name to help us in the Pacific and no experience with amphibious operations.

When the British and the Dutch made Singapore and Batavia and their other bases available to us the gesture was meaningless because these countries could not retain their grasp upon the bastions they boasted were impregnable. We should be warned by the experience. The inclusion of such allies in a program to maintain security in the Pacific will bring us no positive aid; but it will burden us with an undependable military board of directors which will be quick to tell us what decisions we must take in their own interest and what strategy we must pursue, not for our benefit, but for theirs.

We have had one Pearl Harbor. We must never have another. We must not transplant the factors that led to collapse at Hong Kong and Singapore and in Sumatra and Java into the bases from which we can keep Japan under restraint. The walls of Troy were sufficient for the defense of the citadel. They were without avail once the wooden horse was brought inside.

NEWS FOR SOLDIERS.

The 51st general hospital, now located at Leyte in the Philippines, publishes a mimeographed newspaper for army patients called the Convalescent Courier. An editorial in an issue received by THE TRIBUNE observes, "One of the biggest beefs, particularly amongst those who have been overseas a long time, is the lack of uncolored news. They feel the army publications aren't enough. They are afraid of losing touch with vital issues at home which hit them personally."

An incident that came to light in connection with the publication of the European theater edition of the army newspaper Stars and Stripes gives point to the complaint of the soldiers in the Philippines. An editorial purporting to support the work draft bill which received such fervid salesmanship from Secretary of War Stimson appeared in Stars and Stripes. It was supposed to reflect the soldier attitude toward this proposed legislation.

Sen. Aiken pointed out that the Associated Press took the trouble to investigate the publication of the editorial and discovered that it had been placed in the newspaper after what protesting G. I. staff members called brass hat interference with their editorial discretion. The editorial turned out to have been written by a lieutenant colonel and was inspired by a cablegram from Mr. Stimson's right hand man, Under Secretary Patterson.

"When we are talking about replacements in the army," commented Sen. Aiken, "I think we are speaking of replacements in the wrong place. The replacements should be made at the Pentagon building, right at the top."

Here is uncontroverted evidence that the Roosevelt administration is meddling with the contents of service publications and doctoring editorial opinion to suit its own purposes, with the connivance of the secretary of war. Is it any wonder that THE TRIBUNE has sought—so far, it must be admitted, without success—to gain authorization from the war department to publish an overseas edition in Paris? Is it any wonder that the war department has refused permission for an independent newspaper to bring the soldiers news? Is it any wonder that the soldiers are sick of getting only the kind of predigested news the New Deal and its agents choose to give them?

STALIN DISPOSES.

Marshal Stalin in a lordly manner has informed the new government of Romania that he is pleased withit and is therefore handing back to it the province of Transylvania, which Hitler had conferred upon Hungary in 1940. The Romanians are given to understand that the gift is from Stalin personally and is to be construed as a measure of his munificence, magnanimity, and paternal interest in Romania.

Romania may have a good claim to Transylvania, but Stalin has no right to dispose of this part of the world as if it were his personal fief. His message investing title to the territory made no mention of any of his allies or of what the wide-eyed one-worlders refer to as the "united nations." The Romanians were left with the impression that the great man had got up from the breakfast table feeling good that morning and had decided to spread a little cheer.

When King Michael decided to take Romania out of the war last August he did not surrender his country to Russia alone. He announced that Romania had accepted armistice terms offered jointly by the soviet union, the United States, and Great Britain. When the armistice was signed Sept. 12 it was signed with all three allies, and one of the conditions was that they should return Transylvania. In return for that Russia was to get 300 million dollars in reparations. None of the other allies got anything, but that is understandable, for Marshal Malinovsky of Russia fixed the terms, "acting," so he said, "in the interest of all of the united nations."

British and American commissions later were installed in Romania, supposedly to act in combination with the Russians, but were consistently given the brush-off. Later there were complaints that the Russians were dismantling the equipment of the Ploesti oil refineries, in which Britons and Americans had interests, and shipping it off to Russia. About the same time Stalin began handing down unilateral decisions governing the future of Poland, the Baltic states, Yugoslavia, and other Balkan countries, and Mr. Roosevelt and Prime Minister Churchill began panting to be off to Yalta to restrain him.

The Crimean conference was heralded as putting an end to these high-handed procedures. The Stalin-Churchill-Roosevelt communique flatly declared that there would be "mutual agreement to concert, during the temporary period of instability in liberated Europe, the policies of their three governments." There was to be consultation and joint action. And now Stalin on his own has deposed one Romanian government, installed another to his liking, and disposed of a territorial question so that Russia gets all the credit, and in none of these actions, on the basis of available evidence, has he recognized any partners or consulted them.

This episode over Transylvania is a measure of the extent of coöperation to be expected under the Dumbarton Oaks program, which our giddy internationalists acclaim as the guarantee of unity among the great powers in imposing order upon an unruly world. Mr. Roosevelt and Mr. Churchill are simply ignored by their friend in the Kremlin. Decisions are made out of hand by Stalin on his own and submitted as accomplished facts. Mr. Roosevelt's role is to bow and smile. Perhaps he will yet win us another compromise whereby we are privileged to hold Stalin's coat while he cuffs around a few more helpless people like the Poles.

TO KEEP THE RECORD STRAIGHT.

Gov. Green's letter to Sen. Vandenberg, stating the proposition that the men who fight the war must approve the peace, brought a reply from the senator approving the sentiments, but asserting that the fighting men are represented by "one of their own" in the San Francisco league of nations delegation. The reference is to Comdr. Stassen.

Just to keep the record straight, it can be recalled that Mr. Stassen jumped directly from civilian life to the rank of lieutenant commander in the navy. While former civilians who entered the navy with lower rank were risking and sometimes losing their lives in command of landing craft and on other hazardous assignments, the former governor had a comparatively bomb-proof job as aide [errand boy] to Adm. Halsey. His service record is as phony as his Republicanism.

A LINE O' TYPE OR TWO

Reg. U. S. Pat. Office

WHAT A NAME!

"Storied Zamboanga," as Walter Simmons calls it in a dispatch from the Mindanao front, bears one of the most picturesque names in the atlas. It ranked with Mandalay for oriental allurement in those faraway times of piping peace when palm tree islands in the Pacific were idyllic and the Japanese were merely a quaint little people. Its story, however, is quite vague to us, for the books within our midnight reach are fairly reticent on the subject. We wish Walt would send more about the legends of Zamboanga.

* * *

The Moros, so-called by the early Spanish colonists because of their Mohammedanism, are around and about this place, and the Spaniards built a citadel there as headquarters for operations against Moro piracy. To this refuge came slaves who had fled from their Moro masters, seeking the protection of the noble Spaniard, and they were a mixed lot, representing various races and tribes upon whom the Moros preyed. Many of the old Zamboanga native families are said to be descended from these refugees.

* * *

With this in mind, one may suspect a Spanish influence in this name. So we turn to a Spanish dictionary, and find that "zambo" means a cross between an East Indian and a Chinese, which seems to be a permissible definition of an early Zamboangan. Incidentally, a Spanish patois is spoken by most of the natives, and it is called Zamboangueno.

* * *

George Ade dallied with the subject of Zamboanga, we think, in his early musical comedy, "The Sultan of Sulu." But we are confident that he didn't try to rhyme anything with it, because there are no rhymes for Zamboanga. A lyric writer's only hope would be to use a colloquial pronunciation, Zamboangy, and then match it with "fangy," "clangy," and "slangy." Better effects could be achieved, however, with the lawless pronunciation of Zamboango. This would bring in such well-established tin-pan alley rhymes as "fandango" and "mango," and also the name of another storied town, Pago-Pago [pronounced "Pango"], where Sadie Thompson and the Rev. Davidson had their trouble in the play called "Rain."

How much you signify to those in need!
Selfless, unwearied, the service that you pledge,
Unprejudiced by race, or rank, or creed.

No bitter sting of cold, no desert heat,
No tragedy of land, or sea, or air—
No frightening holocaust, no rampant flood
But finds your ever faithful servants there.

The hungry, sick, and troubled ones of earth
Have looked to you—but have not looked in vain;
Under your banner help has come to those
Who called in famine, sorrow, or in pain.

Wherever you go, whatever you do,
Wherever your missions of mercy lie,
The hearts of countless thousands go with you.

Rise and Fall of L'Art Moderne.

It happened at an exhibit of "moderne" art where a group of clubwomen were being enthralled. The lecturer posed languidly against a background of paintings that ruthlessly exposed nature's mistakes in anatomy, perspective, and color. Beside him was a small table with rubber tired wheels, on which stood a jar containing an armful of peonies and a gallon of cold water. The jargon continued:

". . . From this central canvas with its post-impressionistic logic of pattern, to the adjacent one with its sense of elemental hauntings, we feel the vibrations of an instinctive artist dominating what may be called the argument of the picture. We also sense an insistent response to the essential form which underlies the mere outward surface of nature, and there we witness this superb artist triumphing over superficial crudities and achieving the Grail of his inward searchings——"

The speaker paused to let this revelation sink in; with studied grace he leaned against the extended table leaf. Instantly that frail support flopped over and the jargonist collapsed on the floor under a deluge of peonies and cold water. For a moment there was a stunned silence, then sanity returned in an explosive gale of hilarity. The lecture remains unfinished business.

THE HAPPY TRAVELER.

(For Burton Holmes' 52d Season.)

Gay rainbow lands of western wilderness,
The mighty, canyoned rivers, source to sea;
High, snow-proud mountains, cold and measureless,
And ancient walls of Mayan mystery:
So, one more year, the piper woos each mind
To distant scenes in soft and curious strains,
And we, like children, follow and so find
How wistful grandeur all its own regains.
Forgetting all the grievous cares that lie
Upon frail hearts in tragic heritage,
As beauty still, in the beholder's eye,
Renews its splendor in bright pilgrimage,
We journey homeward to the happy land
All men may some day share—and understand.

W. C. C. asks: "How is the rate of payment determined by the veterans administration rating board for a person who has suffered multiple injuries? Is the percentage of disability just lumped together? What is the limit of payment, if any?"

When a veteran has suffered multiple disabling injuries, each injury is rated separately and then combined to form the total payment awarded. Usually a temporary rating is given on the basis of the service records as they come to the veterans administration. Later the individual receives a thoro physical examination to determine the extent and nature of his "residual disability," and, on the basis of the examination, a relatively permanent disability rating is made. Usually when there is no loss of function or body member, the top is 100 per cent disability [$115 a month]. If there is loss of function or body member, additional specified amounts may be granted, including, where necessary, nurse's or attendant's fees. The temporary award also may include a "recuperation" award if the veteran is physically unable to enter employment for a time.

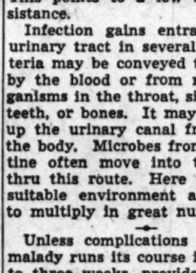
WHEN BACTERIA INVADE THE URINARY SYSTEM.

OCCASIONALLY patients fail to recover their old vim and vigor subsequent to an acute illness, such as influenza, septic sore throat, or [in children], measles or scarlet fever. Convalescence seems to be unduly prolonged and the victim may appear pale and listless. An examination of the urine may disclose pus and numerous bacteria.



Now and then this condition may appear suddenly with few, if any, symptoms. The first indication may be a pronounced chill, followed by a high temperature. This may continue for a day or two before it occurs to any one that the urine should be examined, whereupon it is found to be infected.

When pus is present in the urine [pyuria], we know that the infection lies somewhere along the anatomy which concerns the manufacture and storage of this liquid. It may originate in the kidney itself or along the small narrow canal [ureter] which leads from this organ to the bladder. Disease in these structures is likely to be accompanied by fever, loss of appetite, nausea, vomiting, and abdominal distention. Pain in the back or along the groin is not uncommon. If inflammation and swelling are sufficient to produce blockage, urine cannot be excreted from the involved side. This may explain the absence of pus in the urine even tho considerable disease exists. Like congestion elsewhere, it subsides ultimately and the diagnosis can be confirmed.

When germs are harbored in the bladder or along the tube [urethra] which drains to the outside, frequency of urination with burning and pain may be noted. The temperature will vary, depending on the amount of poisonous material absorbed by the victim. In children who are undernourished, weak, and anemic, the fever may not be high. This points to a low state of resistance.

Infection gains entrance to the urinary tract in several ways. Bacteria may be conveyed to this area by the blood or from nests of organisms in the throat, sinuses, ears, teeth, or bones. It may also travel up the urinary canal from outside the body. Microbes from the intestine often move into the bladder thru this route. Here they find a suitable environment and proceed to multiply in great numbers.

Unless complications set in, the malady runs its course in from one to three weeks, provided the individual is well nourished and the urinary tract is washed out thoroly by drinking large volumes of water. Medicines which destroy or prevent further growth of the offending germs are called for.

In mild cases, making the urine acid will be all that is necessary. For this purpose, ammonium chloride may be employed. A diet high in fat may produce the same result. When the ailment is more severe, the sulfa compounds or penicillin may be helpful. They are particularly effective because they reach the tissues thru the blood stream. These drugs, in being eliminated, must pass thru the kidney and thence to the outside world. While still in the urine, they retain their power to destroy invaders anywhere in this passageway. In stubborn cases search should be made for the presence of stone, obstruction, or some irritated area.

THYROID ACTIVITY.

Mrs. R. writes: For what purpose is a metabolism test made? I say for a goiter, and so does my husband. But a friend says no.

REPLY.

A good wife always agrees with her husband—with reservations. The test determines functioning of the thyroid gland. If it is overactive, a toxic goiter may exist. If the rate is quite low, myxedema [decreased secretion] may be present.

NOT ADVISED.

W. G. writes: Is it harmful for a person with tuberculosis to go to a steam bath?

REPLY.

Any one with this disease, unless well controled, should be under a physician's supervision. This type of therapy is rather strenuous for patients with tuberculosis, and staying away from public baths will not only benefit the victim but will prevent spread of his germs to others.

TICK PROTECTION.

R. B. writes: With the wood tick season approaching, do you consider it advisable to have children who live near infested areas vaccinated?

REPLY.

Relativity.

American warriors [or their families] who wonder what has happened to that 30 months' rotation perhaps can derive comfort from the story of King's Sgt. Warwick MacKenzie of the Australian imperial forces, a new arrival at the American army's 51st general hospital in the Pacific. Sgt. MacKenzie has been oversens for 5½ years. During that period he has been home once.

Prior to the war he studied in Germany at the Imperial Naval college at Kiel, and in Berlin and Hamburg as well, but his first participation in combat was in the Battle of France which culminated at Dunkerque. It was at Dunkerque that his father, a colonel in the famous Scots' regiment, the Black Watch, was killed. Later his brother was lost over Germany in a bombing raid and his mother was killed in a London blitz.

He then fought in the campaigns for Libya, Tobruk, Crete, and Greece, and in Greece was wounded and taken prisoner by the Germans. Soon after undergoing an operation on his leg he escaped in a stolen German uniform. In a few months his division was sent to the far east to ward off the Japs, then threatening Australia. After a few engagements in New Guinea, he was sent to Burma. Here he was captured by the Japs and interned at No. 4 prison camp, but was released four days later when the Australians raided the camp and killed the guards.

He has been wounded seven times and holds the distinguished conduct medal, the military medal, the Nicholas cross of Greece, the African star, and the croix de guerre. When he is discharged from the 51st general hospital, he will return to the Burma theater.

Basic French.

One of this department's indefatigable scouts in Europe reports that some of the men in his anti-aircraft battery find it very simple to learn French, as the man who walked in a Belgian shop and asked the proprietor: "Parley voo français?" "Oui!" responded the startled Belgian.

"Umm," said the delighted American. "Avey voo des flashlight batteries?"

Another man wanted to tell a Belgian family about his brother in the navy. He was certain he could convey his meaning if he carefully drew out each syllable. The conversation:

"I have a bruth-eur in the na-vee who is a sail-our. Com-pree?"

This Changing World.

William Strand, Tribune war correspondent, had often thought wistfully, as he lay in the foxhole of Europe, of how when he came home [to Washington] he and his daughter Barbara would go to the drug store for an ice cream cone. He would recall with nostalgia what an adventure it had been for her. He now is home on leave and reports that the other day his daughter eyed him speculatively and wanted to know when they were going to New York. He asked her why, and she waved airily and said, "O . . . to go sightseeing, see some shows, and buy some clothes. Every one's doing it these days." She is 14. "I begin to long," observes Mr. Strand, "for the sanity of a foxhole."

VOICE OF THE PEOPLE

Writers should confine themselves to 200 or 300 words. Give full names and addresses. No manuscripts can be returned. Address Voice of the People, THE TRIBUNE.

WHILE THE SOLDIERS ARE AWAY.

Rantoul, Ill., March 9.—War came. Most of us didn't want to kill or be killed. We gave up our homes, our families, and many of our rights upon entering the armed forces to defend our country. As we said good-by, we were assured by our friends, our news commentators, our papers, and our politicians that we were going to defend the America we knew and its institutions. For good measure we were told by many we'd be the men who would determine America's future!

Did they really mean that? How well do their actions support their generous words? First, many state constitutions and basic state laws are being changed or changes are being proposed. Reapportionment and redistricting of congressional districts are urged now at a time when large segments of our population have shifted temporarily to centers of war production.

Second, it is urged that the two-thirds rule for ratification of treaties by the senate be abolished as undemocratic. However, note those urging this change are not asking that the provision for Presidential veto which requires a two-thirds vote of both houses be abolished as undemocratic.

Third, we are told we must surrender part of our national sovereignty and join a world organization; we must guarantee world prosperity and must help police the world, which is to be dominated by the Big Three. Fourth, peace time universal compulsory military training is urged now to prepare us for the peace loving world we are about to enter.

Whether the majority of those in service are for or against these proposals is not known to any one. No ordinary service man or woman is free to state his true opinion on these proposals, nor has he the time or facilities to keep himself fully informed. Speaking only for myself, I sincerely believe it unfair to rush these proposals thru at a time when those sacrificing the most have, for all practical purposes, no voice in the decisions being made.

A SOLDIER.

HOW TO REFORM THEM.

Chicago, March 10.—I have read in THE TRIBUNE, with much interest, about the 80 bums, so-called conscientious objectors, now mooching off the government in the camp at Germfask, Mich., and drawing $5 a month spending money, plus food and clothing, while refusing to work and sitting out the war.

My suggestion would be to fire the dummies now in charge and detail a squad of marines in charge of those bums and they would work or else.

A. G. B.

NEW ORLEANS CLAIMS EXEMPTION.

Chicago, March 12.—In the Voice of the People today "Damyankee" wrote about the neon signs and store windows lighted in New Orleans. The brown-out is to save coal; "Damyankee" may not know that Louisiana uses natural gas for heating and electricity; there is plenty of natural gas, therefore it is not necessary to have the brown-out.

I, too, am a Yankee from Chicago who has just come back from New Orleans.

M. A.

WE TRIED IT ON THE JAPS.

Chicago, March 10.—The writer is an executive in what may be considered small war plant corporation, and after reading the latest suggestion of Maury Maverick, to let the rest of the world have the "know how" of all our manufacturing processes and operations, I begin to wonder if we are still a sane people.

I would like to ask Mr. Maverick a fundamental question: If you were cast upon an island where the only other human was a savage greatly superior to yourself in physical strength but unarmed, would you, if you were in possession of a rifle and ammunition, go to the savage and say "Here, my friend, is a gift with my compliments" and hand him the rifle?

You say your idea is "brand new" and I will say in return that this same idea has been in use for the past 30 years to the everlasting detriment of the United States. The terrific battles we are having with the Japs at the cost of so many American boys' lives are directly traceable to our policy of teaching these same Japs the "know how," so that they could make war on us and do a nice efficient job of it.

Maury, if you must keep yourself busy, please, for heaven's sake, take up something else that will hurt us less.

W. J. V.

REPUBLICAN ROW IN TEXAS.

Houston, Tex., March 6.—The Texas Republican state ticket having polled over 100,000 votes last November, Texas law requires the party to hold a statewide nominating primary in 1946. Republican leaders, headed by National Committeeman Creager, are asking the legislature to amend the law so they can wriggle out of holding a primary and can continue to control the party as a federal patronage machine by picking its nominees in convention.

Some of us think the 330,000 Texans who voted against New Deal candidates last November are entitled to a chance to register their continuing opposition to New Deal policies next year. A Republican primary is the only place where they can do it.

We wait now to see if the solidly Democratic legislature will place the pleasure—and profit—of the Republican leaders above the interest and desire of the 330,000 independent voters.

FRANK PUTNAM.

SEIZE KEARNS, FIGHT PROMOTER, IN $150,000 DEAL

Ex-Boxer Also Held on SEC Fraud Charges.

Jack Kearns, 62, one-time manager of Jack Dempsey and more recently a Chicago Coliseum matchmaker, and Harry [Packy] Lennon, 44, a former prize fighter, were arrested by Chicago police yesterday and held for federal authorities in New York, where they have been charged in a federal indictment with violation of the securities exchange act.

Jack Kearns.

The indictment, which also named Gloria Carruthers, 45, alias Princess Zulieka, an actress-astrologer, contained 11 counts charging violations of the securities exchange act, 14 counts charging mail fraud, and one count charging conspiracy. Investors' losses were put at $150,000.

Woman Was 'Bait.'

Peter J. Donoghue, assistant United States attorney of New York, said the trio was wanted in connection with the sale of securities of a Delaware corporation formed by the defendants and named the Federal Fire-Ex Company, Inc., which would "manufacture and market at $18.75 a new type fire extinguisher which would revolutionize all known methods of fire protection."

Donoghue said one of the victims was W. W. Chiswell, chairman of the board of the Peoples Life Insurance company of Washington, D. C., who invested $42,501. Miss Carruthers, Donoghue explained, was used as "bait" for prospective investors. She still is being sought.

Claimed Navy Backing.

Prospective victims were told "that the United States navy department had indorsed their product and that orders had been received from all parts of the United States and from the British government," Donoghue added.

The company, at 600 S. Michigan av. and in Manhattan, never manufactured extinguishers, but bought them from a defunct New York company and from a Chicago novelty manufacturer, Donoghue said. The defendants, if found guilty, face possible prison terms of 127 years each and fines totaling $79,000.

Three other men were held by police for questioning. They are Gerald Gorman, 41, of New York; Donald Dunkley, 29, of 6200 Kenmore av., and Thomas Mulvaney, 86, of 23 E. Division st.

FRENCH PURGE COURTS DOOM 66 IN 10 DAYS

LONDON, March 14 (AP).—Special French courts established to try persons accused of collaborating with the Germans during the Nazi occupation sentenced 66 to death in the first 10 days of March, the Paris radio said today. The broadcast, quoting the ministry of justice, said 22 others were sentenced to life imprisonment, 552 to shorter terms, and 138 acquitted.

Seven Belgians to Die.

BRUSSELS, Belgium, March 14 (AP).—Seven persons have been sentenced to death within 24 hours as Belgian courts martial stepped up the punishment of traitors and collaborators.

It's Legal in Toronto to Run for Street Car

TORONTO, Ont., March 14 (AP).—The board of control today made it legal once again to run for a street car in this city or for pedestrians to pass each other on the left. The board deleted clauses which provided fines for such offenses from a 1944 by-law which Mayor Robert Saunders had labeled "crazy."

SERVICE STATION LOOTED.

Burglars took five new tires, six recapped tires, tools, auto accessories, and coupons for 1,500 gallons of gas from Harry's Service station, 8701 Cottage Grove av., Harry Lerman, 3819 Fillmore st., told police yesterday.

FARMERS usually are optimistic when it comes to crop prospects, but the gardener on the Wheaton farm is very pessimistic this year about his summer production of roses.

The rabbits so thoroly damaged the rose plantings this winter that the gardener has little hope for a normal yield. When the heavy snows fell, covering the rabbits' regular winter foods, the cottontails turned to nibbling the bark of shrubs, tree saplings, and roses—with the last evidently in high favor.

Cottontails Spare None.

Climbing roses, outdoor plantings of hybrid tea roses, and wild prairie roses—all were attacked by the hungry rabbits. The hybrid tea roses probably will survive the attacks with little reduction in the summer supply of flowers, because the bark damage was high on the stems, portions of the plant that usually are pruned back each spring. The 30 climbing roses plants alongside a metal arbor near the farm greenhouse were most seriously damaged, and some may need to be replaced. Snow drifted against the arbor, permitting the rabbits to chew the bark as far as 24 inches above the ground.

If the rabbits continue to be an annual winter nuisance, home owners will be justified in campaigning against them in many ways. Vegetable gardeners have losses from rabbit damage every spring, and the winter damage to shrubs and tree saplings has been excessive thru the last few winters.

Paint Used as Preventive.

One of the ready preventives of rabbit damage to the bark of trees and shrubs is the use of a copper sulphate paint, which repels the animals. This mixture was developed for painting bark of orchard trees as protection against various rodents. It contains a resin that makes it cling to the bark regardless of rains or snows. The odor of the solution causes rodents to avoid painted trees, and if they eat any of the paint it poisons them.

The farm gardener unwittingly saved one of the best of the farm's climbing roses by covering the canes with soil and leaves last fall. This large bush had been transplanted to the arbor from one of the other farm yards. After setting it out, the men covered the canes to protect them from winter weather. As a result, this is the only climbing rose in the yard that didn't provide a winter meal for the hungry rabbits.

★ The GARDEN ★

Early this week the 30 foot frame was refilled with fresh horse manure. The manure was tamped, and after being packed, filled the lower 24 inches of the frame. An inch of black dirt was applied over the manure, forming a light insulation that will hasten the fermentation process. The final step consisted of placing a light board over the black dirt, with an ordinary thermometer on the board. With the glass panes over the frame, the temperature inside the hotbed went to 70 degrees Tuesday afternoon.

Priest Told His Sister, a Nun, Is Freed in Manila

The Rev. Roy E. Scanlon, 7515 Kingston av., has been informed thru headquarters of the Maryknoll Order of Nuns in Maryknoll, N. Y., that his sister, Sister David Marie, a member of the order, is among Manila internees recently freed by American forces. Sister David Marie, one of 53 Maryknoll sisters interned since the fall of Manila, was held in Los Banos prison. She has been in the Philippines since 1930, three years after joining the order.

FARMERS TACKLE GREATEST TASK WITH LEAST HELP

Washington, D. C., March 14 (AP).—Approach of perhaps the most important spring planting season of the war finds farm labor employment at its lowest seasonal level since the government started keeping records 21 years ago.

Reporting this, the agriculture department said today the labor force was 150,000 persons below that of a year ago. Some of this decrease represented previously deferred farm workers who have been drafted for military service recently.

More Women to Work.

Farm employment was estimated at about 8,400,000 persons, including 6,894,000 family workers and 1,520,000 hired workers. Altho no figures were given, the department said women provided a larger proportion of the labor force than a year ago.

Officials said the farm labor supply had declined in quality as well as quantity, much of the supply is made up of older men and women who quite naturally grow less able to work each succeeding year. Many of these workers would normally have retired by now, but are continuing to work because of the urgent need for their services.

War Prisoners to Help.

Despite this decline in the labor supply, agriculture is being asked to match last year's record crop production. Some of the labor lost will be offset by about an increase of 30,000 in German prisoners of war to be made available for seasonal farm work.

In many sections of the country, spring work is being delayed by rain and snow and excessively wet soils. On the other hand drouth conditions were reported by the weather bureau to be threatening citrus fruits and truck farms in Florida.

PARKED AUTO LOOTED.

Fred Zamost, 402 S. Hamlin av., reported to police yesterday that tools and a sweater, valued at $35, were stolen from his automobile, parked at Kedzie av. and Fulton st.

All Dry Cell Batteries Put Under Price Ceilings

The office of price administration has placed all dry cell batteries under flat price ceilings, Rae E. Walters, regional administrator, said yesterday. The order, he said, excludes all wet and storage batteries. The new regulation provides for price tagging of individual items and covers batteries for flashlights, radios, hearing aids, telephones, lanterns, and fence control.

To Our Employes in Chicago

Every General Motors employe knows the importance of the work which he or she has been doing to speed Victory.

Your production of arms has backed American valor on every war front. For you, like all other General Motors people, have devoted your energies entirely to the production of vital material for battle or for the wartime maintenance of essential home-front equipment.

Victory is our business.

In addition, General Motors employes have purchased millions of dollars' worth of War Bonds and contributed generously to their local War Chests. (We hope these local purchasers realize the importance of keeping their bonds.)

Now we are called upon to give from our hearts to the agency whose unselfish and untiring efforts mean so much to that son or brother, that sweetheart or husband, who is giving his all on distant war fronts—

That service near to him and dear to you—

It is probably from him that you know best what a magnificent job the Red Cross is doing. There is not a man in the services who has not benefited by its mothering ministrations—through cheering gift packages in hospital or prison camp; welcome knitwear against the cold; indispensable bandages rolled by Red Cross women here at home; coffee and doughnuts in the field that put new strength in weary bodies; or some other of the countless Red Cross services——Including that greatest service of all, blood plasma that has brought so many thousands back from the very shadow of death.

This year, as every year, the signers of this message will give, through General Motors, wholeheartedly and unstintingly to the Red Cross.

It is a privilege we would not be denied.

It is no less a privilege, we feel, to have this opportunity to point out how worthy the Red Cross is of your fullest personal support——To urge you to remember how much it means to "him," and—

Youthful Invalid Tells Others How to Be Busy and Happy

[Copyright: 1945: By News Syndicate Co., Inc.]

Today's is another letter for young invalids who find themselves bored and aimless. Unlike a recent one, it was written by a young girl who has been bedridden for 17 months. [This series is not so much for children as for teen-age convalescents and invalids.]

"Dear Mrs. Bevans:

"In answer to the young teen-age girl who is an invalid, I would like to give her a few suggestions. I, too, have been bedridden for 17 months this last time and have spent many more in bed before this. Of course I have found many things to do and yet accomplish something. And I have found lots of pleasure doing them.

"I am older than this girl but I don't think that makes a great deal of difference. I am 21, and for a great deal of the last 17 years I have been sick. So I have found many ways to use my hands. I am crippled as well as having ill health. Here is my list for her:

"Maybe a hobby would interest you, such as collecting little plants. I have lots of them, and it is fun to take care of them in bed.

"You say you don't like knitting. Honestly it is fun. I like to knit and listen to the radio. If you have some one you can make a sweater for, it is much more interesting. The first knitting I ever did was a sweater for my little niece, and really it was fun. And I have done quite a lot for my friends and family. It gives you a little spending money, too.

"Crocheting is nice and you can make many pretty things using just the simple stitches.

"To take up leisure time and to rest yourself why don't you get a paint book and paint or color? As old as I am, I do it and find it lots of fun, so don't think it too kiddish.

"But what I really enjoy doing is tinting photographs. [I know this work is easily learned.—G. H. B.] I started doing that about a year ago. And I have done some for a photographic studio here in town and have the promise of a job. And I do the work right in my bed. I don't think it requires a great deal of special skill—just patience. I never did the work before my aunt got me the paint set.

"Or maybe soap sculpture would interest you. I have always wanted to take that up, but have too many other things to do now."

Jean Patou's Spring Gowns Are Exquisite

BY ANNE BRUYERE.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, March 14.—When Jean Patou puts out a gown, it's for the whole world, like a Michelangelo painting or a Beethoven symphony.

On the ceilings and walls of the Patou salons are painted Greek gods and goddesses and mythical heroes in fresco. The flawless, exquisitely styled gowns of each new show seem to be created for their delight as well as for that of mortals.

"Vert Gallant" is a sports ensemble of vivid green which opens the spring presentation by this famous couturier. The long, fitted jacket is fastened with leaf shaped, bark-brown buttons, which also appear on the unusual pockets all around the hips. The straight skirt has a simple classic box plait in front. The loose, thigh-length coat is fashioned of wool with raglan sleeves.

High, wide, and handsome double collars are featured on suits, coats, and dresses. "Frisson" is a short, full, sky blue coat with collar and foot-wide cuffs of the same wool topped with white linen ones covered with embroidery. The dress that goes with the coat has winged shoulders emphasized by embroidery, which also appears on the square pockets set diagonally. The slim waist is shirred, the skirt full.

"Il m'Aime" is a gaily printed coat with open seams, lined with claret red silk jersey to match an afternoon frock cut entirely on the bias. The scalloped neckline is V-shaped. Drapery encircles wide armholes. The short sleeves, bodice, and hips are fitted. More drapery clings at the waist and hips, then drops in swirling folds to the scalloped hem.

Romantic gold daffodils and roses cross horizontally on a white crepe dress with clever tucking around the hips forming the new boxed fullness. The same tucking and embroidery appear on the three-quarter length sleeves. "Melisande" is the name of the model.

"A Bientot" is a dazzling blue chiffon formal, also adorned with gold embroidery which edges twin rows of wide ruffles on decolletage, hem, and train. The sash ties in a huge bow in front.

[Copyright: 1945: By The Chicago Tribune.]

Q.—Do boys like to hear girls talking about other girls? A.—It all depends on what the gals have to say. Boys, as a rule, do not relish the catty conversations that is common coke-and-chatter routine with so many girls. So they would not enjoy listening in on a harpy huddle. Most fellows still think their gals are all sugar and spice and everything nice, and a smart gal will keep them thinking just that.

Q.—If a boy tells every one he is crazy about you, yet he hardly ever asks you for a date, what is a gal supposed to think? A.—Just give him a chance to get the star dust out of his eyes. He may be so dazzled by your charms that he just can't find his way to a phone booth. Or he may be working up extra courage or extra folding lettuce—an evening with a special honeychile takes both.

Q.—Do boys like popular gals, especially girls who are popular with other fellows? A.—Fellows like to have other fellows like the girls they like, but not too often! If a popular girl is dated up on just those evenings when he would like to ask her out, a boy will soon find himself an ever-lovin' doll who is more available, even tho she isn't No. 1 on the hit parade around school.

Q.—Do boys like girls to be frank? A.—Boys like girls to be honest, and they do like them to be frank, with modifications. But when frankness [candy coated cattiness] means hurting others' feelings, that gal is strictly an off-the-cob character, and boys regard her as just that.

Q.—Do boys always expect to be invited into their date's home after a date? A.—Whether boys expect to or not, it's not good taste. If a gal's family is still up, sitting in the living room, ready for visitors and with a smile on their faces, the boy might stop in for a few minutes. Otherwise, say good night at the front door. The boy asked the gal out for the evening, she doesn't have to finish it off by asking him in.

Q.—What do boys notice most about a girl when they first meet her?

And that one's for you. Send in your answer and then we'll let you in on what the other guys and gals have to say.

| North | East | South | West |
|---|---|---|---|

Opening lead: Ace of hearts.

Some time ago I made the suggestion that when your partner opens the bidding and your right hand opponent overcalls with two of a minor suit and you are not sure what action to take, many times a double on suspicion will turn out to be profitable.

Another suggestion along that line is this: When your partner opens the bidding and your right hand opponent overcalls with two of a suit and you are tempted to bid two no trump, more often than not it pays to resist the temptation, but to strafe the enemy instead. You will find it a great deal more profitable than bidding games.

Today's hand is a splendid illustration. North opened the bidding with a heart and East's two diamond overcall cannot be criticized. Those who held the South hand in many cases bid two no trump and wound up playing the hand at four hearts, which contract could not be fulfilled.

Where the South player elected to double, the profit was 500 points, more than could have been scored even had North and South been able to make game. South should have recognized that the probability of game was not too great because of the misfit in hearts. Had partner bid anything other than hearts, naturally South should not have been quick to double. North had the real difficult problem to face. With a six card major suit and a void in the suit partner has doubled, it is difficult to stand for the double.

However, North realized quite properly that South could not like hearts very well to double the opponents so early. Furthermore, North had considerably more in defense than he might have had for his opening bid, and therefore decided to leave it in.

The defense cashed two tricks in hearts, two in clubs, two in spades, and the king of diamonds while the nine of diamonds was made on an overruff of a heart late in the play. Down three for 500 points.

Alliance Francaise to Give Large Benefit Party April 5

BY JUDITH CASS.

SPRINGTIME in Normandy, only a fond memory for the last five years to Chicagoans who used to visit there before the war, will be reproduced next month in the Casino club, which will be decorated in apple blossoms and horse chestnuts April 5 for the first large benefit to be given in years by the Alliance Francaise. The event will be a tea and cocktail party from 4 to 7 p. m. to raise money for the children's hospital in Bayeux, Normandy, which was given in 1939 by Mrs. Charles S. Dewey, a former president of the Alliance Francaise of Chicago, to which the building was dedicated.

Mr. and Mrs. Dewey probably will be here from Washington, D. C., for the party. Proceeds from the benefit will be given to Mrs. Dewey for the maintenance of the hospital, which is located near the Deweys' lovely chateau in Normandy.

In the next few days 3,000 invitations will be mailed for the party, at which Ralph Herbert and Lorraine Bridges of the cast of "Rosalinda" and other stage stars will appear on the program.

Some of the women heading committees for the benefit are Mrs. Lewis Dodd, Mrs. Moise Dreyfus, Mrs. Robert Hall McCormick, Mrs. Freeman Knight, Mrs. Rigney J. Sackley, Mrs. William Conlon, Mrs. E. Lee Simons, Mrs. George Cragg, and Mrs. Joseph Allworthy.

At its meeting today the Alliance Francaise will see a one-act play directed by Mrs. Stephanie Lockwood and acted by Mrs. Harry M. Dingman and Mrs. F. E. Hanley. Mrs. Lockwood will be hostess later at tea, assisted by Mrs. Edward A. Leigat and Mrs. Allworthy.

Future Events.

Two programs being planned by the Illinois Opera guild will help to put Chicagoans in the mood for the coming visit of the Metropolitan Opera association, which will open its Chicago engagement April 30. Monday and April 25, respectively, Miss Edna Kellogg will interpret two of the operas to be given in the Met's stay here—"The Golden Cockerel" and "Norma." The programs will be given at 11 a. m. in the Arts club, with luncheon following for the first 150 guests to make reservations.

Miss Kellogg, a former member of the Metropolitan and Chicago Opera companies, will be assisted in the two presentations by Joanne Jennings, coloratura, and Helen Ciare, dramatic soprano, with Philip Jorgensen at the piano. The two events have been arranged by Mrs. Albert H. Ulrich, program chairman of the guild, of which Mrs. Millard B. Kennedy is acting president.

The Mary Crane league will raise money for the nursery at Hull House with a spring benefit card party at 12:30 p. m. April 16 in the Edgewater Beach hotel. Following luncheon guests will have their choice of playing bridge or hearing a book review by Florence Bourke Ellis.

Here and There.

When Mrs. Joseph Rich returned Tuesday from Washington, D. C., where she saw her daughter, Peggy, off for overseas duty with the Red Cross, she joined in the welcomes to her latest granddaughter, born the day before in Passavant hospital. The baby will not be named until her father, Lt. Comdr. Joseph E. Rich, sends his preference for a name from the South Pacific. Until his return young Mrs. Rich, the former Nancy Poole, and Reuben, Nancy, and the new baby will stay with the children's maternal grandparents, the Ralph H. Pooles, in Lake Forest.

Under the auspices of the Renaissance society of the University of Chicago, an exhibition of modern Dutch architecture and city planning will open tomorrow in the galleries of Goodspeed hall. J. A. Schuurman, Netherlands consul general; Ulrich Middeldorf, chairman of the department of art at the university, and H. Evert Kincaid, director of the Chicago plan commission, will discuss the exhibition at 8 p. m. before members of the society and their guests who have been invited to a reception later.

White Collar GIRL

BY RUTH MAC KAY

The Unfathomables.

Possibly this should be the subject of deep cogitation on the part of business men who complain that their wives don't understand them. A group of up-and-coming Chicago white collar girls are studying psychology in the evening—to understand their bosses.

To Be Pasted in Halls and Elevators.

Typewriter Drawing.

News Commentator.

I wonder whether the white collar set might be interested in the duties of this gal who has a radio news commentator for a boss man.

The principal chore of the day is the radio show . . . let's see, I'd compare it to making an edition of a newspaper. The show is built from wire copy, research, and a bit of originality. Things must move on time, for in radio we work on the split second. Between broadcasts there's the routine of correspondence, files, and general office procedure.

A foreign correspondent may arrive to be interviewed. Often it is part of my job to talk to him. [Some of the stories are not only interesting but tremendously enlightening.] There may be other office callers to be interviewed. Each morning brings something new or exciting, so I look forward to my hours of work and don't mind if there is a late show or an off-schedule one. As I see it, my prime duty is to lend my best helping hand. But, since not all commentators need secretaries, I know my job is that "one in a million."

BETTY DERKUM.

White Collar Quote.

"If the girl secretaries of America stayed away from work en masse for 48 hours, the business of the nation would collapse. Complete chaos would result. Nobody would be able to find anything. Nobody would remember anything. The war department's Pentagon building would shudder and softly cave in. The general staff, I regret to state, would wake up one fine morning and be unable to locate the war."—Paul Gallico, in "I Sing of Secretaries."

Three New WAC Hospital Units to Leave City Today

Three newly formed WAC hospital units will leave Chicago today to begin basic training at Fort Oglethorpe, Ga. The three platoons will take basic instruction as a unit, and will separate for hospital assignments. The first platoon will serve at Bushnell General hospital, Brigham City, Utah; the second at De Witt General hospital, Auburn, Cal., and the third at Madigan General hospital, Fort Lewis, Wash.

In the WAC convoy will be Rosemary Cheney, 23, of 8018 S. Hermitage av., who will be carrying on her family's medical tradition by becoming a hospital technician. Her father, Dr. Volney S. Cheney, is a physician, and her two sisters are enrolled in the cadet nurse corps of the United States public health service.

Also in the contingent is Mrs. Josephine L. Hipps, 22, of 10215 Calhoun av., whose husband, Sgt. Robert Hipps, is serving with the 4th marine division on Iwo Island.

Recruiting to Continue.

New York, March 14 (AP).—Mrs. Oswald B. Lord, national chairman of the WAC civilian advisory committee, announced today that recruiting of medical technicians for the WAC would continue at least six weeks longer thruout the country.

When Burton Holmes calls "Guatemala" his finest travel lecture, I can see what he means even if I don't quite agree. It is so lovely to the eye, almost as restful as a winter vacation—this volcanic land that veils its dangers in the deep blue of lake and sky, the chalk whiteness of buildings and soil in the clear light, and the brilliantly varied dress of our neighbors who are just 20 hours away as the tourist flies. Ted Phillips has pictured all this with a serene simplicity that must mask hours, weeks, even months of grueling work. You just sit back in Orchestra hall and let it ride, with Mr. Holmes as raconteur. That is, you do if you have tickets. He is sold out except for some extras at Orchestra hall and the opera house.

When I say I don't quite agree as to where it ranks, that is not to disparage "Guatemala" with its men jog trotting under burdens, its women carrying everything from water jugs to watermelons on their heads like queens, its primitive salt mines, and its fiesta of masquers celebrating the Spanish conquest. No, I like "Guatemala." But my favorite Holmes for this 52d season is—and will be—that magnificent trip down the Colorado river.

Blue Skywriting.

Altho Eddie Dowling is soon to take off for New York with "The Glass Menagerie," don't think he is skipping right out of Chicago. He has more plans than you can shake a question at, and one of them concerns an exciting post-war plan by Andry Rebori for a wonderful theater and restaurant on the lake front. More down to immediate earth is Mr. Dowling's musical called "Meet Miss April," by Otto Harbach and Peter De Rose, which he hopes to stage here soon. The period is the eve of the Civil war at West Point, and two of the songs are "Illinois" and "I'm Going to String Along with Lincoln."

It's Up to Tallulah.

Lewis Nichols of the New York Times wasn't too happy at the opening of the Theater Guild's "Foolish Notion." He calls Philip Barry's play "talky, lengthy, and obscure," and adds, "Since Tallulah [Bankhead] naturally can do little wrong, let Barry take most of the blame for the misfortune. His play is part realism, part fantasy. . . . When the situations allow her scope, Miss Bankhead is her wonderful self. On a line of sarcasm her voice drops from her shoulders to her boots, and with an inflection she can prick any pompous bubble in the neighborhood." Not even Ethel Barrymore could carry "Embezzled Heaven," nor could Gertrude Lawrence juggle "Errand for Berenice." Better luck, Miss B.

Doing All Right.

"One Touch of Venus" reports a sellout at Detroit's Cass theater this week, and an advance of almost $30,000 out of a possible $36,000 for next week at Cleveland. The musical comes to the opera house April 2.

Art Institute Movie.

"The Ghost Goes West," a movie, will be shown at 2:30 p. m. Saturday in the Art institute. The program continues the institute's free movie revival series.

Loyola Graduates 33 Trained to Be Polish Relief Aids

Thirty-three persons, 29 of them women, were graduated last night in ceremonies in the Continental hotel from a 40 week course of the Loyola university school of social work which qualifies them to serve as case and medical aids in Poland under auspices of the Polish War Relief society. Their departure to engage in rehabilitation work in the Polish homeland is contingent on their receiving permission of soviet authorities.

The aids, all of them American born, speak Polish, are high school graduates between 21 and 50, and are members of Polish Catholic families. They were selected for the training by the bishop's committee for Polish relief and the Catholic league.

Participating in the exercises were Jozef Stanlewicz, Polish vice consul in Chicago; Henry Osinski, executive secretary of Polish war relief, and the Rev. Stanislaus Piwowar, executive secretary of the league, with national headquarters in Chicago. The training program was instituted simultaneously in several large cities of the United States, and was originated by Stephen S. Woznlecki, auxiliary bishop of Detroit, Mich. A new class of 40 trainees will take up studies shortly after Easter.

Clubwomen's Board to Furnish 2 Rooms at Navy Pier Center

The board of directors of the Illinois Federation of Women's Clubs voted at a meeting yesterday to furnish, at a possible cost of $4,000, two large waiting rooms in use by the new personnel redistribution center of the 9th naval district at Navy pier. Navy men, sent to the redistribution center before being mustered out of service, spend approximately three days in the rooms taking final medical examinations and receiving instructions on veterans' rights and benefits. The present drabness of the lounges was described to the club federation directors by Lt. C. L. Buckmaster, civilian readjustment officer of the center, and Gerald F. Richardson, Red Cross field director at Navy pier.

Spring Color Combinations Make History

BY REA SEEGER.

Two and three color combinations in a costume or ensemble make the newly unpacked spring collections something for fashion history. For this spring the color combinations are unusual. The colors are mixed so skillfully as to appear a beautifully synchronized get-together. Most of the effective combinations are worked with print and plain materials, and most of the smartest three piece color outfits are worked with a blouse jacket and skirt, the two piecers being printed or high colored blouses teamed with either jacket cape or long coat lined with the same print as blouse.

This spring capes have returned to steal every fashion spot light. The capes vary in length from brief shoulder effects to a length between hip and knee. They're made to fit over the shoulders and around the neckline with the same smooth swank outline as the shoulders of the finest and newest suits.

Capes are trim and smart, not the rather casual or sometimes sloppy versions of other years. They are carefully detailed, expertly cut to flatter, and achieve the trim effect of a fitted and sleeved jacket. The skirts or dresses are equally smart in outline detail and silhouette.

Thru the Looking Glass

If by chance you're racking your brain over a gift for a new baby, you can solve the problem easily with a present of four preparations for the care of its delicate skin. A reputable manufacturer of beauty products for women turned its attention about a year ago to making things for even the tiniest beauty, and developed a line of preparations that are noteworthy for two reasons: They are scientifically compounded, medically tested and approved, and they're delightfully packaged to bring pleasure to doting new mothers.

Made of pure, bland ingredients, the line contains four essentials to baby's skin care and comfort. There's an antiseptic oil that's wonderful for cleansing and lubricating the very young baby's tender skin and has the added advantage of not staining small garments. A softening cream for those little scales that sometimes appear on the scalp and in back of the ears also serves as a protective when taking baby for an outing. A bit of the cream smoothed over the face will guard against chapping and ensuing discomfort caused by changing temperatures.

For baby's greater comfort there's an anti-chafing ointment, modern and scientific but based on an old fashioned formula. It soothes many of those irritations of the skin babies are subject to—prickly heat, chafing, and other minor skin upsets. Finally, there's baby's own special powder, moisture absorbent, antiseptic and odor-neutralizing. Containing no drying agents, its sweet smelling and fluffy to give the final touch to an infant's bath.

All four preparations are daintily packaged in blue and white, scattered over with ribbons and bowknots, and are moderately priced. They make a fine beginning for baby's skin care, and a gift of one or four of the items will please any new mother.

SYNOPSIS: The author enrolled in the Canadian air force in 1941, at the age of 20, and became a navigator. In 1943 he transferred to the American air force. On his ninth combat mission, his Flying Fortress was shot down over France, and the crew bailed out. Prosser landed alone in a field, seriously injuring his ankle. A French family hid him in their attic for 13 days, until he was able to walk, then helped him go by railroad to Nevers, 135 miles south of Paris. In Nevers a young Czech worker helped Prosser get in touch with Raymond, a member of the underground movement. Raymond took him to his home, where Prosser met Raymond's parents, his sister Marie, 19, and his cousin Yvonne, 17. Food was good and life pleasant in this household. With his meager knowledge of the French language, Prosser found it a strain to talk to Yvonne, a tomboyish blonde haired girl.

INSTALMENT XVII.

As much as Yvonne was a strain, Raymond was a discomforting puzzle. After the first day he hardly said a word to me, and my attempts to talk to him usually resulted in a complete fiasco. I could not decide whether he definitely disliked me, or whether he merely had no interest in me, but whichever the case may have been it seemed evident that only his duty to the underground prompted him to be my host. However, he was a strange, inscrutable man, and he was brusque and curt with every one except Yvonne. For her he always had a smile or a laugh. Often after dinner when we all went into his room to listen to the radio, he lay down on his bed and Yvonne approached the bed and sat on it coyly.

A moment later he would tickle or pinch her and she reacted by jumping on him. Then a veritable wrestling match began, only to end when Yvonne was overpowered and called for mercy, promising not to disturb him any more. After she was released she immediately started the performance again by coyly sitting on the bed and waiting for the pinch or tickle that followed.

I wondered why Raymond allowed Yvonne to play with him in this way. I felt certain that that was the full extent of any physical relationship, so it was the mental side of it that most interested me. Raymond, who was stern with almost every one else, permitted Yvonne to do anything she wished, and usually gave her whatever she wanted.

Altho Raymond's personality was not the sort I liked, I had the greatest admiration for the continual courage he showed in fighting the Germans. I never asked him what he did, but every day a bit of new evidence cropped up about his activity in the underground. I discovered that he often went out to the points where allied aircraft either landed with passengers and supplies, or dropped supplies. One day he took me aside in the dining room and showed me a pistol recently received from the allies.

It was a long range .22 calibre gun, and on its sides were printed the words, "Property of the United States." I thought it was much too dangerous to keep in the house, but he retorted, "No, not at all. If the Germans come I shall have to use it, and if they searched the house when I was not here they would never find it."

Often workers came to the house for his assistance. They had been called to go to Germany for forced labor, and he gave them false papers and food cards which enabled them to take another job and escape the German police. Those who did not have families to support usually went into the Maquis to fight the Germans in the forests and mountains, and he told them where they could join these forces. He took part in some of the sabotage that was being carried out in the Nevers area. Many strange people frequently came to see him; they were attended to in the factory office and were never mentioned in the house.

In the afternoon I took a little walk out on the bridge and embankment. The distance from the end of the bridge to the farthest point on the terrace was about 25 yards. This was the only area which was completely shielded from the neighbors' houses, and here I paced up and down. Midway between the bridge and the end of the terrace was a slight decline, which led into the cellar. I had walked by it so often that finally I could restrain my curiosity no longer and decided to explore it. Going down the stairs the first thing I noticed was that the main passageway led straight thru into the garden. I made a point of remembering this exit, which could be used for a quick escape in case of danger.

I found Le Grandpere arranging some onions. He very cordially bid me good afternoon and asked how my foot was feeling. He had several rabbit hutches in the basement. I expressed surprise at seeing so many, but he said, "O, this is only a small part of them. At my house we have 40 or 50, and eat most of the rabbits during the winter. Probably in the next week or two Raymond will have one for you."

Then he offered me some tobacco with which to roll a cigaret. At first I refused, saying that he needed all his tobacco, but he insisted, "No, I have more than enough for myself."

After one puff of my cigaret I understood what he meant. This was home grown, untreated tobacco and so rough that it was difficult to roll. I was able to make only a very sloppy, flimsy, cigaret. After taking three puffs it went out, very much to my relief. Le Grandpere noticed that the cigaret had gone out and kindly relit it for me.

We discussed the garden, but as the old man spoke colloquially and rapidly I understood only a little, but I did gather that he grew much of his own food and managed to hide most of it from the Germans. He told me how difficult life was in France. "Ah, oui, it is possible to buy almost anything on the black market, but it is so dear, Monsieur. The shoes that I wear now used to cost about 20 francs before the war, but now they are obtainable only on the black market and there they cost over 400 francs. Every one says that the black market is a good thing because it does harm to the Germans, but I think it must hurt our poor people even more. For the poor in the cities there is almost nothing they can buy. If you could only see some of the poor children! C'est epouvantable." [It is dreadful.]

I went back into the house and stopped in the kitchen for a short conversation with the cook, who was sitting alone. She was always pleasant and kind to me. Marie told me that the woman hated the Germans terrifically, but I seldom heard her speak of them, other than to excuse some misfortune by sighing, "Les Boches." For the most part she evidently preferred to ignore their presence. She was a very good cook and that afternoon I highly complimented her on the meals she gave us. She merely shrugged her shoulders and said, "Mr. Raymond brings us all this lovely food from those who work with us."

That last "us" puzzled me, and I wondered if she, an innocent looking cook, took an active part in the underground battle against the Germans, but she never gave me another clew.

Marie was in that afternoon and I found her sewing in Raymond's room. We started talking about my departure. I had been at the house five days and thought the time to leave was soon at hand. At Mere Louise's one was safe, but here in a town the situation was infinitely more dangerous and it seemed that to stay in one place more than a few days would be an unnecessary risk.

Marie disagreed. "Don't worry, David, you are quite safe here, and when you leave, I am sure you will escape all right."

I wished I might have been as confident as she.

Then in a very soft, tender voice, she said, "You know I pray for you every night, and shall continue to do so after you go."

This took me so back that I could only mutter a confused "Thank you."

When she saw this she said, "You don't believe, do you?" I told her that I did not.

She did not speak for a moment, and when she did, it was almost defensively, but very devoutly and firmly. She said, "I believe. Altho you do not, I want you to do something for me."

I asked her what it was, and she replied, handing me a medallion, "I wish you would wear or keep this on your trip. It is a St. Christopher medallion that le bon cure blessed for me when I had planned to go to Paris just before the war. I don't need it now, but you do, and I want you to keep it while you are escaping from France. When I pray for you I will think that you are wearing it."

I promised her that I would wear it all the time. Then she attached a condition to it. "Please do not tell Yvonne that I have given this to you. She would only mock me. Elle est mechante, vous savez." [She is mischievous, you understand.] Her large black eyes were opened wide and they, too, implored me not to tell Yvonne. I promised Marie faithfully that Yvonne would never hear a word about this gift.

Then I asked her to do me a favor. I still had over 30 English pounds and $30 which seemed rather useless. The thought of being captured with this and having the Germans take it for themselves irritated me, and I wanted to leave some of it in safe keeping, so I asked Marie to take care of it for me until the end of the war. She answered, "O, yes, David, I shall be glad to keep it for you. I shall guard it well."

Once upon a time a pot roast was just a cheap cut of meat that was quite suitable for a washday dinner, as it could be started to cook, then ignored until meal time.

Now a pot roast is as precious as a bottle of fine, very old wine, and while it still possesses the ability to cook itself with little attention, no woman is going to go off and just forget that there's such a priceless treasure on her range!

The quality of beef that we've been able to get recently has been good. A round bone roast which I was lucky enough to buy yesterday is bright in color and nicely interlarded with fat. It shall be carefully cooked!

The best virtue of pot roasts is the quantities of rich brown gravy which they inspire. That dark, beefy flavor in gravy and meat can't be produced by stewing the beef in a lot of water. The less water used, the better. Most good cooks add only about ¼ cup water to the pot roast at a time, letting it cook down and allowing the meat to take on more brownness before replenishing the moisture.

A pot roast may be cooked either in the oven or on top of the range. It may be browned with or without flour. Flour helps in attaining a deeper color, and thickens the gravy.

Wipe your pot roast with a damp cloth, then brown it in a small amount of meat drippings or its own suet, if there's a good fat layer on the cut. A heavy utensil is necessary for browning and cooking a pot roast. A deep cast iron skillet can't be improved upon. When the meat is good and brown all around, salt and pepper it well. If you like herbs or onion or garlic seasoning, now is the time to add them.

Pour a small amount of hot water, about ½ cup, into the pan, reduce heat, cover closely, and let the meat cook gently until it is very tender. The time for cooking will depend upon the size and shape of the beef, and also upon its original quality. A three to five pound pot roast usually requires three or four hours. As liquid cooks off, small amounts may be added to the pan.

Remove meat to hot platter and thicken the drippings for gravy. If the liquid has cooked off completely, flour may be added directly to the cooking utensil and browned thoroly in the fat before any water is added. Beef gravies are made with water, not milk, because water allows them to keep their deep color.

If there is a considerable proportion of liquid in the cooking utensil, gravy should be thickened by addition of a flour and water paste.

North Shore Legion Post to Hear Busbey Tonight

The North Shore Legion post and auxiliary, 5657 Broadway, will have Fred E. Busbey, former congressman from the 3d district, as speaker at an Americanism meeting tonight. Mr. Busbey, active in Legion Americanism work for 22 years, will speak on "Dare We Be Americans." Robert E. Owens, post advocate, will preside.

$5 PRIZE RECIPE

Filled Spice Bars.
[Five dozen.]

- 1 cup shortening
- ½ cup sugar
- ½ cup light corn sirup
- ¾ cup molasses
- 1 cup sour milk
- 2 eggs, well beaten
- 3 cups sifted flour
- ½ teaspoon cinnamon
- ½ teaspoon each nutmeg, cloves, allspice
- 1 teaspoon soda
- 1 teaspoon baking powder
- 1 teaspoon salt

Cream shortening and sugar thoroly. Add sirup, molasses, milk, and eggs. Add flour which has been sifted once before measuring then again with spices, soda, baking powder, and salt. Spread half of batter smoothly in bottom of greased shallow pan, about 12 by 18 inches. Spread filling evenly over batter and cover with remaining batter. Sprinkle with 3 tablespoons sugar and bake in moderately slow oven, 325 degrees for 30 minutes. Cool, cut into bars 1 by 2 inches. It is best to let these ripen a few days before eating. To make filling: Combine ½ cup chopped dark raisins, ½ cup chopped white raisins, ½ cup cut dates, ½ cup drained crushed pineapple, ½ cup coarsely chopped nut meats, ¼ cup sugar mixed with 1 tablespoon cornstarch, and a sprinkle of salt. Add ½ cup hot water and cook until thick, stirring to prevent scorching. Cool. Chopped candied cherries and 2 tablespoons lemon juice may be used in place of pineapple, if desired.

Crocheted Rugs

BY ELLEN BRUCE.

Rugs crocheted of four ply cotton and worked in two colors are quick and simple projects. This thoroly utilitarian rug is worked in a combination of single and double crochet in a manner which creates a new and interesting stitch. The rug may be made circular or oval, but care must be exercised to keep work flat. It launders perfectly and does not skid on the floor.

Horse Meat's Sales Double as Beef Fails

Twice as much horse meat is being sold in Chicago today as a year ago, before the beef shortage became acute, a packer's representative estimated yesterday.

His firm, the Hill Packing company of Topeka, Kas., is shipping 20 tons of horse meat a week to Chicago, double the amount normally sent here, he said. Several other packing companies also have increased their shipments, but the Hill spokesman refused to estimate the aggregate tonnage.

Altho it is contrary to a Chicago city ordnance and Illinois state law to sell horse meat for human consumption, it is sold over retail counters in the form of steaks and ground meat, it was said in the trade.

"The butchers don't know that their customers are going to use the horse meat," a packer said. "They must assume that it will be fed to the dogs and cats."

Horse meat is sold for human consumption in Milwaukee, Wis.; Boston, Mass.; Cleveland, O.; Detroit, Mich., and in some New Jersey cities. The rise in sales of dressed horse carcasses was evident before Jan. 3, when race tracks were closed in the United States.

The American Meat institute reported yesterday that Chicago packing houses are losing many skilled workers because of the shortage of beef and pork arriving at the stock yards. Packing workers are averaging only 32 hours a week or less, and many are leaving for jobs in war factories where they can work 48 or 60 hours a week.

Scarcity of pork will continue, the meat institute said, until June, when spring pigs will begin to reach the market. Despite the shortage, the institute will never advocate meatless days, an official said. He said the public should develop its taste for specialty meats such as tripe, gizzards, ears, tongues, and brains.

Dr. David Klein, general manager of the Wilson & Co. laboratories, said production of pharmaceutical by-products from slaughtered meat animals had been decreased 20 per cent by the shortage. He said 140 by-products are obtained from beef, veal, lamb, and pork, including bristles, sutures, footballs, fertilizer, and glue.

Pork slaughter has fallen 40 per cent, affecting the medical supply of insulin, ovarian extracts, pituitary, thyroid and suprarenal gland extracts, and liver extracts. Some animals are being slaughtered on farms, and glands are lost.

Looking at Hollywood

By Hedda Hopper

HOLLYWOOD, Cal., March 14.—Merle Oberon's leading man in "As It Was Before," will be Geza Korvin. Is he a looker? Even Merle took a second one. . . . Richard Crane was being mobbed by bobby-soxers at a preview, and Van Johnson was heard to remark, "He'd better be careful or he'll be another Van Johnson. . . . Not only Frances Langford but Jerry Colonna and Vera Vague are wanted for the picture "You Dear Boy" which Sam White will produce. . . . Martha Sleeper got herself a nice part in "Bells of St. Mary's" with Leo McCarey. She's also making a comprehensive test at Metro with George Cukor of "Perfect Marriage," which she played so beautifully on Broadway with Miriam Hopkins. . . . The last thing Gene Fowler wants is praise, but I can't help saying he's one of the few writers I know who refuses to make money from friendship. It's his idea that all profits, if any, that would be made from his life story of Jack Barrymore should go to help actors, as a memorial to Barrymore. Wonder if this means that Errol Flynn will play Barrymore.

Paving the Usual Way.

Barbara Hutton, at this week's end or beginning of next, will leave for that well known health resort in Nevada, for her matrimonial purge from Cary Grant. . . . Betty Hensel's mother phoned to say her daughter's marriage to William Dodge is postponed indefinitely. When I asked if Betty is suffering a nervous breakdown the answer was, "No, she has a bad cold. She's nervous, as any girl would be over a coming marriage." Her fiance, Lt. Dodge, is not feeling too well in San Francisco. This whole romantic episode, shall we say, is one of the strangest that's hit this town in ages, and the end is not yet in sight.

Comings and Goings.

Connie Bennett's romance, Maj. John Coulter, arrives tomorrow from the Philippines. He's handsome enough to be a movie star. . . . Carl Sandburg makes another trip here in May to confer with Sidney Franklin over "American Cavalcade." . . . Artie Shaw is renting a 15 room house here for his band. Now he's looking for a cook. Wouldn't you like to get a bid to some of their jam sessions? Curfew will mean nothing to those fellows. . . . The sable coat Howard Hughes gifted Ava Gardner with is insured for $22,500. Boy, O boy! I remember when Norma Talmadge got one. She didn't think it looked as expensive as ermine. . . . Libby Holman while here has taken over Roly Leigh's domicile. Roly's in New York. . . . When Archie, of Duffy's Tavern, was invited for cocktails, he said, "Okay, I'll bring my horse." Knowing Archie, the host expected anything. And sure enough, Archie came with a painting of a horse under his arm, which he'd done himself. . . . It's all set for Andy Russell to play opposite Betty Hutton in "Stork Club." All this coyness on the part of Producer Buddy De Sylva got Andy reams of publicity.

How About Yours?

Irving Cummings is so taken with his cousin, Elizabeth Malloy's diary which she started as a child of eight that he wants to buy it for a picture. Almost any diary would make a right snappy picture. Mary Astor's would have been a knockout. . . . Fred Cravens, Frenchman, an expert swordsman, is trying to teach Charles Laughton to fence. Says he, "if only Cuddles could handle a sword as well as he does our language, it would be easy." . . . Kay Kyser found his new tenor at bar of music. His name's Michael Dowd. He recently was discharged from the navy after 18 months overseas. . . . The latest report has Mickey Rooney in an army hospital in Belgium. Nothing serious. . . . Now it's Jane Hollingsworth with Alan Curtis at gay spots. . . . Reggie Gardiner has signed for "Kitten on the Keys."

To Razor or Not?

Claudette Colbert will be surrounded by beauty in "Tomorrow Is Forever." I'm wondering if that will include Orson Wells' beard, or will he have to shave it off before they begin? . . . Jack Douglas' wife, Merle, is being mistaken around town for Lauren Bacall. That's nice mistakin'. . . . When Billy Wilkerson had his auto accident, he was driving his bulletproof, steel armored car, once owned by Tony Cornero, who used to operate the gambling ship Rex—if you can remember that far back. . . . If this present strike goes on and on, Hollywood's going to be the town that heaven forgot for the workers. And the draft will catch up with many of our finest technicians, because after a five day wait, all men under 38 are automatically 1-A. . . . Andrews Sisters got around censor's use of "Rum and Coca Cola" by fitting names of their sponsors into lyrics. I'm told the original version of that song was written only for members of the services. . . . Pat Tierney took Ginny Simms to Ciro's to listen to Phil Ohman's music. . . . Ozzie Nelson says, "you're years getting your name in lights, but an electrician can take it down in five minutes."

Wedding News.

Mr. and Mrs. Gustave Carus are in Fort Monmouth, N. J., for the marriage at 8 o'clock tonight of their daughter, Mary Hegeler, and Lt. Acheson Adair Harden Jr. of the army, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harden of Englewood, N. J. The ceremony will take place in the post chapel, followed by a reception in the officers' club. Only the families and fellow officers of the bridegroom will be present.

The bride, a member of the WAC, has a 20 day furlough from her post in Texas. She will be married in a simple white net gown and will wear an old lace veil belonging to the bridegroom's family.

Miss Katherine Baker, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Claude F. Baker of Barry av., and Lt. Comdr. Robert C. Eardley of the coast guard will be married at 11 a. m. Saturday in Our Lady of Mount Carmel church. A reception will follow in the afternoon in the Baker home. Miss Baker was graduated from Manhattanville college. Comdr. Eardley, a graduate of the University of Michigan and of the law school of Northwestern university, soon will go on active sea duty.

Mrs. Bill P., Chicago—To clean laundry tubs which are spotted by soap, I fill the tubs with fairly hot water and add 2 or 3 cupfuls of washing soda. I stir well and let the mixture stand for two hours. After that I scrub the tubs vigorously. If spots are stubborn, one can try rubbing them—very gently—with very fine steel wool.

Mrs. Marion Higgins, Mohawk st., Chicago—If you have to use an old-fashioned broom instead of a vacuum cleaner, sprinkle a few damp coffee grounds on the rugs before sweeping them. There will be less flying dust and the rugs will look a bit brighter and cleaner.

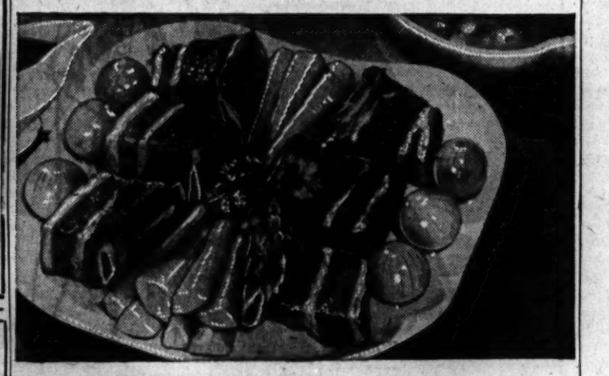
TAKE A LESSON IN FLAVOR

How fortunate we are that so many of the low-point and point-free meats are so delicious. Favorites of mine among these point-thrifty cuts are beef short ribs, ox-joints, heart, tongue, sweetbreads and kidneys. A study of the point value chart will show many other point bargains. Short ribs and ox-joints when browned to perfection to develop their best flavor and then cooked with a little moisture are particularly delicious, as every good cook knows.



BRAISED SHORT RIBS . . . A CHEF'S DELIGHT

3 lbs. short ribs
2 tbsp. Advance Shortening
2 tsp. salt
6 potatoes
6 parsnips
6 onions
4 tbsp. flour
Wilson's B-V

Brown both sides of the meat in the hot fat. Season with salt, add ½ cup hot water, cover and simmer gently 3 to 3½ hours or until tender, turning meat occasionally and adding small amounts of water as needed. About 45 min. before meat is done add whole vegetables, rolling them around in the drippings occasionally; when tender, remove meat and vegetables to a hot platter. Measure liquid and add hot water to make 2 cups. Thicken with flour and add as much B-V as needed to give desired color and flavor. Serves 6.

Clip Recipe Here

Vegetables Steal Flavor

A considerable amount of that delicious brown flavor in the meat drippings is absorbed by the vegetables while they are cooking. But why should you care? It makes the vegetables delectable and you can put delicious meat flavor right back into the gravy by adding Wilson's B-V. And that's mighty important, because it's the good rich brown gravy that makes this dish so popular. Make plenty of B-V gravy so your family can enjoy that old favorite, bread and gravy.

Add cole slaw and a simple dessert such as baked custard along with a beverage and you have a meal which will rate an encore from the family.

The supply of meat is low these days because of the increased demands of the Government. We are glad to share it with our boys and others who have been suffering hardships.

On days when your meat supply is low and you extend the meat flavor by means of rice, bread crumbs, macaroni, etc., be sure to add an extra amount of high quality protein in another meal by using point-free Clear Brook Eggs. Omelets and souffles are easy to make if one takes the time to master them. Deviled, scrambled, shirred, poached and fried eggs are equally good and require less care in preparation.

MARCH IS NATIONAL BREAD & GRAVY MONTH

PLAN FOR EASTER

It would be wise to order your Easter meat now to avoid disappointment on that joyous day. By ordering now, large families may be able to get a Wilson's Certified Tender Made Ham (the original ready-to-eat ham) or a Certified Smoked Ham (which you cook at home), while small families will enjoy a slice of either of these two delicious hams. For those who cannot find ham, lamb or veal would be a happy choice.

Cordially yours,
GEORGE RECTOR

NEW YORK PICKS INTERCITY GOLDEN GLOVERS

ADAM WALSH SIGNS AS COACH OF CLEVELAND RAMS

FORMER IRISH CENTER LEAVES COLLEGE RANKS

New Contract Is for Five Years.

BY EDWARD PRELL.

Adam Walsh, center and captain of Notre Dame's Four Horsemen eleven of 1924, yesterday signed a five year contract as head coach of the Cleveland Rams in the National Football league. The announcement was made in South Bend by Adam's brother, Charles [Chile] Walsh, general manager of the Cleveland team, and one time Notre Dame star end.

Adam Walsh.

No financial arrangements were revealed other than that this is the most lucrative contract the elder Walsh has signed in a 20 year coaching career. He will immediately leave Notre Dame where he was line coach last year under Ed McKeever. Adam was on leave from Bowdoin college in Maine where he was head coach for eight years.

Succeeds Buff Donelli.

It was said that he came to a complete and friendly understanding with the presidents of Bowdoin and Notre Dame in severing his college connections. Walsh will succeed Aldo [Buff] Donelli, who entered the navy shortly after completion of the Rams' 1944 campaign.

The new coach soon will pick an assistant. Donelli's aid last year, Joe Benda, also a former Notre Dame athlete, has returned to St. John's university in Collegeville, Minn., that institution having made arrangements to resume its athletic program this year. Benda is football coach at St. John's.

He's T-Formation Exponent.

Coach Walsh was contacted by his brother six weeks ago at a time when he was considering offers from three colleges as head coach and agreed to make no commitments until again conferring with Chile. Today's signing ceremony, complete with photographers and the presence of George Strickler, National league public relations chief, was held in South Bend's Oliver hotel.

Signing of Walsh is in line with the Rams' long term policy to build up the T-formation made famous by the Chicago Bears. Walsh has been coaching the T-formation since 1939. General Manager Walsh said that the Rams have signed a formidable number of former college T-formation stars for post-war activity.

Wide College Experience.

Adam Walsh has had a brilliant coaching career from coast to coast and is the only man to serve at both Yale and Harvard. From 1925 thru 1928 he was head coach and athletic director at Santa Clara where for the first time a Santa Clara team beat Stanford. In 1928 he took his Santa Clara team to Hawaii where it won two games. From 1929 thru 1933 he was line coach at Yale under Mal Stevens, and in 1934 he was Eddie Casey's line expert at Harvard.

This was where Bowdoin came in. The school hadn't won a Maine Intercollegiate conference game in five years and it had been 17 seasons since it had captured a conference title. Adam was signed as head coach for the 1935 season and in eight years, thru 1942, his teams either won or tied for the title seven times. He remained at Bowdoin in 1943 after football was eliminated because of the war. Last year he joined the Notre Dame staff on leave from Bowdoin.

In the WAKE of the NEWS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

NEW YORK, March 14.—Lt. Jack Glazier, former Grand Rapids [Mich.] Golden Glover, is doing experimental high altitude flights for the army air force at Wright field, Dayton, O. . . . He has 30 missions over Europe as a bombardier and navigator to his credit. . . Richard McMahon of Adrian, Mich., hunts muskrats with a big power crane, netting $100 worth of pelts last year. . . . He uses the crane in digging ditches for Lenawee county. . . . He noticed one day that he was routing out a lot of muskrats from the sloughs along the highways. . . . Now he watches for them and bops them on the head with his big power shovel. . . . Marine Lieutenants Herman Frickey and Larry Halenkamp, former football stars at Northwestern and Minnesota, are stationed at Oceanside, N. J., awaiting shipment overseas. . . . Mel Ott, the Giant manager, says he spent most of the winter attending semi-pro softball and baseball games in New Orleans looking for talent. . . . He thinks he has come up with a good first baseman in Frank Mediamolle, recently given a medical discharge from the navy. . . . Davey Jones, now 65 and a resident of Detroit, who played in the Tiger outfield with Ty Cobb and Sam Crawford, says Vean Greegg was the toughest pitcher he ever faced. . . . Bill Hart, the infielder, who had a run-in with Manager Leo Durocher last summer, says he'll make another attempt to get along with him. . . . Hart spent the winter in a ship building plant in New Orleans. . . . Says Pitcher Ted Wilks: "I thought I was a major league success until I received my 1945 contract from the world champion Cardinals." . . .

K. L. [Tug] Wilson, new commissioner of athletics for the Western conference, counts himself fortunate in having had the friendship of the late Maj. John L. Griffith, the man he succeeded, early in his career. . . . "He was the best friend I ever had," says Wilson. "He put me on a train in Champaign for Des Moines, where I was to be interviewed concerning the athletic directorship at Drake university. . . . I was making $200 a month at the time. He told me to ask Drake for $5,000 a year. 'I'm not worth that much,' I protested, but he insisted I was." . . . Wilson got the job. . . . The Los Angeles Angels expect to have a regular battery made up of Richie Columbo, 16 year old pitcher, and Catcher Bill Sarni, 17 year old catcher. . . . Sarni was with the club last season. . . . Lt. Billy Soose, former world middleweight champion, is the new physical training officer at the Brooklyn naval armed guard center. . . . George [Birdie] Tebbetts, the former Tiger catcher, now is a captain in the army air forces and is headed for duty in the Pacific theater. . . . Basketball attendance at the University of Wisconsin's home games was up 20 per cent in the season just closed. . . . The Badgers played before 98,500 in 11 contests. . . . Service personnel at the Bainbridge [Md.] naval training center voted, 35 to 1, for continuing sports. . . . They balloted as follows for their favorites: Football, 751; baseball, 591, and basketball, 538. . . . Ensign Sid Luckman of the maritime service has written friends he is overseas, with the nonchalant comment, "Had a grand trip over."

After the sun went down,
Your poems were read by the lamplight
In this quaint little English town.

And the good people we are billeted with Much interest seemed to take,
And asked many questions about you,
THE TRIBUNE, its style, and the Wake.

Last night in this little English town
Your poems were read by the firelight
And you were our unseen host.

And there in the twilight gloom,
With every poem something of home
Crept quietly into that room.

BY DAVID CONDON.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Champaign, Ill., March 14.—The sister cities of Champaign and Urbana tonight fast were being taken over by enthusiastic crowds of high school students and fans which moved in from thruout the state on the eve of the 1945 Illinois high school basketball tournament.

The tournament, which opens tomorrow in George Huff Memorial gymnasium on the University of Illinois campus, is the climax to a season in which a field of 831 teams started in quest of the championship. Now, this field has been narrowed to 16 entries which with their boosters are converging on this center for the final competition and the crowning of a new champion to succeed Taylorville, 1944 title holder.

Tomorrow's games will cut the field to eight for Friday's quarter finals. Semi-finals Saturday afternoon will be followed by the consolation and championship games that night.

Hero Worshippers on Hand.

It's the big show for high school youngsters, who for the last three months have followed their teams thru regular season competition, district, regional, and sectional tournaments, all leading up to this final meeting of the survivors.

Here tonight, the restaurants and drug stores were jammed as youths wearing T-shirts and with closely cropped hair followed in the wake of their favorite teams. The sidewalks were lined with high school girls, many wearing monogram sweaters decorated with insignia of such high schools as Decatur, Morton, Flora, Somonauk, Champaign, Rockford East, and all the other contestants.

No bobby sox brigade ever was more enthused over the current crooner idol than is this shrieking, happy group of basketball hero worshippers, which will provide part of the color for the three day show. Starting tomorrow, these voices will yell themselves hoarse, and some of the hearts won't be so carefree and happy as favorite teams fall in defeat.

From Large Schools and Small.

Somonauk, smallest school in the tournament with an enrollment of fewer than 90 pupils, has its followers. So has Morton of Cicero, from suburban Chicago, which, with a student body of 4,700 has the largest enrollment of any school represented.

Tomorrow, these groups will move from the streets and jam into George Huff gymnasium, where capacity crowds of more than 7,000 are expected for each session. Gov. Green will be on hand for the opening at 10 o'clock when Somonauk, only district tournament winner still in the running, meets Carbondale, only team in the tournament which lost more games than it won over the season.

Morton Hopes for Upset.

The big game of the day follows, with Morton, co-champion of the Chicago Suburban league, attempting to upset the favorite, Champaign High school, which has appeared in 16 state tournaments and never won a title. This game has an added sidelight as the rival coaches, Jim Vopicka of Morton and Harry Combes of Champaign were teammates on the University of Illinois

HAWKS BATTLE BRUINS TONIGHT FOR CUP BERTH

BY CHARLES BARTLETT.

The Chicago Blackhawks, whose whimsical progress thru the 1944-'45 National Hockey league campaign has made their rooting constituency a legion of nail-biters, tonight will meet the Boston Bruins in the Chicago Stadium in the all or else battle of the season. The Chicagoans must win this vital match if they are going to claim fourth place, the last allotted role in the impending Stanley cup play-offs.

This time it's for keeps. There can be no procrastinating about what the Bruins might do two weeks from Thursday. The Bostonians settled that Tuesday night, when they fought to a 2 to 2 tie with the Detroit Red Wings after having lost 19 successive league games to the Wings. By that draw, the Bruins increased their hold on fourth place to three points over the fifth place Hawks.

Why Hawks Must Win.

Joseph C. Farrell, the noted mathematician who 10 days ago was resorting to trigonometry and calculus in figuring the Hawks' playoff chances, yesterday had retreated to simple arithmetic and a batch of IFS. The IFS, all of them interesting, follow:

IF the Blackhawks lose tonight, they can't overtake the Bruins in the race for fourth place. Victory for Boston, which has only Montreal to play on Sunday night to complete its schedule, would give the visitors a two and one-half game edge over the Chicagoans, who must meet the Canadiens in Montreal Saturday and the Red Wings in Detroit Sunday.

If They Win Tonight:

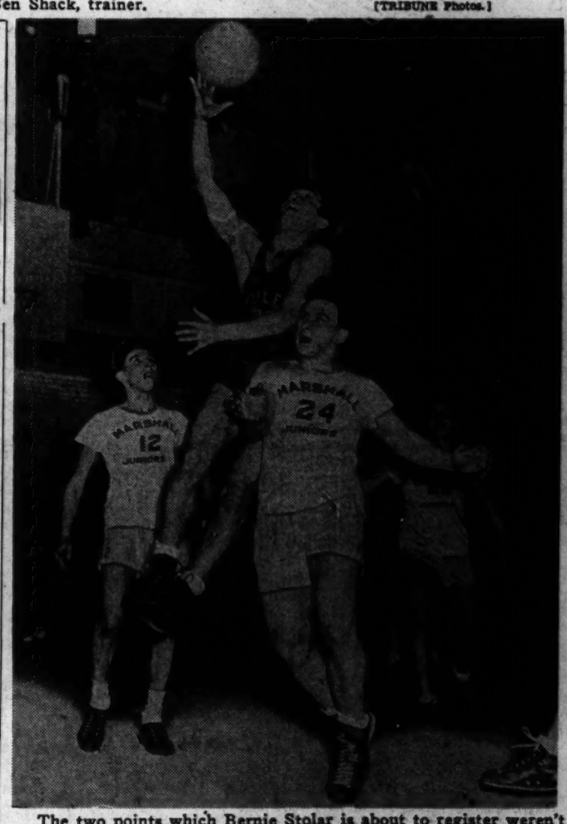
IF the Hawks win tonight, they will be within a half game of fourth place. They must then win the two games against the Canadiens and Wings IF the Bruins beat the Canadiens Sunday. Should this situation develop, the Chicago team would win fourth place by one point or a half a game, 37 to 36. BUT IF the Hawks lose to Boston tonight, their possible victories against Montreal and Detroit would not be sufficient to overhaul the Bruins, even tho the latter should lose their Sunday night match with Montreal.



The two points which Bernie Stolar is about to register weren't enough to turn the tide in the City league junior finals yesterday between Marshall and Tuley. The Commandos won, 47 to 33. Marshall players in the picture are Jerry Berman, 12; Alvin Kaufman, 24, and Howie Doman, 22, who led the Commandos with 24 points.

CLEM CROWE 1ST CHOICE FOR IOWA FOOTBALL BERTH

Iowa City, Ia., March 14 [Special].—Clem Crowe, head basketball coach and football line coach at Notre Dame, will become acting head football coach at the University of Iowa, it was understood tonight on the Hawkeye campus. Formal announcement on appointment of a coach to succeed Edward P. [Slip] Madigan is expected tomorrow.

Altho neither E. G. [Dad] Schroeder, Iowa athletic director, nor Crowe would shed any official light on the matter outside of the fact both were interested, several arguments were advanced in Crowe's favor.

One of these was the fact that Crowe, while a member of the coaching staff at Notre Dame, actually is on leave as football and basketball coach at Xavier university in Cincinnati. This was regarded as being in line with the desires of Iowa officials who wish to employ a coach who will fill the post until the return of Maj. Eddie Anderson who is on leave from the Hawkeye institution while serving with the army medical corps overseas.

Then there was the proposal that should Crowe not elect to return to

GENE RONZANI TO JOIN IRISH COACHING STAFF

Notre Dame, Ind., March 14 [Special].—Hugh Devore, Notre Dame's acting director of athletics, announced today that Gene Ronzani, former Marquette university and Chicago Bears' football star, has been appointed back field coach of the Irish. Ronzani will assume his new duties on March 20.

Captain of the 1932 Marquette eleven, and one of the two nine letter men in the school's history, Ronzani joined the Chicago Bears' organization following a brilliant collegiate career. After playing with the Bears for eight years he became head coach of the Newark Bears, farm team in the American association. Last year he returned to active play with the Chicago team.

Marshall High Juniors Take League Title

Marshall High school's Juniors yesterday won their fifth City league basketball crown in six years, defeating Tuley, 47 to 33, at Crane Tech. The victory gives the Commandos the honor of playing the Catholic league junior champions next month in the Stadium double header which also will feature a game between the two leagues' senior winners.

The victory was the Commandos' 19th straight and their 117th in 119 games.

Largely instrumental in Marshall's continued domination of the junior ranks has been Howard Doman, talented forward. Again yesterday he demonstrated the skill which has made him high scorer for the champions as he made nine field goals and six free throws. Chief troublemaker for the Tuley quintet was Carl Kuppersmith who scored 13 points. Lineup:

19,177 Watch Finals in Garden.

Look Out Chicago!

113 POUNDS—Francisco Garcia, Puerto Rico.
135 POUNDS—Eddie Murphy, New York.
175 POUNDS—Roland LaStarza, New York.
HEAVYWEIGHT—Gus Schloo, Buffalo, N. Y.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, March 14.—Eight young men whose fistic talents six weeks ago were known only in their army camps, navy bases, or home towns tonight emerged as the Golden Gloves champions of New York. They fought their way thru a vast field representing an area that stretched from Puerto Rico to Lake Ontario.

The finals of the tournament, conducted annually by the New York Daily News Welfare association, drew an overflow crowd of 19,177 to Madison Square Garden.

The eight champions and eight runners-up will comprise the team that will fight Chicago's best in the Chicago Stadium on April 4. A New York squad of 32 will open training next Tuesday at Bear Mountain, N. Y., where it will remain until time for departure to Chicago.

The New York delegation will share Bear Mountain's training facilities with the Brooklyn Dodgers, but lest there be any confusion we hasten to add that the Golden Glovers are not bums. They are the best group that has come out of the eastern meet in several years. Ted Martin, Pete Mello, and George Gainesford again will serve as co-coaches of the New York team.

Puerto Rico Wins Trophy.

Puerto Rico won the team trophy with three championships. The islanders sent only five men to the tournament because of a scarcity of representative talent in the heavier weights. The three winners will remain in the United States for the Chicago bouts.

The first contestant to make sure of a spot in the intercity show was Francisco Garcia, Puerto Rico southpaw 112 pounder, who gained a decision over William Simon of New York. He outboxed Simon most of the way and scored a knockdown in the second round. Garcia, an Intercity winner a year ago, will meet Chicago's Jackie Boyd in the Stadium bouts.

Rafael Reveron, another Puerto Rican southpaw, won the 126 pound championship by whipping Nick Poppo, Buffalo shipping clerk, with a series of looping lefts. Poppo finished strong, but his rally came too late to offset Reveron's advantage in the first two rounds. The intercity match will pit the Puerto Rican against Virgil Franklin, an Indian from Oklahoma City.

Another Puerto Rican!

Puerto Rico won a third championship when Adolfo Calderon, 19, a welder from San Juan, defeated Sal Puzza, high school student from Newark, in the bantamweight final. Calderon won all three rounds by narrow margins. He was much the stronger at the finish, but will have to hit more accurately on April 4 than he did tonight if he whips Chicago's Bob Jarvis.

The lightweight title fight developed one of the best bouts this correspondent ever has seen in Golden Gloves. It was won by Eddie Murphy of the Bronx on a split decision from Elbert Highers of Cherry Point, N. C., a marine sergeant. Murphy, representing New York's Catholic Youth organization, was outpointed in the first round and was floored for an eight count at the start of the second. He made up for the knockdown with a flurry of blows that opened a cut on the marine's head. Murphy, who hopes some day to begin studying for the priesthood, dazzled the service man with expert boxing in the last round. New York coaches who scouted the finals of Chicago's Golden Gloves predict two victories for their team in the 135 pound Intercity show.

PAUL DERRINGER, HUGHES CHECK IN AT CUBS' CAMP

Andy Pafko Also Due to Arrive in French Lick.

BY EDWARD BURNS.

French Lick, Ind., March 14.—The Chicago Cubs' happy little family of 12 baseball players, who have been toiling dutifully under sunny skies and in springlike weather at French Lick, greeted two more teammates today and reports from Chicago carried the glad tidings that a third tardy member was on the way.

Paul Derringer, turned 38 last October, became arrival No. 13. He was followed a few hours later by Roy Hughes, who in turn became the 14th Cub to put in an appearance. Andy Pafko, reported en route to the banks of Lost river, is expected to increase the size of the family to 15 tomorrow.

Derringer in Better Shape.

As a Cub, Paul never has approached the eminence achieved in some of his great years with the St. Louis Cardinals and the Cincinnati Reds, but he appears to be in better shape now than on any of his previous reporting appearances since joining the Chicago team.

Some years Paul has been suspected of backing a ton of temperament with his 230-odd pounds of flesh and brawn, but Manager Grimm said he is confident the big fellow now is primed both mentally and physically to give the Cubs a lot of classy service this season. The skipper feels Paul is certain to eclipse his 7-13 ratio of last year, and he is confident, he says, the powerful right hander can be depended upon for many more than his 10 Cub victories of 1943.

Another California Day.

Paul is making no predictions for himself but is looking forward to the approaching campaign with zeal without elaborating too much on the handicap of a sprained ankle, suffered here last year. He was one of the first in uniform today and had the advantage of another "California" day for his opening exercises.

Secrecy continued to prevail here anent what is being done to get the remainder of the signed absentees on the ground. But there is evidence that action has been stepped up considerably. For instance, Traveling Secretary Bob Lewis, official telephone answerer, can no more than get settled in a divan for a moment's relaxation when he has to scamper up and wedge himself into a long distance booth, there to receive mystery messages and instructions from Chicago and other points around this great nation of ours.

Hughes announced on reporting that he has been at the bedside of his father in Cincinnati and does not expect the parent to survive his present illness, but Roy said:

Speed Camp Game Plans.

"I left the coast in opening day physical shape, arriving in Cincinnati a week ago and I have come here to train until I am called back to my father's bedside. I am upset over my dad's condition, but otherwise am eager for the season to start. I'll be in there swinging at the start of the season and every day that Grimm lets me play."

Plans are going on apace for the camp game here Friday and Umpire-Trainer-Groundkeeper Lotshaw have announced all hands, including Grimm and his three professors, are physically ready for their assignments.

SMILIN' JACK

Sweet Sixteen

Morton, which twice has won the state title, will be pointing for an upset. The Cicero five will be led by such players as Dick Bauman, leading scorer in the Suburban league, and Ferd Nadherny, a center who connects frequently on pivot shots. Ted Beach is the Champaign precision shooter and it is conceded Champaign has a better balanced squad, tho Morton will have the edge in height. The Morton party arrived tonight and is quartered at the Urbana Lincoln hotel.

Following the Morton-Champaign meeting, Quincy will oppose Springfield in the opening game of the afternoon session. Quincy has won 25 and lost 4, while Springfield ousted Taylorville's defending champions in a sectional upset. The second afternoon game pits Flora against Peoria Central followed by Galesburg and West Frankfort, in what is termed another "natural" meeting. Galesburg is listed as a dark horse and given a chance to upset the West Frankfort team which has defeated Decatur, rated second to Champaign, in regular season play.

Senn Faces Moline.

Decatur will open the night session against Collinsville. Decatur has the tallest player in the tournament, Center George Reilly, who stands 6 feet 8 inches, and defeated Collinsville, 61 to 54, while amassing 35 victories over the season.

Elgin, which lost to Taylorville in the finals last season, meets Rockford East in the second night game. In the closing contest of the first day's program the Senn High school Bulldogs, champions of Chicago's City league, will go after their 22d straight victory against the Moline Maroons. Senn, with Jack Wulf, 6 foot 6 inch center, leading the way, has gained some attention in downstate circles recently and will go into tomorrow's game with a slight edge over Moline if pre-tournament gossip can be believed.

Tonight, with the problem of tomorrow's opposition holding attention of coaches and players, the tourney latecomers were faced with the usual shortages—no tickets and a scarcity of rooms. The hotels have been sold out for two months, while the demand for tickets exceeded the supply by five to one.

White Sox, 18 Strong, Hold 2 Hour Drill

(Chicago Tribune Press Service.)

Terre Haute, Ind., March 14.—The White Sox, 18 strong by now exclusive of the rapidly expanding ranks of self-invited amateurs, were forced to conclude today that northern spring training has its good points. Except for a palm tree setting it could just as well have been California sunshine pouring down on them and they enjoyed everything aside from the adverse effect it had on that old Hollywood enthusiast, James Dykes, the manager.

Mr. Dykes, instead of relaxing in the outdoor comfort, suddenly turned tough and refused to concede most of his pupils were fairly well on the sore side as the result of their first two days of exercise. With three assistants [Coach Bing Miller joined Mule Haas and Muddy Ruel today] to carry out the orders, Dykes kept his squad moving at top speed for more than two hours. Being a foxy man he humored them slightly with their first dose of batting practice, this being the one thing a ball player doesn't consider work.

No Damage to Fences.

The batting practice, and we are sorry we can't say anybody hit a ball over the fence which is somewhere in the next county, provided some of the lads listed as pitchers with a chance to do some regulation throwing. Lee Ross, the only regular mound man present, did a 15 minute stretch. So did Frank Papish who is back after a stretch in Little Rock; Bob Mistele who took some schooling at Scranton last season; Al Treichel, also from Little Rock, and Ralph Strem, a so-called independent who operates with his left arm.

Southpaw Gray Reports.

The ranks of the signed members swelled to 18 today with the appearance of George Gray, a southpaw, who eventually will grow into quite a man if a flying start means anything. He won't register his 18th birthday until next October, but has already attained the imposing height of 6 feet 4 inches accompanied by 180 pounds of weight.

Mat Troupe Crash Toll Reaches Four

Henry J. [Jack] Ross, 35, of 6008 Morgan st., and Lester [Kid] Chapman, 32, of 2318 Hastings st., Evanston, died March 3 of injuries received in an army plane crash in France, relatives have been notified by the war department.

Lester Chapman.

Chapman, native of Houston, Tex., and Ross, former stablemate of Maurice [the Angel] Tillet, are the third and fourth members of a group of professional wrestlers, who went overseas with a United Service organizations unit, to die as a result of the accident. The others were George Mack, 52, Chicago, and Al Sabath, 29, 1837 21st st. The latter was a nephew of Judge Joseph Sabath of the Superior court.

Three Others in Troupe.

Ross, who was a veteran of 15 years as a wrestler, is survived by his brothers William, who is a private in France, and Arthur, and a sister, Mrs. Henry Suarez, all of Chicago.

Other members of the troupe were Benny Reuben, former world middleweight champion, who was in charge; Gay Young, Minneapolis heavyweight, and Al Williams, Fox Lake.

No Word from Reuben.

In addition to his widow, Chapman is survived by two daughters, Elsie, 11, and Kathleen, 7. He appeared in bouts in Marigold Gardens, Rainbo Fronton, and White City. Mack had been associated with Reuben in the promotion of wrestling cards in Cicero stadium.

Mrs. Sally Reuben, wife of Ben, said she had received no word from her husband. Mrs. Young could not be reached. Mrs. Williams received a letter dated March 6 from her husband indicating he is well.

Roland La Starza, 175 pounds, of the New York C. Y. O., an Intercity winner in 1944, earned his way to Chicago Stadium by knocking out Steve De Luca, an army corporal from Jacksonville, Fla., in the second round. De Luca was floored once in the first round and again in the second before the finishing punch.

A marine sergeant beat a marine private when the judges ruled in favor of Howard Brodt over Harold Anspagh in the middleweight division. Both are from Cherry Point, N. C. It was the only dull bout of the evening.

Gus Schlee, 205 pound Buffalo truck driver recently discharged from the army, dropped Corp. Berk Horowitz of Jacksonville, Fla., in the first round and again in the second to win the heavyweight title on points. Both men were groggy at the finish.

Xavier it would follow that the former Irish basketball and football star would become assistant to Anderson, also a Notre Dame alumnus, at the close of the war.

Crowe, who came to Iowa City today, was the guest of Lawrence [Pops] Harrison, Hawkeye basketball coach.

Others mentioned as possibilities for the Iowa coaching job include Clarence Munn, line coach at the University of Michigan; Wes Fry of the Northwestern university coachstaff, and E. E. [Tad] Wieman, who formerly served as head coach at Michigan, assistant at Minnesota, head coach at Princeton, and who last year was assistant to Lou Little at Columbia.

PEP, VETERAN OF NAVY SERVICE, TAKEN BY ARMY

Fort Devens, Mass., March 14 (AP).—Thirteen months ago Willie Pep was discharged honorably from the United States navy for medical reasons and today he was processed into G. I. khaki and sworn in as a private in the army. Holder of the New York version of the world featherweight boxing title, he was inducted yetserday in his home city of New Haven, Conn.

COCHRAN TAKES A 40 POINT LEAD AGAINST HOPPE

New York, March 14 (AP).—Welker Cochran of San Francisco, defending his three cushion billiards title against Willie Hoppe of New York in a transcontinental tournament, today widened his lead to 40 points by defeating the challenger in afternoon and evening sessions by identical scores of 60-45.

KELTNER QUITS WAR JOB AGAIN FOR BASEBALL

Lafayette, Ind., March 14 (AP).—Ken Keltner again has left a war plant job to play ball with the Cleveland Indians. Altho declining comment on his action, Keltner repeated his move of last year when he said, "Baseball is my business. If the army wants me, it will find me working at it."

Keltner left a job in a Milwaukee war plant to report to training camp last year. He promptly was reclassified A-1 and was accepted for the navy after passing his physical examination.

He was not called, however, and after several months had passed he was given a 2-A classification.

MACK IS OPTIMISTIC.

Frederick, Md., March 15 (AP).—"We are a first division ball club with a chance for the pennant and we are not nervous about the New York Yankees any more," said Connie Mack as he arrived today to take over the Philadelphia Athletics' spring training.

"If the champion St. Louis Browns manage to retain the 1944 lineup—and apparently they have them all back—they are in the driver's seat. Any club winning the pennant will have to beat them out." Other than that, said Mack, "it should be a wide open race."

The Athletics pitching staff, fortified with several promising rookies, has five regulars—Russ Christopher, Don Black, Buck Newsom, Jesse Flores, and Joe Barry.

30 PIRATES TO REPORT.

Pittsburgh, Pa., March 14 (AP).—More than 30 players are expected to report for the opening spring training drills at Muncie, Ind., Friday morning, the Pittsburgh baseball club announced today.

Outfielder Jim Russell, who led the Pirates in batting with a .312 mark last year, signed a contract for 1945 today and Pitcher Nick Strincevich notified the club from his Gary, Ind., home he will report to the Muncie camp.

Eddie Stewart, outfielder for the Pirates in 1941 and 1942 who was placed on the voluntary retired list two years ago, has been reinstated and optioned to Hollywood of the Pacific Coast league, subject to 24 hour recall.

BAGBY TO REPORT.

Atlanta, Ga., March 14 (AP).—Jim Bagby Jr., Cleveland Indians pitcher, has resigned his war job at the Bell bomber plant and plans to leave tomorrow for the Indians' training camp at Lafayette, Ind.

Bagby played two months with Cleveland last summer, winning four and losing five. But he won 17 games in each of the two preceding seasons.

"I hope I can do the Indians a lot of good," he said. "They gave me everything I asked for, and no questions asked. They took me by surprise."

BROWNS TEST HITTING.

Cape Girardeau, Mo., March 14 (AP).—Manager Luke Sewell employed a mechanical pitching machine today in the St. Louis Browns' third spring training workout and the ball players, after an extra half hour of hitting, were ready for the showers.

The squad remained at an even dozen, but Sewell said he was not fretting over absentees. "If the fine weather continues these boys will be considerably ahead of the latecomers," he commented.

FIVE MORE SENATORS ARRIVE.

Washington, D. C., March 14 (AP).—Five more players—Outfielder George Case and Infielders Charles Beihl, Hillis Layne, George Myatt, and Fred Vaughn—reported to the Washington Senators today, making 11 in camp.

ANOTHER YANK ARRIVES.

Atlantic City, N. J., March 14 (AP).—Arrival of Pitcher Walter Dubiel, who had been detained in Hartford by the illness of his wife, brought the New York Yankee camp enrollment to 17 today.

BORDAGARAY SIGNS

Bear Mountain, N. Y., March 14 (AP).—Frenchy Bordagaray, combination infielder and outfielder, and Stan Andrews, catcher, have signed their contracts, boosting to 21 the number of Brooklyn Dodgers under contract.

DE PAUL FROSH, DANLY MACHINES IN SABINA FINALS

The De Paul Frosh and the Danly Machines will battle in the finals of the eighth annual St. Sabina A. A. U. invitational basketball tourney tonight. De Paul advanced last night by downing St. Sabina, 42 to 30, and Danly won over De La Salle High school, 47 to 38, to reach the finals. St. Sabina and De La Salle will meet in a preliminary game tonight at 7:45 o'clock.

NOVICE CASTER TAKES FIRST IN TRIBUNE EVENT

BY BEN MARKLAND.

Hal A. McCoy, a novice bait caster who prefers to compete against experts, proved last night that he has good reason for his brashness by defeating 22 of Chicago's best casters in the event sponsored by THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE at the International Sportsmen's show in the Coliseum.

McCoy, 1060 Wilson av., maintenance man in a loop office building, has been casting for only 10 months. The rules of the tournament permitted him to cast against fishermen and novice casters, but he felt that his few months of competition at the Lincoln Park Casting club fitted him for battle against the experts. In last night's first event he tallied 95 to tie with two competitors, then in the castoff scored 96 to beat Foster Rigler, a Lincoln park teammate, and Clarence Williams of the Chicago Fly Casting club.

Rigler Is Novice.

Rigler, 640 Wrightwood av., also is a novice platform caster, altho he has been a fisherman for many years. He has belonged to the Lincoln Park club for only two years. Williams, 426 N. Waller av., has been fishing northern Wisconsin lakes for almost 20 years. After tying Rigler and McCoy at 95 in the first event, he fell to a 90 in the castoff, three points below Rigler's second place effort.

Other qualifiers for Sunday's final from last night's competition were Frank Steel, Don Le Baron, A. R. Westra, George Oehler, Ray Wilson, and Walter Stone, all from the Lincoln Park club; George Morrison of the Gary Anglers club; Harry McDonald, Joe Weber, and Frank Woltman from the Jackson Park Casting club, and Conrad Nordholm of the Chicago Fly Casting club.

Service Men Cast Tonight.

Service men take over the casting platform tonight, with a $25 war bond going to the winner and $10 in war stamps to the service man who places second. Men in uniform who wish to compete but who have not yet made an official entry may take part by appearing at the contestant's gate at the south end of the Coliseum before 7:15 o'clock tonight.

The Sportsmen's Show continues thru Sunday night, with floor shows at 3:30 and 9:30 each day.

One of the show features drawing much attention is the Alaskan village presided over by Earl F. Hammond and Lesa Benneti, the latter an evacuee from Attu in the Aleutian Islands. Included among Hammond's team of huskies is Tokon, a 14 year old Siberian husky which has covered more than 20,000 miles as a sledge dog in Alaska.

THE QUESTION.

What has been your most thrilling or amusing experience on a hunting or fishing trip?"

WHERE ASKED.

THE ANSWERS.

Chief Needahbeh, lecturer, sportsman, Penobscot tribe, Old Town, Me.—In the winter I give lectures in clubs and colleges thruout the United States. In the summer I serve as a guide in Maine. A New York broker told me on a hunting trip I was wasting my time in the woods being a guide and asked if I'd be his butler.

F. W. Kahler, manager sports show, Christmas Lake, Excelsior, Minn.—I was fishing for tuna at Wedgeport, Nova Scotia. We hooked what I've always thought was a tuna in the morning, had him on the line eight hours and 45 minutes, and never saw him once. I finally let him break the line.

Mrs. H. O. Ehrlacher, exhibitor, 9420 Racine av.—Four of us were in a small boat fishing. One woman caught a devil fish. Every time she'd bring it up toward the boat it would squirt water on me. I kept yelling, "Don't bring it in the boat," and she kept bringing it up to see what it was.

Frank M. Hogan, professional, Barrington. — Several of us were hunting wild boar in Arizona with bows and arrows. The guide spotted a covey of quail and asked jokingly, "Have you ever tried hunting quail with a bow and arrow?" I shot one arrow and pinned a quail to a tree—a one in a million shot.

Mrs. C. W. Waddell, exhibitor, 4314 Thomas st.—We'd been fishing about an hour when it started to rain. We were too far out to return so decided to stay and fish. I had on a black turban that faded, and black color ran down my face in streaks. My crepe dress shrank high above my knees. But I caught my first muskie.

Herb Welch, artist, Rangley Lakes, Me.—My most thrilling fishing experience was taking a 53 pound tyee salmon on a six inch fly rod. They are an enormous fish and this particular one put up a two hour and 45 minute fight in landing him. He broke water eight times, and I came pretty near upsetting the boat while gaffing him.

WAR TIME WEAR RAISES THREAT TO TRANSPORT

Replacement Lack Becomes Serious.

BY PHILIP HAMPSON.

The more than three years' heavy war time use of the private automobile, truck, and railroad passenger car with little or no replacement at last is presenting a serious threat to the three major transportation groups employing them, traffic men said yesterday. Since Pearl Harbor only a few automobiles and railroad passenger cars have been delivered and the number of trucks built for civilian use has been insignificant.

The private automobile has been relied upon to provide the transportation for many, if not most, of the great war plants that dot the country.

When the United States entered the war in 1941 about 29¼ million passenger cars were registered in the country. The Automobile Manufacturers association estimated that the number had dropped to 25,608,400 by last Dec. 31. An office of defense transportation estimate placed the number on Jan. 1 at 24,400,000, of which 650,000 were not being used.

Cumulative Wear Takes Toll.

Fortunately, the number of cars that went to the scrap piles in the last three years was not as large as had been predicted, but the cumulative effects of age and wear have begun to take an ever increasing toll of essential rolling stock. The economy of the nation in the last 20 years has been built largely around the automobile and the effects of a breakdown of this form of transportation would be incalculable, traffic men said.

When the war began about 400,000 new cars were "frozen" in an automobile pool to provide transportation for essential users. On Feb. 1 less than 12,000 remained for rationing, indicating that the stockpile may disappear before the end of the year.

As many as 1½ million cars may be scrapped this year, according to one government estimate, which would mean only 22¼ million in use at the start of 1946, on the basis of the ODT estimate of Jan. 1. The QDT puts at 20 million the minimum required to maintain the civilian economy on an efficient basis.

Parts, Labor Are Problems.

Obtaining adequate stocks of repair parts and the labor to service automobiles have been the big bugaboos of the more than 30,000 dealers on whom has rested the principal responsibility for keeping the automobiles running. Fortunately, the parts situation has not been too serious, altho certain shortages have developed at times.

The labor supply became tighter as the draft took an increasing number of dealers' employes. However, by using older men and spreading out the work most dealers have been able to meet their customers' needs.

Supplies of certain essential parts have been short at times because they are made of critical steel in demand for military production. Among such shortages have been functional items without which the automobile will not run — motor blocks, crank shafts, pistons, valves, transmission and differential gears.

After the average car has been run 30,000 miles it usually needs a major overhauling. To care for this situation some manufacturers have produced what they call a "half engine" which is composed of entirely new functional parts. The less important parts not subject to wear are taken from the old engine of a person buying a half engine.

Advises Engine Rebuilding.

One dealer of wide experience said that where feasible it is economical to rebuild the engine to make it as nearly new as possible. He said patching an engine results in a makeshift job requiring frequent repairs and, more important, creates a big drain on dealer labor.

The tire and battery situation has not been too serious so far. Late last summer tire manufacturers in Akron expected the end of tire rationing about the middle of this year. Such optimism disappeared after the German break-thru in Belgium and has not reappeared despite the improved military situation.

Government sources have warned that tires will remain scarce. And now battery manufacturers are urging automobile owners to husband their batteries because the supply will be curtailed as a result of need for conserving lead.

Investors' Guide

Fantastic price appreciation has occurred in radio and "electronic" stocks. Recognizing the public interest in the field, companies engaged in the industry are making public offerings of their shares at prices attractive to the sellers. These offerings are primarily transfers of existing ownership, not new financing for the companies. The speculative glamor of these stocks recalls the unfortunate experiences of many investors in beer stocks after repeal of prohibition in 1933. The highly speculative character of stocks now being offered makes it imperative for prospective buyers to acquaint themselves with facts about the industry and companies engaged in it. Investors' Guide today begins a series of articles, the first three general discussions of the industry and its prospects. Subsequent articles will analyze the financial position of individual companies.

Some of the radio high frequency induction heating which promises many new uses in industrial manufacturing processes appears to have found its way into related sections of the stock market, for the speculative temperature with respect to radio and electronic stocks has risen spectacularly during the war. Price gains in this group are among the largest of any division of the market.

The rise is deemed warranted to some extent in many cases by improved earnings and the favorable outlook for post-war business in the fields of radio, television, and applied electronics. Extreme movements of this kind, however, often involve risks of serious loss, particularly to late comers in the market who pay inflated prices. The market history of the 1920s, when radio was new, shows recurring periods of excited speculation in radio stocks with costly results to many investors.

It is not necessary to recall such episodes as the crash of Grigsby-Grunow company stock from dizzy heights to worthlessness in the bankruptcy court. There were numerous instances in which over-optimism regarding the new industry's prospects resulted in heavy losses. In the case of a rapidly developing industry customary measures of value such as a long record of earnings and dividends are either lacking or considered inadequate as an index of the future results. Stock prices seek to reflect possibilities, but in doing so may ignore such questions as potential competition, patents, and possibly adverse economic conditions.

So, along with the evident basis for expecting reasonably good post-war business for the well established companies now producing radio-electronic devices for war, there is also reason for caution on the part of investors.

From a low of ⅛ [50 cents a share] in 1940, Raytheon Manufacturing common rose to the equivalent of 70½, based on a 1945 high of 23⅝ after a three for one stock split. Belmont Radio soared from 2½ in 1941 to 21, Utah Radio Products from ¾ to 10⅝, Crosley from 4⅜ to 38⅝, Ken-Rad Tube and Lamp from 3 to 32, Philco from 8½ to 37, Radio Corporation of America from 2¼ to 12¾. There are many similar instances.

The market's receptiveness has invited public distribution of electronic stocks previously closely held. Admiral corporation stock, publicly offered last November at 7¾, subsequently sold above 14. An offering of Sentinel Radio [formerly Electrical Research Products] stock at 7¼ in February was reported several times oversubscribed, and the shares were later quoted as high as 9¼. Hallicrafters company recently filed for registration with the securities and exchange commission 225,000 common shares.

ARMS SPEEDUP AS WAR NEARS END 'CURIOUS'

Ayres Doubts Need of Civilian Chaos.

Cleveland, O., March 14 [Special].—The increasing chaos into which the civilian economy of this country has been thrown as allied armies advance further into Germany was emphasized today by Brig. Gen. Leonard P. Ayres when he observed that "it is a curious anomaly that while we are watching one of our wars draw toward its end we are acting as tho we were convinced that both of them were going to continue indefinitely."

"Munitions orders have been stepped up until in some industries they appear to exceed our powers of production. Draft boards are being called upon to find larger numbers of men for induction into the armed forces. National service legislation is debated in congress.

Civilians Further Restricted.

"Meanwhile production of goods for civilian use is being further restricted, and even in cases where materials are on hand and not needed for munitions, the fabrication of them for civilian products is being sharply restricted. Nearly all preparations for reconversion have been suspended, and post-war planning is in abeyance."

Industrial pay is at its peak and city people have more money to spend than ever before, but "they are being told that stocks may be still smaller later on, so they are increasing their purchases," he said. "Stocks of goods in stores are declining and prices are rising.

"Stock prices have been making new highs in recent weeks, and on large volumes of transactions," he added. "These advances do not appear to be discounting the approaching end of the war in Europe, which probably would be bearish rather than bullish. It seems more likely that the market is responding to the increased orders being placed by the military services.

Stimson Comment a Factor.

"Possibly the market movements may have been influenced by a recent comment of the secretary of war [Stimson], which appeared to indicate that present plans contemplate sending to the orient for the Japanese war substantially all the troops now in Europe."

Ayres predicted aircraft production would be stepped up and even higher goals set in the ammunition program.

"These schedules call for increasing the outputs until they are nearly 40 per cent larger than the huge production which was attained in the last quarter of 1944," he asserted. "Battle experience has demonstrated that concentrated fire power can be a most important factor in holding down the number of casualties."

He said that second quarter schedules for total production of all classes of munitions provide for output about 6 per cent larger in dollar value than actually produced in the last quarter of 1944.

DIVIDEND RATE INCREASED BY BICKFORD'S, INC.

Bickford's, Inc., operator of a chain of lunchrooms, yesterday declared a quarterly dividend of 30 cents on common stock, increasing the disbursement from 25 cents.

Philip Morris & Co. voted an extra dividend of $1.50 with the regular quarterly 75 cents, and American Brake Shoe company authorized an extra of 10 cents with the 25 cent quarterly payment.

The Harris Trust and Savings bank declared its regular quarterly dividend of $3 per share, the first disbursement since the bank distributed a dividend in stock of one share for each three held last December.

DIANA STORES BUYS CHAIN OF APPAREL SHOPS

New York, March 14 (AP).—Diana Stores corporation has purchased the entire capital stock of Peggie Hale, Inc., operator of a chain of 19 women's apparel shops in the south and middle west, Harry Greenburg, Diana president, announced today.

The company also has completed leasehold arrangements for 10 additional outlets in the south Atlantic and east-south central states as soon as government regulations permit, he said. The Peggie Hale acquisition, made for cash, brings the number of Diana stores to 45.

BOOST IN PRICE TO LIFT BUTTER OUTPUT SOUGHT

An increase in the price of butter of not more than 10 cents a pound to stimulate production was asked in a resolution of the Pure Milk association at its annual meeting in Chicago yesterday. Other resolutions called for parity prices for dairy products comparable to those on basic soil crops, and preventing butter substitutes from imitating the natural color of butter.

Arthur H. Lauterbach, general manager, predicted that when the war is over "we may find butter consumption very low, followed by low butterfat prices, and the final result will be low milk prices."

LION OIL
REFINING COMPANY
El Dorado, Arkansas

A quarterly dividend of 25¢ per share and an extra dividend of 10¢ per share have been declared on the Capital Stock of this Company, both payable April 16, 1945, to stockholders of record March 31, 1945. The stock transfer books will remain open.

Stock Market Pushes Ahead in Light Trade

New York, March 14 (AP).—The stock market again was subdued today, but enough buying came in to boost a majority of active issues fractions to about a point.

An advance in steels and rails helped to overcome early indecision and low priced motors had a spirited move in good volume in the final hour. Atlantic Coast Line rose 4¾ on a proposed deal in stock and bonds of the Louisville and Nashville.

This reduced interest, some Wall st. brokers said, is traceable to a growing belief that administration authorities will propose some definite action to control speculation in securities and real estate.

BONDS CLIMB SLOWLY.

New York, March 14 (AP).—The bond market made a slow advance today under improved demand for an assortment of rails and continued investment interest in higher priced issues. Gains of fractions to a point or more outnumbered unchanged or lower quotations by a substantial majority at the close.

CHICAGO PRICES RISE.

Prices advanced on the Chicago Stock exchange yesterday as volume dropped to 31,000 shares. Most heavily traded issues included Peabody Coal and Commonwealth Edison, both unchanged; Chicago corporation, down ⅛, and Marshall Field, up ⅝. Hibbard, Spencer, Bartlett attained a new 1945 high at 57, up 1.

CREDIT OFFICIAL GIVES WARNING ON JOB SUPPLY

A warning to "beware of the false theory" that industry would be able to provide jobs for 50 or 60 million persons after the war was issued last night by Henry H. Heimann, executive manager of the National Association of Credit Men.

Heimann told a forum of the Chicago Association of Credit Men in the La Salle hotel that rather than to try to define responsibilities of industry in figures which at this time are indeterminable, the goal should be "full employment" in the post-war period.

"When most people think of the employment responsibility of business they have in mind the manufacturing, wholesaling, jobbing, mining, and construction businesses," he said.

"This group could employ somewhat short of 15 million people. If, however, they were able to do this, then other segments of our economic life, such as the professions, retail trades, service trades, and agriculture could more easily discharge their employment responsibility."

MINE CONTRACT PARLEY MAKES SLOW PROGRESS

Washington, D. C., March 14 (AP).—Negotiations for a new bituminous coal contract made slight progress today as operators sought to agree on a united stand on John L. Lewis' 18 demands.

The bargaining — recessed since last Monday to allow the producers to caucus — resumed briefly this morning but again recessed until Friday. Ezra van Horn, head of the operators' group and conference chairman, said the operators would continue their conferences tomorrow in an effort to reach an agreement.

Edward R. Burke, head of the southern producers, indicated he would postpone any court action against the strike vote by the United Mine Workers during the present stage of negotiations. He said earlier his group would make every effort "to stop this crazy strike vote."

People and Events

Pan American Airways, Inc., yesterday announced the appointment of James G. Ehrlicher as regional manager of the air lines system in Chicago with headquarters at 135 S. La Salle st. He will represent the company in Chicago and surrounding area. For several years Ehrlicher has been a member of the staff of Mayor Kelly's office. Because of its strategic location on world air routes, Chicago is expected to be the center for an increasing part of the operations of Pan American and other airlines after the war.

John J. O'Brien III., senior partner of John J. O'Brien & Co., announced the admission of the firm to membership in the New York Stock exchange. Joseph M. Fitzgerald of New York, and Albert J. Payne of Chicago, have become general partners and Julian A. Acosta of New York a special partner.

I. G. Grawoig of I. G. Grawoig & Associates has been elected president of American Well works, Aurora, of which he recently purchased control. The company manufactures pumping, water and sewage treatment equipment, and deep well turbines.

A. J. Levich has been elected vice president of Nat Gavender, Inc., said Nat Gavender, president. Levich will be in charge of the newly formed store activities' division, with headquarters in St. Louis.

Joseph L. Kleiner, registrar of De Paul university's uptown college, will leave Friday for Madison, Wis., where he has accepted a position as district manager for the Dictograph company, New York. No successor has been appointed by the university.

TRUCKING FIRMS STUDY APPEAL OF WAGE AWARD

The labor negotiations committee of the Central Motor Freight association will meet in the Stevens hotel this afternoon to consider appealing the war labor board's recent wage award to Chicago truck drivers. The award provided a wage increase of 8 cents an hour; time and a half for all work in excess of 8 hours, and time and a half for work performed before 8 a. m. and after 5 p. m.

Over-the-road truck operators were aroused by the increase, asserting that it will create a great hardship on them because their drivers will be subject to the award when in the area it covers. Over-the-road operations do not lend themselves to such restrictive orders as would require time and a half for a driver working before 8 a. m. and after 5 p. m., they said.

NEW INSURANCE OF MILLERS NAT. NEAR A RECORD

Premium writings of Millers National Insurance company last year increased $304,788 to $4,173,498, the second largest total in its history, the company said yesterday. Unearned premium reserve increased $242,864 to $3,972,466, a record high.

Assets at the end of the year totaled $7,844,334 and surplus was $3,092,216, a reduction of $287,120. Holdings of government bonds were $3,730,201, other bonds $849,182, cash $1,015,641, and stocks $1,641,636, of which $1,277,883 represents Illinois Fire Insurance company stock, whose assets consist of government bonds and cash. Liabilities were $4,752,117.

Shut Out by Military Need, Low Supply.

Lend-lease buyers are being forced out of the meat market rapidly by buyers for the army and navy who hold a priority over all others, it was disclosed at the stock yards yesterday. Despite the smaller tonnage allotted to civilians and requirements that packers set aside a larger percentage of their output for government agencies, not enough meat is available to fill both lend-lease and military demands.

Army and navy buyers now take nearly all of the supply packers set aside for the government. Lend-lease gets what is left—almost none of some kinds of meat.

The tonnage obtained for lend-lease, which was a heavy drain on supplies until recently, has been cut more than 80 per cent in two months, the department of agriculture disclosed.

Large Drops Recorded.

The department reported that lend-lease pork buying during the week ended March 3 was only 4,473,000 pounds, compared with 28,342,000 per week two months ago, a cut of 84 per cent. Canned meat purchases fell 86 per cent to 2,610,000 pounds from 19,563,000 earlier in the year.

Purchases of other meat were insignificant, only 2 to 7 per cent of year ago purchases. The beef and veal buy in the week was only 26,000 pounds, compared with 153,000 two months ago and 2,418,000 a year ago. The lamb and mutton total was only 96,000 pounds, compared with 536,000 and 1,495,000.

Industry spokesmen warned the office of price administration many months ago that this country would be unable to fill the commitments made to the liberated nations unless it eased the price curbs on hog raisers which were largely responsible for the record drop in pork and lard production.

Hog supplies shrank further yesterday, 20 main markets' receipts of 56,000 representing a decline of 5 per cent from last week and 53 per cent from a year ago. Ceiling prices again were paid for nearly all stock offered.

Best cattle were in broad demand at firm prices. The $17.50 per 100 pounds top, paid for five carloads, equaled the peak since mid-January. Heifers were steady, with the $17 top equal to the highest March price on record. Some plainer classes of cattle sold off 10 to 25 cents.

DIRECT AIR LINE SOUGHT TO LINK VACATION AREAS

Des Moines, Ia., March 14 (AP).—The linking by air of the recreation centers of southeastern states with the hunting and fishing playgrounds in Minnesota and Wisconsin was proposed today by Paul H. Brattain, first vice president of Eastern Air Lines.

He appeared before the civil aeronautics board on an application to extend Eastern's 1,300 mile Chicago-Miami route to Minneapolis and St. Paul by way of Rockford, Ill., Milwaukee, Wis., and Rochester, Minn.

Brattain described tourist activities as one type of "community of interest" of the two sections which now have no direct one carrier service. Eastern also plans a "less direct" service between the Twin Cities and Washington, D. C., by way of Louisville. Earlier, testimony had been completed by Chicago and Southern Air Lines on its petition for two routes between Chicago and Minneapolis-St. Paul.

Act to Repeal 2 Emergency Money Grants

Washington, D. C., March 14 (AP).—In approving legislation to reduce to 25 per cent the minimum gold reserve required against federal reserve notes and deposits, the senate banking committee today went beyond the administration request and wrote in an amendment to repeal two grants of monetary power made to the administration in the emergency banking act of 1933.

The amendment would cancel the authority to issue federal reserve bank notes which require no gold backing. About 600 million dollars of such notes have been issued. It also would withdraw the treasury's power to issue up to 3 billions in "greenbacks," an authority which never has been used.

Reserves Near Minimum.

Present law requires the federal reserve banks to maintain gold reserves equal to at least 40 per cent of the federal reserve notes in circulation and 35 per cent of deposit liabilities.

Chairman Eccles of the federal reserve board, in asking for the reduction, told the committee that several of the banks were near the legal minimum. He explained that the percentage of bank gold holdings in relation to notes and deposits had shrunk steadily as a result of the war time dislocation of international trade.

Bury Gold Price Hike.

Sen. Murdock [D., Utah] sought to substitute for the legislation a bill by Sen. Scrugham [D., Nev.] to raise the price of gold from $35 to $56 an ounce. He argued with little support that if the price of gold were increased there would be no need to reduce the required minimum.

The committee-approved legislation would make permanent the authority to use government obligations as collateral for federal reserve notes.

Phillips Has Large Profit Gain.

Net income of the Texas company and subsidiaries increased to $54,516,819, equal to $4.85 a share, in 1944 and gross crude oil production increased to 98,523,647 barrels from 84,639,468 barrels in 1943, W. S. S. Rodgers, chairman, and Harry T. Klein, president, said yesterday in their annual report. Profit in 1943 was $42,889,796, or $3.83 a share.

The company's exploratory drilling was more than double that of 1943, but additions to oil reserves resulted principally from further development and revised estimates of known fields, the report said. Reserves as of Dec. 31 were the highest in the company's history.

Warn Output Dip Is Near.

Rodgers and Klein reiterated their warning of last year that the United States is on the verge of a substantial decline in its ability to produce crude oil.

"The new oil found in 1944 was only approximately 511 million barrels, or less than one-third of the withdrawals during the year," they said. "No fields of outstanding importance were found. The industry is disposing of its inventory in the ground at prices which do not stimulate exploratory drilling on the part of the small independent producer and are not in keeping with the increased cost of new discoveries."

"You don't have to make Poindexter that good"

● An old time Kentucky whisky man said that to our distiller—and gave his reasons, too: "What do whisky buyers care about your 40% small grains—that Red Rosen rye and fine barley malt you put in with the good yellow corn? What do they know about jug yeast or low temperature fermentation? I tell you, folks don't appreciate fine whisky any more!"

Our distiller replied, "We can't supply everybody. But there's a few men in every thousand who can taste the quality that has been put into Old Poindexter for 88 years. That few keeps our little distillery oversold right along."

Our distiller's rather old-fashioned. He says he'd rather be the best distiller in Kentucky than the biggest. We think he may have an idea.

Phillips Reports Large Profit Upturn.

ported 1944 net income of $20,952,088, or $4.26 a share, compared with $14,168,422, or $3.04 a share, in 1943. Net crude oil production totaled 28,584,412 barrels, a daily average of 78,099 barrels or 10,433 more than the average daily net production in 1943, the highest previous year.

73 Pct. of Wells Producers.

The company drilled 623 wells last year, 456 or 73 per cent of which produced oil or gas. Exploratory tests for new fields numbered 150, more than double the total of such wells in any other year. This effort resulted in the discovery of 25 new oil pools and seven new gas areas, the company said.

"The increase in estimated company crude oil reserves, resulting from discovery of new pools and from extensions to existing fields, exceeded the record additions of 1943 and was several times the 1944 production," the report said. "New fields were found in north central, east and west Texas, Oklahoma, Kansas, and Illinois."

Summarizing other activities, the company said its output of aviation gasolines was much larger than in 1943 and that natural gas sales increased 92 billion cubic feet.

Abbott Profit Smaller.

The annual report of Abbott Laboratories disclosed 1944 net income of $3,039,512, or $3.43 a share, on 849,958 shares of common stock, compared with $3,285,508, or $4.19 on 755,519 shares in 1943.

The company said 34 new products were added to the company's line of goods and that a new plant had been erected solely for the production of penicillin and allied antibiotics.

Reporting 1944 net income of $3,042,837, compared with $3,669,954 in 1943, Public Service Company of Northern Illinois said the recently invoked "brown-out" may save an estimated 20,000 tons of coal annually, but the savings in kilowatt hours would likely be less than 2 per cent.

U. S. OWNED OIL IN PERSIAN GULF AREA INCREASES

Oil production approximately double the present rate of 60,000 barrels a day is expected late this year by American owned companies operating in the Persian gulf region, H. D. Collier, president of the Standard Oil Company of California, reported yesterday to stockholders. He said exploration indicates tremendous oil reserves in the area.

Standard of California and the Texas company own jointly the Arabian American Oil company and the Bahrein Petroleum Company, Ltd. They control the only oil reserves in the Persian gulf fields and the middle east wholly owned by American companies. The increased production is expected to meet the needs of a new refinery being built at Ras Tanura by Arabian American with a capacity of 50,000 barrels a day and of Bahrein's refinery on Bahrein Island which has been expanded to handle more than 60,000 barrels daily.

Arabian American has three major fields in Saudi Arabia—the Dammam, Abquiq, and Abu Hadriya fields—the full extent of whose reserves has not been determined.

GAS COMPANIES PONDER IMPORT OF FPC INQUIRY

Representatives of the 10 big companies distributing natural gas in Illinois met yesterday in the offices of the Illinois commerce commission and began informal discussions of a recent decision of the federal power commission to hold hearings on the whole question of natural gas production, use, and regulation. The first hearing will be in Kansas City, Mo., on May 1.

It was reported that some of the officials were concerned lest the FPC action might presage an attempt to persuade congress to take all regulation of natural gas transportation and rates out of state commission hands and vest it in the FPC.

John D. Biggs, chairman of the Illinois commission which invited the company officials to the discussion, said he and his colleagues wished to insure that Illinois consumers retained an adequate supply of natural gas from southern and southwestern states and at reasonable rates.

A. T. & T. HOLDERS ASKED TO DROP TELEGRAPH SALE

New York, March 14 (AP).—Stockholders of American Telephone and Telegraph company at the annual meeting April 18 will vote on a proposal to terminate immediately negotiations for the sale of its telegraph facilities to the Western Union.

Mrs. Augusta Krause of Harrington Park, N. J., owner of 36 shares of capital stock, will move the proposal on the ground disposal of such facilities, described by Mrs. Krause as "relatively more profitable than the telephone business," would "jeopardize stockholders' investments and potential dividend returns."

The management said it would recommend a vote against the proposal. Revenues from the telegraph system amount to only about 2 per cent of all revenues, it said.

Jewel Tea 4 Week Sales 13.9 Pct, Above Year Ago

Retail sales of the Jewel Tea company in the four weeks ended Feb. 24 were $4,629,245, compared with $4,065,151 in corresponding weeks last year, an increase of 13.9 per cent.

Reported Missing

Edward Waybright and Gloria Welsh.

Police yesterday were searching for Edward Waybright, 16, and Gloria Welsh, 14, Schurz High school students who disappeared from their homes Tuesday and are believed to be elopers.

Mrs. Mildred Waybright, of 3916 N. Kedvale av., mother of Edward, said she has learned that the youngsters left her home late Tuesday with three pieces of luggage and a necklace on which is set a three-quarter carat diamond left to Edward by his grandmother. Edward has $40 in cash, she said. Gloria, daughter of Mrs. Eleanor Welsh, of 5416 Pensacola av., was said to have $10 in cash, received from selling her bicycle.

While officials were seeking the two pupils in the St. Louis [Mo.] area, where Edward has relatives, Mrs. Waybright appealed, "Everything is forgiven if they only will come home. We hope they aren't married. They're much too young."

BILLS WOULD SET UP PERMANENT VETERANS BODY

Drops Plan to Create Department.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Springfield, Ill., March 14.—A permanent state commission on veterans' affairs will be created under administration bills to be introduced next week in both the house and senate, Gov. Green said today at a press conference.

After consulting former service men the governor abandoned earlier plans to create a veterans' department. The commission will take over the work of the unofficial committee on veterans' employment and rehabilitation, which Green organized two years ago but which hasn't had legal status.

The policy making commission probably will consist of three members. Homer G. Bradney of Jacksonville, administrator for the governor's committee, is expected to be retained as executive officer of the commission.

"Nonpolitical Basis."

A committee of American Legion officials, headed by State Comdr. Arthur E. Canty of Chicago, advised the governor that commission handling of veterans' affairs, under which the administrator is responsible to a board, is preferable to creation of a new department, in which the director handles patronage.

"We want veterans' affairs conducted on a nonpolitical basis, and that is the governor's idea," said William R. McCauley of Olney, Legion rehabilitation chairman.

Urge Universal Training.

Green said he hasn't decided whether the Illinois aeronautics commission will be retained or whether a new code department will be created to take over its work. Decisions will be reached before the biennial state budget is submitted March 27.

The governor declined to comment on senate bills to abolish the Illinois public aid commission and assign its work, including handling of old age pensions, to a new code department.

Resolutions introduced in both houses asked for post-war adoption of universal military training, as advocated by the Legion. They were sent to the executive committees for consideration.

BILL TO CURB JOB DISCRIMINATION GIVEN HEARING

Madison, Wis., March 14 [Special].—Spokesmen for Wisconsin religious, political, and racial groups urged the state senate and assembly committees on agriculture and labor at a public hearing this afternoon to recommend passage of the proposed Wisconsin fair employment act, aimed at curbing job discrimination. The act is patterned after the bill adopted last week by the New York state legislature. Representatives of the Wisconsin state Chamber of Commerce opposed the bill.

Joint bills sponsored by Sen. Robert Tehan [D., Milwaukee] and Assemblyman Le Roy Simmons [D., Milwaukee] would grant the state industrial commission police powers to probe denial by employers of employment to persons "by reason of their race, creed, color, national origin or ancestry." The bill would also give the commission authority to investigate alleged discrimination against workers by labor unions.

Supporters of the bill included Fred Blair, Milwaukee spokesman for the Wisconsin Communist Political association; the Rev. A. T. Wallace, Madison, social relations chairman of the Wisconsin Council of Churches; Michael Galazan, Milwaukee Jewish Council representative; M. J. Heinritz, Milwaukee CIO leader, and Mrs. L. L. Freeman, Racine, spokesman for the Wisconsin League of Women Voters.

Riverside Radio Station for Experiments Planned

Request for permission to set up an experimental radio station in Riverside has been made by Joseph F. Novy, the federal communications commission in Washington, D. C., disclosed yesterday. The station would operate on 44,500-47,100 kilocycles. Novy is a navy lieutenant with the bureau of ships, Washington.

BOB HOPE MADE M.C. FOR 'OSCAR' AWARDS TONIGHT

BY LARRY WOLTERS.

Bob Hope will be master of ceremonies during the broadcast of the Motion Picture Academy Awards presentations [called "Oscars" in Hollywood from 11:30 to 12:30 tonight over WENR. Hope, incidently, has received another award himself. On Tuesday evening Fibber McGee and Molly made what they called "the first, last, and only salute you'll hear on our show"—a tribute to Hope for his record of entertaining service men at home and abroad.

Fred Allen has let it be known that he expects to be back on the air regularly next season. He dropped his program for the first time this year on the advice of his physician because of high blood pressure. He has been making occasional guest appearances. His next will be on the Hall of Fame on Sunday, March 25.

Pvt. Robert Allen of Jackson, Mich., a surgical patient in Vaughan General hospital, has been announced a winner in Kate Smith's tall tales contest. Pvt. Allen's whopper concerned the antics of the mosquitoes on New Guinea, where he served for 16 months.

Expressing the belief that television has now progressed to the point where it is ready to proceed commercially at the end of the war," John Ballantyne, president of Philco corporation, has advised stockholders that the company plans to turn out television receivers for the public a few months after the war is over.

Cass Daley, the raucous comedienne of the Frank Morgan show, has entered the campaign for mayor of North Hollywood, Cal. She opposes Wendell Niles and Don Prindle, radio comedians.

The Veterans of Foreign Wars have singled out Dinah Shore, songstress, as the first entertainer to receive its Citizenship Medal award. Jean A. Brunner, commander of the V. F. W., in announcing the award, said: "When Dinah Shore followed the invasion troops into France, she proved that women of the theatrical profession of America are ready and willing to serve when and wherever needed, whatever the danger." Miss Shore also sang to and addressed the enemy in German under supervision of the army's psychological warfare department.

BRIBERY CASE IS RECEIVED BY MICHIGAN JURY

Mason, Mich., March 14 [Special].—A jury of seven women and five men tonight remained closeted at the courthouse here deciding the fate of seven defendants charged with a 1939 legislative graft conspiracy involving a bill to license naturopathists.

The jurors received the case just before noon today. Three times they reëntered the courtroom to have portions of testimony read. Judge John Simpson of Jackson read a lengthy charge to the jury, stressing that it was not necessary that all the defendants be found guilty or innocent.

The defendants are Sen. Carl F. Delano [R., Kalamazoo], Edward J. Walsh, Detroit, former Democratic state representative; former Representatives Francis J. Nowak and William Buckley, Detroit Democrats; Nihkel Sherman, Detroit chiropractor; Martin W. Hildebrand, Battle Creek chiropractor, and Ernest W. Alden, former Detroit chiropractor.
